

BAILEY SPEAKS TO FREMONT AUDIENCE

Enthusiastic Welcome Given Raleigh Man and Col. John D. Langston

Fremont, Oct. 7.—Two entertaining and interesting Democratic speeches were made in Fremont last night by J. W. Bailey, of Raleigh, and Col. John D. Langston, of Goldsboro. Mr. Bailey motored over to Fremont from Goldsboro, where Tuesday he delivered an address at the Wayne county fair and was given a tremendous ovation by hundreds in attendance at the Wayne event.

The audience that greeted the two speakers in Fremont was different from audiences of past campaigns, there being about as many women present as men and the women in this neck of the woods are taking a lively interest in politics and have organized a campaign committee to see that every woman in the town has registered before the books close.

During the course of his remarks Mr. Bailey stated that some one had started a rumor to the effect that he was at odds with the Democratic party and was leaning toward the Republicans which the speaker branded as absolutely false, declaring that he was going to do all in his power to help swell the Democratic majority in the November election.

After the speaking a number of women declared they had not given much thought to registering but after hearing Democracy discussed in such masterly terms they felt it was their solemn duty to enter into the campaign with a vim and determination and to line up every available woman voter into the fray.

No Third Party Movement

The feature of the evening session was the address of Mrs. Maud Wood Park, of Boston, who during the time that the 19th Amendment was before Congress was in charge of suffrage headquarters in Washington, and who is now chairman of the National League of Women Voters.

Charming and eloquent, Mrs. Park urged the women who crowded the hall to hear her, to join the political party of their choice, and satisfactorily stilled whatever doubts may have been lurking here and there as to the eventual development of the League of Women Voters into a separate woman's party by fully and emphatically denying any such aim.

"As soon as one duty is performed," said Mrs. Park, alluding to the ratification of the suffrage amendment, "another is begun, and it is now our task to make the most of ourselves as voters in the service of the nation."

The Business of this Store is Service!

TODAY, the progressive house of business knows that its success is wrapped up in the progress and welfare of the community it serves.

For Business is Service. And success means to give, just as much as it does to get.

Efficient merchandising, therefore, is no less a matter of ideals than of ideas.

A store of high character, that expresses refinement and beauty, both in its artistic structure and its wares, is a seed that sows a greater appreciation of the beautiful.

The use of higher grades of goods, whether of wearing apparel or articles for one's home, is not only justified by its material reward, but it reflects certain personal ideals which, like good books, good schools, fine roads and beautiful homes, are an influence toward civic pride and culture.

To visit Richmond, and this store, is to really know the big way in which our ideals are being developed. Reduced to their simplest terms, however, they consist of nothing more nor less than—

To Render a delightfully efficient service;
To Offer only dependable merchandise;
To Maintain right prices.
