

CITY FARM TO BE LEASED OR SOLD

City Commissioners Adopt Mayor's Recommendations Regarding Property

The City Commissioners, by a vote of two to one, yesterday adopted the recommendations of Mayor T. B. Eldridge to abandon the City farm as a municipal enterprise at the end of the present year.

A. H. Mooneyham, Commissioner of Public Safety, under whose direction the farm has been operated, asked last Friday when the recommendations were submitted that the matter be deferred in order that he might have time to prepare data bearing on his view that the farm should be retained.

The mayor's plan, which is contained in eight specific recommendations, contemplates the ultimate sale of the land for industrial purposes at a price of $1,000 for a single acre and at a lease price for larger tracts, a portion of the proceeds to be expended in the erection of a spur track to the property and the remainder converted into the city's sinking fund.

CALIFORNIA SOUVENIRS NOW AT RANEY LIBRARY

Bones of Extinct Animals and Other Specimens Collected By Dr. Knowlton

Dr. Millard Knowlton of the United States public health service, now connected with the North Carolina State board of health, who recently returned from San Francisco, where, with Dr. W. S. Rankin, he attended the meeting of the American Public Health Association, exhibited in the Olivia Raney Library several interesting specimens of the natural life of California which he collected on this trip.

A tarantula of insidiously ferocity even in death is displayed conspicuously on one of the library tables; beside him are some trigs from the California live oak with their almost infusible leaves, in striking contrast to the oak with which one is familiar in this part of the country.

These are said to be parts either of mammoths living from three to four hundred thousand years ago, or perhaps of the sabre-tooth tiger which in the Pleistocene period was a denizen of California. Or they may even be some of the remains of camels which lived in the Western States too long ago to talk about, or perhaps, even of the aboriginal horse, believed to have originated in America.

One of the interesting things in connection with these bones being exhibited at the library is that unlike many remains of extinct animals these are not fossils, but actual bones, having been preserved by the oil in the asphalt pits.

It is believed that bones are found in these asphalt pits of California for the reason that the prehistoric beasts were in some way or other caught in the pits, and drowned in a black and sticky asphalt.

Dr. Knowlton talks interestingly of his trip to the American Public Health Association, particularly of the opposition which public health measures are meeting in California due to the large numbers of faddist sects of thought which exist there in such profusion.

SULGRAVE CELEBRATION OPENS AT NORFOLK, VA.

Erect Cross On Spot at Cape Henry Where Early Settlers Placed Cross

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 5.—An impressive feature of the Sulgrave celebration, which began here today in commemoration of the 300th anniversary of the first American legislative assembly, was the erection of a tall wooden cross on the spot at Cape Henry where the original settlers planted a cross in 1607.

This episode followed the opening address of the assemblage, which was delivered by Tanswell Taylor, of Norfolk, who referred to the historic days of the early seventeenth century as marking the genesis of a nation.

Following the opening ceremonies, the party adjourned to the Cape Henry casino, where an oyster roast had been prepared.

Lord Rathereidan responded to Mr. Roper's cordial welcome. Barton Myers, British vice-consul at Norfolk, spoke briefly following Lord Rathereidan. Dr. A. J. Bournau, representing the government of the Netherlands, spoke for the nation he represents in joining with America and Great Britain in celebrating these important events in the history of both nations.

WAYNE FAIR OPENS WITH BIG CROWDS

Mammoth Parade of Floats and Automobiles Features Its Beginning

Goldsboro, Oct. 5.—An autumn sun cast its benevolent rays upon happy throngs at the opening of the Wayne county fair today as they mingled for pleasure along the midway or as they studied intently the varied exhibits of farm produce, livestock and household articles.

The fall festival which continues through Friday was opened with a big parade through the principal streets this morning. Scores of beautiful floats vied with each other for prizes and hundreds of automobiles dropped into line, each gaily decorated.

Hammer and Turner dropped in to give airplane exhibits and pulled a new stunt or two. In the afternoon there were horse races for those that like this sport. Out on the midway there were fortunes to be told and the exhibit buildings were attractive displays of almost everything that can be raised, made or produced in this great section.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Jordan will be glad to learn that their little daughter, Cleo, is able to sit up after three weeks' illness.

PLEA FOR WATER ROUTE ALONG ATLANTIC COAST

Mayor of Philadelphia Says Continuous Route From Maine To Fla. Needed

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 5.—A plea for a continuous waterway between Maine and Florida was made by J. Hampton Moore, mayor of Philadelphia, at the opening session here today of the annual convention of the Atlantic Deep-sea Waterways Association.

"Commercial necessity and national defense alike call for the early completion of the plan fathered by George Washington for a continuous waterway trunk line along the Atlantic seaboard," he said.

"Between Massachusetts Bay and the North Carolina sounds there are but four narrow necks of lands to be cut through, Cape Cod, N. J., at its narrowest point, the Delaware-Maryland peninsula and the protective but low-lying area below Norfolk.

Below them is a continuous channel of thoroughfares easily made navigable all the way down to the southern tip of Florida. There remains as the largest single section of the improvement a new waterway across New Jersey to replace the old Delaware and Raritan canal."

LOUISBURG ROAD TO BE IMPROVED

Wake County Commissioners Order Work Started On "Air Line" Route

The Wake county commissioners yesterday authorized the immediate beginning of work upon the Raleigh-Louisburg road with a view to placing that portion of the road between Raleigh and the Wake county line in first class condition.

The repair of this road will link up the "air line" route from Raleigh to Richmond, via Roanoke, Louisa, Warrenton and Good's Ferry. This route effects a saving in mileage of approximately twelve miles to Louisa, twenty-five miles to Warrenton and over fifty miles to Richmond and it is anticipated that considerable traffic will be diverted from the heavily burdened road via Wake Forest, Franklinton and Henderson.

The proposition was advocated before the commissioners by J. M. Broughton, M. A. Rushton and W. L. Wyatt of the Raleigh Chamber of Commerce and a committee from the Louisa Chamber of Commerce. Petitions were also presented from over two hundred residents of Roanoke and vicinity.

The commissioners yesterday appointed commissioners Eli T. Scarborough and J. J. Howard a committee of two with power to employ another special motorcycle officer to patrol the highway of the county. Deputy Sheriff W. E. Mangum reported to the board that between September 15 and October 1, he had reported 225 offenders to Justice of the Peace J. E. Owens. Practically all of the offenders have paid fines of $25 and costs, each.

The English prayer book has remained virtually unchanged since 1662.
