

BRYAN WORKING TO UPHOLD VOLSTEAD ACT IN CONGRESS

Refuses to Say Whether or Not He Will Go On Stump For Governor Cox

MAKES IT CLEAR THAT HE STILL IS DEMOCRAT

Engaged in Big Task of Pledging Candidates For Congress To Stand By Prohibition; Organization Working To Defeat Dry Amendment; Makes Some Headway

Washington, Sept. 6.—William Jennings Bryan came to Washington yesterday and every newspaper man and politician, both Democratic and Republican, went to the Hotel Lafayette to ask him if he were going to take the stump for Cox.

Mr. Bryan is not an idle man. In fact he is working as hard in this campaign as if he were a candidate himself. He is engaged in the task of pledging candidates for the Senate and Congress, irrespective of politics to uphold the Volstead act.

Neglect To Close Valve May Have Caused Mishap

Lieutenant Commander Cooke, of Ill-Fated Submarine S-5, Gives His Opinion As To Cause of Sinking of Undersea Craft and Endangering of Lives of Officers and Crew; Commends Splendid Spirit of Men and Heroic Work of Rescuers

Philadelphia, Sept. 6.—According to an unofficial report received here today, Lieutenant Commander Charles M. Cooke, in his testimony on board the battleship Ohio in the preliminary inquiry, is of the belief that neglect to close the main induction valve, was responsible for the sinking of the submarine S-5 off the Delaware coast last week.

Work Meritorious. "It would be most difficult to make citations of exceptional merit in the general sense of duty shown by the men at this time. The captain of the Albatross carried out to the letter the best traditions of the sea in his discovery and investigation of our distress signals and his heroic rescue. Chief Engineer Grace of the Goethals, worked unflinchingly for eight hours with ratchet and breast drill to cut through the side of the S-5 and effect our rescue."

DEMPESEY KNOCKS OUT MISKE IN 3RD ROUND WITH BLOW TO CHIN

TEN PERSONS DEAD AS RESULTS OF COLLISION

Denver, Col., Sept. 6.—Eight persons were killed and upwards of fifty were injured near Globeville, a suburb, this afternoon when an out-bound special train on the Denver and Interurban Railway, carrying pleasure-seekers to Eldorado Springs, Colorado, a mountain resort, crashed into a heavily loaded interurban train coming to Denver from Boulder, Colorado.

World's Heavyweight Boxing Champion Demonstrates He Still Retains His Terrific Hitting Power

THREE HARD SMASHES SUFFICIENT TO BEAT ST. PAUL HEAVYWEIGHT

Seventeen Thousand People Watch Battle at Benton Harbor, Michigan, Being One of Most Orderly Crowds That Ever Witnessed Championship Bout; Miske Declares Dempsey Unbeatable and Says No Heavyweight Can Stand Up Under His Powerful Blows; Champion Displays Old Fighting Spirit; Bill Tate and Sam Langford Stage Serio-Comic Affair

At the start of the first, his first in 14 months, Dempsey peeled off the same worn and patched red sweater that he wore when he knocked out Jess Willard. His face wore the same fighting frown, he danced about the ring with old-time light-footedness, and finished up by looking the fight in the third round, just as he did at Toledo. The third round went one minute and thirteen seconds.

Ends in Third. Miske went down three times in the less than two and one-half rounds of fighting. In the second he measured his length on the floor for the count of five. In the fatal third round he was cornered under a rain of lefts and rights to the stomach and chin, the challenger took the count of nine, and had just regained his feet when Dempsey, carefully measuring his distance, snatched the bout with a right-hand punch to the chin.

The fight was watched by one of the most orderly crowds on record at championship match. Women in bright clothing were scattered in the audience from the ring-side to the back fence, where they perched along the wicked barbed wires and outdoors some of the signboards in attracting attention.

Delayed special trains had back the fight, and in the confusion of the long wait, Miske, first into the ring, slipped through the crowd, scarcely being noticed. A messenger from the champion's camp presently arrived to inquire whether the challenger was in the ring. This formality of the squared circle was all the messenger liked back to Dempsey's camp, while Miske waited ten minutes for the champion, who my drew an ovation as he marched through the crowd. Miske's fighting togs bore his initials elaborately embroidered in silk on the left leg. Dempsey had the regular red, white and blue costume.

Miske Lands First Blow. Miske was pale, his forehead wrinkled and his lips pressed tight as he sprang to meet Dempsey with the opening gong. He landed the first blow. Both challenger and champion measured each other with a cautious tattoo of lefts and rights, none of them seeming to punish much. The crowd yelled at Dempsey to speed it up, and Miske grinned and threw a cross left to the jaw and followed with a right to the stomach that fairly boomed with its solid impact. Miske backed away and covered up, without showing signs of distress. Dempsey finished the session by feinting with a left to Miske's wind and following with a right to the head.

Despite shouts from his handlers to take all the rest he could, Miske struggled up at the count of five and backed away, covering his stomach. Dempsey rushed and Miske slipped in for a clinch, but the champion kept one arm free and evaded three sharp arm blows on the chin. Stepping free, he swung with his left in a feint, and Miske recoiled before the blow which never landed.

Miske came up strong in the third, and fighting desperately with his teeth gritted, he bared in with a rapid exchange, landing a right to the body, but his speed proved his weakness, going, for he failed to cover his weakest spot, the body. Dempsey matched speed for speed and the round was still young when his swift traveling left challenger went down. At the count of three he was on his knees, but plainly suffering from the punishment, and he took the full count of nine before coming up.

Right Swing Ends Round. As Miske struggled to his feet, Dempsey stepped back, carefully measuring his distance, and bored upward with a right-hand swing that landed square on Miske's chin. The challenger fell like a log, lying partly under the ropes and with Dempsey standing over him, was counted out in his own corner. At the count of ten the victor raised
