

SAYS G.O.P. WILL CONTROL CONGRESS

Representative Fess, Republican Congressional Chairman, Makes Claims

EXPECTING TO GET MEMBER FROM N. C.

Declares Republicans Will Get One Congressman From Old North State; Predicts Safe Majorities In Both Houses of Congress; Renowned Statement of Claims

Columbus, O., Oct. 20.—When the next Congress convenes, the Republican majorities in both houses will show large increases, according to a pre-election statement issued here tonight by Congressman Simon D. Fess, of Ohio, chairman of the National Republican Congressional committee.

His forecast, based on an analysis of reports from all Congressional districts in the country, is that the Republican margin in the House will be increased from 45 to at least 87, and that of the Senate from 2 to a minimum of 11, and possibly 17, giving that body a "safe" working majority.

According to Fess' estimate, the next House will have in its membership not less than 251 Republicans and not more than 174 Democrats, and the Senate will be composed of from 60 to 66 Republicans and from 24 to 30 Democrats.

In making this forecast, Congressman Fess declared that, so far as the House is concerned, 27 states are included in the "sure" Republican column. He estimated these states will return 230 Representatives.

One Member From N. C. In doubtful states with Republican leanings, among which he included Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri and Colorado, Mr. Fess predicted that 23 Republican Congressmen will be elected; three doubtful states with Democratic leanings (Nevada, Arizona, Oklahoma, Montana and New Mexico), and five members from certain Democratic States, including Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Texas, Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas.

Mr. Fess said that the Republican gain of 20 in the certain Republican States will result from gains of one member each in Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Michigan, Illinois and Nebraska; two members each in California, Kansas and Ohio, and three members each in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York. He claimed that three additional Republicans will be elected from Missouri and one each from Tennessee and North Carolina.

The eleven Southern States, classed as certainly Democratic, are figured in Chairman Fess' estimate as sending 89 Democratic members to the House. Seven other Democratic Congressmen, Mr. Fess said, will be elected from doubtful States with Democratic leanings, and fourteen Democrats will be elected from doubtful States with Republican leanings.

Added to these, Mr. Fess stated, will be 23 Democratic Congressmen from strong Republican States, making a conceded total Democratic membership of 143.

Forty-One Doubtful. Forty-one Congressional districts are placed in the doubtful column by Mr. Fess. "Conceding the entire list of forty-one doubtful districts to the Democrats, this would give them 174 members in the House of Representatives," Mr. Fess said. Listed in Chairman Fess' doubtful group of districts are:

Republican States: One Massachusetts district; four in New York; one in Pennsylvania; five in Ohio; one in Indiana; two in Illinois; one in Wisconsin (Victor Berger); three in Minnesota; one in South Dakota; one in Washington; one in California.

Democratic States: Two in Virginia; four in North Carolina; one in Alabama; one in Tennessee and two in Texas.

Doubtful States: One in Maryland; two in Kentucky; three in Missouri; one in Colorado; one in New Mexico, and two in Oklahoma.

Certain Republican Senatorial gains are predicted by Mr. Fess to result in the Maryland, Kentucky, South Dakota, Idaho and California elections. Senate races in Arizona and Colorado, he said, present better than an even chance for Republican success, while in Nevada and Oregon, change from Democrat to Republican Senators is considered by him as an even chance.

is about to tax them to death." "The State is of course, cutting off all tax on property and putting it on incomes and this is where John Motley Morehead horns in," he added. "His business is to alarm business and he gets all the money he wants from the fifteen million to help do it."

Montgomery is a miniature edition of North Carolina. It is mountainous and Republican in the West and strongly Democratic in the East. The leaders expect a strong majority for the constitutional amendments and from five to seven hundred majority for the ticket. The registration of women exceeds that of men.

MISSISSIPPI AGGIES WIN.

Starkeville, Miss., Oct. 30.—Mississippi A. & M. today defeated University of Tennessee 13 to 7, in game marked by spectacular play by both eleven. The forward passing and end running of the Aggies and the defensive play of the Tennesseans were features.

LOUISIANA UNIVERSITY WINS

Baton Rouge, La., Oct. 30.—Louisiana State University defeated Mississippi College, 41 to 7, here today. The Mississippians, much lighter than the Tigers, were outplayed from start to finish.

SEARCHERS HEAD RESIGN.

Searchers, Pa., Oct. 30.—Dr. Joseph Swain, for 19 years president of Swarthmore College, tendered his resignation today at the founders day exercises, to take effect June 30, 1921. Illness caused his action, he said. Dr. Swain is sixty-three years of age. No successor has been selected.

TENNIS STARS TO GO TO AUSTRALIA

United States Davis Cup Players Leave Vancouver Nov. 12; Program

New York, Oct. 30.—Complete plans for the trip of the American Davis cup tennis teams to New Zealand for the challenge round for the International trophy were announced here today.

The team will leave Vancouver on the "Niagara" November 12, going direct to Auckland. There they will have an opportunity for about three weeks' practice before the opening round, which will be played at the end of December.

Sometime ago the Australasian association requested the United States association to permit the team to visit Australia after the New Zealand engagement, and with the agreement of the players making the trip, this has been arranged. The tour will be similar to the one made by the Australasian when they visited the United States in 1919.

Dates proposed are as follows: January 13, 14 and 15, at Melbourne against Australia or Victoria. January 20, 21, and 22, at Adelaide against South Australia. January 27, 28 and 29, at Sydney against Australia.

William T. Tilden, 2nd, who was obliged to withdraw from the series of exhibition matches, which had been arranged in October, has benefited by the rest and is remaining in good condition. He leaves on Tuesday with Watson Washburn, fourth member of the team, for San Francisco, where an exhibition match will be played November 6. On November 9 and 10 this team will play in Portland and Seattle.

The route for the team's return has not been determined, although it is expected they will be back in the United States some time next March. Invitations have been received for them to play in Shanghai and Singapore, and they may possibly make the homeward journey by way of some of the Oriental ports, instead of returning direct from Australia.

Gov. Cox Predicts Victory For Cause of Peace Tuesday

money had been brutally used" in efforts to intimidate ministers who have advocated the League.

In presenting economic arguments for the League, the Governor, in his Gary speech, predicted "smokeless chimneys" there and throughout the nation should America stay out of the League. American membership he asserted, would bring "an unprecedented era of prosperity" through restoration of European credit and purchasing power.

In his Coliseum speech tonight the Governor attacked especially Senator Harding's statement at Des Moines, that "we must consecrate ourselves to the welfare of America and not of the rest of the world."

"Applied to individuals it is the doctrine of egotism," said the governor. "Applied to nations it is the doctrine of isolation. And in both cases it is the doctrine of selfishness. To talk glibly about 'America only' as if that were what patriotism means, is as foolish as it is false. That kind of patriotism is cheap and spurious patriotism."

"The true patriot wants his country to be first in service, not first in selfishness. More than that it is the negotiation of the New Testament and the Old Testament as well." The Biblical stories of the Good Samaritan and the Sudducee lawyer were cited by the Governor as arguments for national helpfulness and not selfishness.

Christ and the Hecker. "You will recall," said the candidate, "when the Founder of Christianity was preaching to a vast crowd beside the sea of Galilee. In the midst of the sermon he was interrupted by a heckler in the audience. The evangelist in his report of the meeting says that 'a certain lawyer' in order to trap the speaker, asked him: 'Who is my neighbor?'"

"Christ's answer, given on the spur of the moment, with a flash of genius, silenced the Sudducee lawyer—and the Sudducee lawyer of the first century constituted the reactionary party of special privileges."

Continuing with the story of the Good Samaritan, Governor Cox said: "Broken and bleeding Europe is today like the wayfarer on the road to Jericho. If you tell me that America, like the selfish Levite, should turn her back on this tragic scene and seek only her own safety and comfort, I will tell you that you are libelling and slandering the America in which I believe."

"We must bind up the wounds, and by cooperation so stabilize political and economic conditions that the wounded world can speedily recover."

Cox's Great Oration. A great oration was given the Governor when he arrived at the Coliseum, where seats had been provided for 11,000 persons. The demonstration lasted 15 minutes.

The platform from which Governor Cox spoke was almost on the spot where Senator Lodge of Massachusetts presided over the Republican convention and the convention sounding board over the speaker's platform also was used tonight.

"I bring you the message from thirty-five States," Governor Cox began, "that the Hindenburg Line formed by the Senatorial Oligarchy and the interests of special privilege which six months ago was thought to be impregnable, has been smashed."

Refers to Convention. Referring to the Republican convention Governor Cox said: "The candidate of the reactionaries was not nominated in this hall."

Declaring that Senator Harding was chosen in a nearby hotel, Governor Cox added that the delegates "were permitted to rally, and they did without any reservation."

The crowd laughed and cheered the Governor's immediate attack upon his opponent and also an attack upon the Republican platform which, he said, "ratified the Senatorial conspiracy" by praising the Republican Senators "involved. The name of Senator Lodge, was hissed and 'boomed' loudly when the Governor reiterated his 'conspiracy' charge against the Senator. Names of other Republican Senators de-announced by the Governor for signing the "round robin" also were hissed. "Hit 'em again, Jimmy," the crowd shouted frequently as the Governor fired his shots at Senator Harding and others prominent, he said, in "the Senatorial Oligarchy."

Prolonged Demonstrations. Prolonged demonstrations were given the Governor's statement on the Irish question.

He said that yesterday at Cincinnati Senator Harding had declared he would not submit the Senate the treaty as now drafted. "The President has no right to change all the nations and the President has no right to change the President," Governor Cox read to the audience from a copy of the Bible the story of the Good Samaritan when he gave the parable among his league arguments. It was the first time, the candidate said, that he made such use of a Bible during his campaign meetings.

to secure peace in the eastern hemisphere as in the western and to spare future generations of Americans from the necessity of laying down lives abroad to save mankind from military domination.

"We have won the argument for peace. We have won it despite the fact that an absolutely clean and fair campaign on our part has been conducted in the face of a campaign that bore every other semblance but fairness and cleanliness."

Tactics of Campaign. "The Democratic campaign leader then reviewed 'tactics our candidates have been forced to meet,' ending what he termed his final statement, with the following paragraph:

"These are but a few of the unfair and unscrupulous methods used to arrest the onward march of the cause espoused by Democracy. They have failed. In that failure I have the satisfaction of knowing that the Democratic campaign has been clean, fair, above board and American. I have, and my associates have, never hit below the belt. We have proclaimed and advocated the greatest moral issue in the history of this country. We go to the nation with clean hands and clean hearts to request and to receive the victory that means world peace, domestic progress and individual prosperity."

Meanwhile, with rival headquarters clearing decks for the campaign climax next Tuesday, Republican and Democratic candidates taking first place on the ballots addressed to voters pleas for support.

Harding and Cox Close. The presidential candidates—Senator Harding and Governor Cox—wound up their campaign travels in the West. The Senator chose Columbus as the city in which he would deliver his last address before election day, while his opponent ended his election activities with an old-fashioned torchlight parade in Chicago, and an address at the Coliseum where his rival was nominated.

The vice-presidential candidates elected the East for their final election addresses—Boston for Coolidge and New York for Roosevelt.

Christensen Out West. Farley P. Christensen, Presidential candidate of the Farmer-Labor party, running with Max Hays, today carried his campaign into the State of Washington. Although his ticket mate, Eugene V. Debs, was forced to conduct a unique campaign in the form of statements issued from behind prison walls, Seymour Steadman, vice-presidential choice of the Socialist party, carried his appeal for votes personally throughout the country.

Leigh Colvin, leaders on the Prohibition ticket, and Robert C. MacAuley and Richard C. Barnum, Single Tax candidates, also have carried on their campaigns aggressively.

And while Presidential candidates today were matching plea with plea for the right to occupy the White House for the next four years, the present occupant cast his vote. Neither President nor Mrs. Wilson went to Princeton, where they are registered, but mailed their ballots to New Jersey.

countrymen to nobler thoughts and higher purpose and finer conscience. Says He's a Free Man. "One thing rather personal I cannot resist. Ohio knows as the count knows how I was nominated. Ohio knows how free I am. Ohio knows as the country knows that no group, no interests, no sections brought about my nomination. I haven't a pre-convention pledge to anybody in America. I didn't make a promise to anybody inside or outside the convention during its sitting and I haven't made a promise since the convention except to the American people."

"And there is another report I want to make. I accepted my commission as a party standard bearer last July 22, and assumed the burden with confidence utterly unafraid. I am closing

THREE DEMOCRATIC RALLIES SATURDAY

J. M. Broughton Discusses Party Achievements at Garner

Three Democratic mass meetings featured the campaign in Wake County last night, and with the meetings to be held Monday, the campaign in Wake County is at an end.

"Before the war the Democrats put more constructive laws on the statute books than had been there in twenty-five years before," said Mr. J. M. Broughton, speaking last night in the Garner school house to a good crowd of Democrats of St. Mary's township.

The Raleigh lawyer declared that party law has characterized American government from its beginning and that the American people have elected eight Democratic Presidents and eight Republican Presidents despite the assertion of the Republicans that there have been ten Republicans and eight Democrats. The other two Republican Presidents he said, were those who served out unexpired terms. He briefly reviewed the records of Jackson, Cleveland and other noted Democrats in urging that another Democrat be placed in the White House.

He sketched the limited voting privileges of many countries where the right of the ballot is conditioned on whether one be a member of either the aristocracy or plutocracy in telling his hearers what a rare privilege the "right of the ballot" is in voting.

Mr. Broughton was followed by St. Victor H. E. Norris who gave the St. Mary's people an interesting exposition of the essential features of Revaluation and the Income Tax amendment. He read figures, recited a poem and sketched the picture of the woman duped by a man who under the Revaluation program would have been opposed, his taxes were reduced 90 cents when he expected an increase.

He pictured in plain language and proved with figures that the farmer who voted against the Income Tax Amendment was simply "cutting his hand, he said, was changed from $7,000 to $10,000 he thought that it must of course necessarily imply that he would pay much more tax but that when he discovered a difference of 90 cents in his favor he was converted to revaluation.

FIRE DESTROYS ENGINE ROOM AT OIL FACTORY

Red Springs, Oct. 30.—Fire last night completely destroyed the engine room, coke room and linter room of the Morgan Oil and Fertilizer company, a loss of $40,000. The damage almost entirely covered by insurance. The cause of the fire was a hot box in the linter room. Quick work on the part of firemen and citizens saved the seed house, meal house and gin house.

A hurray call for assistance was sent to Maxton shortly after 10 o'clock and the fire department, under Chief Leonard, responded in a truck, making the run to Red Springs in 20 minutes. The mill was running to full capacity and it is hoped to start the ginney on Monday. The officers of the company are: J. A. Jones, president; W. O. Bennett, vice president; J. T. McNeill, secretary.

NEGROES CAUGHT WITH WHISKEY AND A GUN

Ed Alston and John Jeffreys

Get In Trouble When Arrested For Speeding

Ed Alston and John Jeffreys-Zebulon negroes, were arrested yesterday afternoon by Special Traffic Deputy Z. E. Broadwell on the Zebulon road below Milburnia where a large pistol was found on Alston and three gallons of whiskey in possession of Jeffreys. Alston is held on five charges: exceeding the speed limit, transporting whiskey, carrying a concealed weapon and driving an automobile while under the influence of whiskey.

The negroes were arrested when the officer was attracted by the noise which the machine made with its muffler off. They admitted to speeding but denied that they had any weapons or whiskey. A search proved otherwise. Mr. J. H. Faggett was deputized to help bring the men to Raleigh. Their bonds were fixed by Justice of the Peace at $600 for Alston and $500 for Jeffreys. Neither gave bonds and were remanded to jail to be given a preliminary hearing before Justice Owens Wednesday.

It was decided by a unanimous vote to raise funds for the construction of a State College cottage at Blue Ridge, the meeting place of the Southern Y. M. C. A. Conference. Members present pledged $228.50.

Mr. Allen, of the city Y. M. C. A., closed the meeting with a few remarks on Christian Life.

POLITICAL CAMPAIGN IN ILLINOIS CLOSES

Chicago, Oct. 30.—The Illinois political campaign closed tonight with candidates of both major parties confident of victory Tuesday.

Managers of former Senator James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic nominee for governor, predicted he would carry the State by 60,000, and that Cook county, stronghold of Mayor William Hale Thompson, of Chicago, would give him an advantage of 85,000 votes.

Backers of Len Small, Republican nominee, were certain, however, that their candidate, who is supported by Mayor Thompson, would defeat Lewis by at least 250,000 votes.

Alabama Beats Swaneau. Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 30.—Led by the tearing full back Egan Stevenson, the Alabama Crimson this afternoon duplicated their feat of last year and defeated their greatest rivals, Swaneau Tigers, by a score of 21 to 0. But for penalties Alabama would have had at least three touchdowns more.

INVESTIGATION OF MARINE DISASTER

Seventeen Members of Concrete Cape Fear Still Missing; Blame Captain

Providence, R. I., Oct. 30.—A death list of 17 men was reported here today by the survivors of the concrete steamer Cape Fear, which went down in a deep part of Narragansett Bay after collision off Newport last night with the Savannah liner City of Atlanta. This was two less than the probable number of dead previously reported, water tenders Michael Hanley and William Reynolds, both of New York, having been picked up and brought here with the other survivors on the City of Atlanta.

Investigation of the manner in which the steamers came together, and of the suddenness with which the concrete vessel went down, was begun immediately after the arrival of the survivors, by steamboat inspectors, and officials of the Shipping Board, which owned the Cape Fear.

Captain Bertram H. Carfield, of the Savannah liner, placed the blame for the collision on Captain A. Higgins, of Booth Bay Harbor, Maine, master of the Cape Fear. He claims that the concrete steamer ran across his bow after she had signalled acknowledgement of the City of Atlanta's signal that the latter was going to pass to port.

Captain Higgins, who was injured in the accident, said he could not discuss the matter at this time. The Cape Fear went down within three minutes of the collision, according to members of her crew.

The impact virtually crumpled her concrete hull in pieces, they said, chips being struck off in all directions, much as if falling on the City of Atlanta's hull. The Cape Fear sank, cutting her almost in two.

A few of the crew of the concrete steamer were caught below, but most of them either were pulled aboard the City of Atlanta by ropes, or jumped into the water. Some of the latter were able to swim clear, but others were caught in the section of the sinking vessel.

The spot where the Cape Fear went down is 150 feet deep, in the main ship channel to Newport. Search for bodies and wreckage was unsuccessful today.
