

CAPITALS HAVE THE POOREST WEEK YET

Loss Three Out of Four Games and Drop From First Place

Last week was the most disastrous the Raleigh club has yet experienced, losing three out of the four games played—the first time that the locals have failed to at least break during a week's play.

The Capitals started the week tied with the Patriots for first place and with every prospect of stepping out in front and staying there. But as often happens they ran into one of those slumps that are inevitable in baseball.

Last week not only showed the smallest number of games won, but it also showed a smaller number of games played than during any other week in the season.

The Capitals and the fans are due a big week if rain does not again interfere. Danville, the club that has been a Jonah to the Capitals all the season will be here today and tomorrow and Ward has determined to take both.

The Capitals meet with the Twins in Winston-Salem for three games Wednesday and Thursday and will come home for another three game series with the Patriots Friday and Saturday.
