

DURHAM MANDIES AT WIFE'S GRAVE

Valiant Confederate Soldier and Long Prominent As Citizen of City

By JAMES A. ROBINSON.

Durham, May 3.—William J. Christian, one of Durham's oldest and most influential citizens, died suddenly Sunday afternoon, about 3 o'clock in Maplewood cemetery, by the side of his wife's grave, which he was visiting for the first time in several weeks, his condition being too feeble for him to go often. He has been confined in his home with illness practically ever since the death of his wife, which occurred about 12 months ago. His death was the result of acute Bright's disease, from which he had been suffering for some time.

He was accompanied at the time by his two daughters, Mrs. J. C. Wynne and Miss Lois Christian. Medical aid was summoned, but death was instantaneous. He was born December 13, 1850. He was a valiant Confederate soldier and was a prisoner for more than 18 months on Johnson's Island. He was a staunch Baptist in his Christian faith; he filled many offices of public trust; and was a leader in many of Durham's successful industries. He is survived by four sons and two daughters, and one brother, and a wide circle of relatives.

His children are: C. E. Christian, of Durham; J. A. Christian, of Mobile, Ala.; T. B. Christian, of Jacksonville, Fla.; W. C. Christian, of Pontiac, Mich.; Mrs. J. C. Wynne and Miss Lois Christian, of Durham. The funeral services have not been made, awaiting the arrival of his children from different parts of the country.

Death of Mrs. E. Chesbrough.

Mrs. E. Chesbrough died suddenly Sunday evening, at 7:15 o'clock, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. G. G. Taylor, on Parrish Place. She had been in declining health for some time, but was not confined to her bed. She was up most of the day Sunday, and on going to her room, just after supper, she had an attack of heart trouble which proved fatal. She was a native of Canada. About 74 years of age. Had been a resident of Durham for ten or twelve years. She was a communicant of St. Philip's church. The funeral and burial will take place in Canada. The remains were carried to Raleigh this afternoon on the 6:15 train, and there transferred to a Newland train, and taken to Canada.

The Price-Steep Revival.

The evangelist, Rev. Thurston B. Price, with his singer, J. Dale Mehta, began Sunday morning, in Memorial Methodist church, this city, a two weeks' revival services, which give promise of a big meeting, from the manner and interest manifested in the first meeting. Large congregations are attending.

Bailey Loses In Every Precinct In Native State

Woodley, of New Bern, who gave up his position under Collector Bailey to run for State auditor started the ball rolling and as the time for the primaries draws nearer the ball gains momentum. It would not be surprising to see other resignations in North Carolina within the next few days. When Mr. Woodley stepped down he paved the way for others to follow suit.

Crisp Write A Letter.

A statement issued from the office of Senator Lee S. Overman today quotes H. G. Crisp, Dare's Representative in the Legislature and the "Champion" of the anti-suffragists, as "a strong believer in keeping the present Senators and Congressmen in office as long as they as they faithfully perform their duties."

Mr. Crisp sent to Senator Overman a few days ago a copy of his reply to Brooks' invitation to support him. After pointing out to Mr. Brooks the advantages of keeping Senator Overman in Washington in order for "North Carolina to remain a real factor in the government at Washington," Mr. Crisp praises the junior Senator in high terms for refusing to "surrender his manhood to become a bell wether for a few clamorous women upon whom now rest the mantle of Susan B. Anthony." "It was the new idea," says he, "advertising to the Brooks administration to him to consider that it is a new world folks are living in now, that all existing policies should be abandoned and everything based upon new and different principles that made possible present conditions in Russia. This new idea constitutes now the greatest menace to our nation and its time tested institutions upon which its greatness has been achieved and upon which foundation it must rest if it would hold its place as the leading Nation of the World."

Needless to say, Mr. Crisp is enthusiastic for Senator Overman.

It was said here today that William Jennings Bryan will be the principal speaker at the coming sessions of the Eastern Philanthropic association in Wilson. He has been invited and it is understood that he is going to accept.

HEADACHE STOPPED WHILE YOU WAIT

Druggist Refunds Your Money While You Wait at Counter if Aspirinal Does Not Relieve in Two Minutes. Absolutely Safe.

Why suffer half an hour of headache pain waiting for your stomach to digest solid tablets and powders when Aspirinal, the new Effia, gives relief right now. Your Druggist prefers Aspirinal for the reason that it is not dangerous to the heart and does not upset the stomach.

The next time you have a headache go to your nearest drug store, hand the clerk half a dollar for a bottle of Aspirinal and tell him to give you two teaspoonful in a little water. With your watch in your hand count off two minutes and call for your money back, as the manufacturer's guarantee. If you can't feel your headache fading away within the time limit, your druggist invites and expects you to try Aspirinal, as it can't be harmful. Everybody is doing it. Same guarantee applies to each, rough and meekly.—Adv.

MAY 6 IS LIMIT DATE FOR QUESTIONNAIRES

May 6 is the time limit for filing answers to questionnaires sent to the various candidates by the State Federation of Labor and the State Farmers Union, it has been announced. All questionnaires which have not been returned by that date will be regarded as unanswered.

Preparations are now being made for the publication of the results of the questionnaires, and on May 6, the committee of the Farmers Union and the executive committee of the State Federation will meet for the purpose of the questionnaires and the preparation of the pamphlet which will carry your analysis of the answers and a characterization of the various candidates as fair or unfair to labor.

Brinson Charges, Abernethy Denies Party Infidelity

(home of Senator Butler) he held conferences with Ex-Senator Butler and other leading Republicans. "During this period, the period of his insurrection, Mr. Abernethy made a number of speeches, the one at Burgaw being typical of the rest.

"In his speech he was abusive of Democrats and eulogistic of Republicans. "Never until now, however, has one of the returned prodigals come back with an arrogant claim of high office because he has given up his backsliding."

"If the fatted calf must be killed and the royal robe brought forth for the erring brothers, party allegiance would be a snare and a delusion and regularity would be a mockery. "Every defeated candidate would run independently and then upon invitation arrive and secure the office next time.

Proper Attitude of Prodigals.

"I do not think that any barrier should be placed in the way of one who wishes to return, rather should we encourage him, but where one's party fealty hangs so lightly upon him, he at least should show 'fruit meet for repentance before preferment' is given him above those who remained true and sought to save the party from his wrecking operations.

"My record in Congress is open to the inspection of all. I have not sought to evade or straddle any question. I may have voted wrong at times but my vote at all times has been influenced by my judgment and my conscience."

Abernethy Reviews Fight.

Abernethy began with the statement that the debate was not of his own choosing. The last time he had debated was with Marion Butler, and he felt sort of a coward debating with a Democrat.

"I am fighting for a principle," he exclaimed. "Truth is mighty and will prevail. I was the nominee of the Democratic party two years ago and I can prove it, with these affidavits here." He held up a sheaf of papers and the crowd yelled. He then recounted his fight before the election board, asking for a second primary, his later struggle in the courts, and the over-night decision of Judge Calvert to evict the motion made for injunction against the certification of Colonel Dortch. He accused the spectators by describing the hiring of his lawyers, Judge J. Crawford Biggs, he said, was one of the best and most expensive lawyers in the State and B. N. Simms is one of the best Baptists.

"The election board told me that they had no power to call a new primary," he shouted. "Judge Calvert told me that he had no power to set aside the nomination of Colonel Dortch. My lawyers wrote a complaint as long as the moral law but the court had no power. I know a crowd that has power to give me relief and I am taking my case to that highest tribunal in the world—the people. They will give me relief from Colonel Wilson G. Lamb, who said he had no power to give me relief." There was an uproar.

Then his attention was turned to the Brinson statement that he had been an independent, and had conspired with the Republicans. "The man who calls me an independent is a — well you know what I want to say. There was a goodly sprinkling of women present and I thought the speaker was looking when he checked himself, with a word half formed on his lips.

"Talk about me conspiring with Republicans," he said, turning to Brinson, "Did you vote for Butler and the gold standard?"

Republicans Vouch For Him. He turned then to ridicule of his opponent, declaring that he was best school superintendent that Craven county ever had. "Our schools have suffered ever since he left and I want him back," he exclaimed. Then he turned off to another tack and called Nat Russell, a Republican in the audience, to stand up and say that he had brought with him the paper that the speaker held in his hands. Russell said that he brought it. It was read, an affidavit from C. H. Whentley, former Republican candidate for Congress, calling any statement that he had conspired with Abernethy a "common lie."

Brinson was invited for voting for prohibition and against suffrage. Next proof was forthcoming that was intended to show that Abernethy was a good Democrat, orthodox in every particular. He read from a newspaper statement attributed to Senator Simmons, vouching for his orthodoxy.

The remainder of his address was devoted to running comment upon Brinson and the entire history of the row that started when he first brought the charge of fraud against the party machinery. He sat down two minutes before his half hour was exhausted.

Brinson Produces Affidavits. Brinson followed the rough and tumbling in his reply. He had affidavits from Democrats from H. T. Wade, J. J. Bland, J. A. Powell, stating that Abernethy had been in collusion with Republicans and that his speech in Pendleton county during his campaign was a good Republican speech, loudly praised by Republicans. He had been seen in conference with various Republican leaders.

The campaign leaflet circulated by his opponent was brought out and commented upon. He ridiculed Abernethy's being a member of so many fraternal orders, and stated that he supposed that having a wife and son, as the leaflet indicated, was excellent campaign matter. He turned to the woman present and told them that he had voted against suffrage because he felt that the women of the State did not want it.

"I don't believe that women will hurt politics, I am afraid that politics will hurt our women," he concluded. A loud "yea."

Abernethy reiterated his denial of jobnobbing with Butler, declared that whenever the scratch came he always went up and voted the Democratic ticket, and returned to his running comment that amused the crowd mightily. "He talks about me being in Washington," he continued. Well, he is down here running against me all the time and somebody ought to be there.

No More Joint Debates. "I am as good a Democrat as Brinson is," he exclaimed when time was called.
