

University Basketball Team Wins State Honors For 1921

Play Off In Trinity Series Results In Victory For Carolina By Score of 55 To 18

WINNERS DISPLAY GREAT TEAM WORK AND AGILITY

State College, Only Team To Stand Off Carolina, Does Not Dispute Championship

Literally running away from and around the Trinity quint, the basketball team representing the University of North Carolina last night won the play off in their series with the Methodist team by the score of 55 to 18, and won their way to the undisputed championship of the State.

The only stain on the record of the championship quint is their defeat at the hands of State College last Wednesday night, which made their series with that institution stand one all. However, State has freely acknowledged the University's claim to championship honors.

However, the team which won last night did not resemble in the slightest the vanquished outfit of Wednesday night. Pounding, dribbling, goal shooting, speed, bomb-proof defense, close team work and brilliant individual play were all exhibited in a high degree.

The Trinity five is a real basketball team. Anyone who has seen it in action against any other opponent can have no possible mental reservation on that subject, but its shining light was sadly dimmed last night and the best efforts of the Methodists resulted only in holding the score down to fairly respectable figures.

Individual stars were not in evidence, though Carmichael was easily the most conspicuous. He made the most of his opportunities and made him look something like a wooden pole and scored eight field goals in the thirty minutes he lasted before being counted out via the personal foul route as the result of over-aggressiveness.

Shepherd counted seven times and Erwin five, while Hanby, the low score man for the University, rolled in a couple during the ten minutes he officiated at the pivot position.

Crute, the tall forward, was the one bright spot in the sinking Trinity sun. He scored three times from the floor, two of the baskets resulting from pretty shots, while the same lad made good six of his nine shots from fouls.

The Carolina team relied on a remarkable passing ability and shot only when well under the basket, while Trinity was forced to shoot wild and recklessly, often taking chances from mid floor.

The line-up and summary:
Carolina—55. Trinity—18.

boys. Since there were no finer boys anywhere the people generally conceded that his four reasons were sufficient.

I have attempted to give in a brief way a resume of the trials and tribulations of this editor and of his wonderful achievements for his State. If I had recalled every instance in which he wielded his pen in the cause of right and of humanity, it would have taken a book to have contained them. Though I have often shuddered when I found I was about to hurl a thunderbolt, and though I have not always agreed with him, I think I can truly say that he has done a service to his State which is not overshadowed by that of any of her great men since the Civil War.

Harding Spends Busy Day Making Plans For Future

TRANSFER OF AUTHORITY COMPLETED DURING DAY

Washington, March 5.—The transfer of administrative authority from Democratic to Republican hands was completed today with the swearing in of the members of President Harding's cabinet.

The ceremonies took place in the various executive departments in the presence of retiring members of the Wilson cabinet, bureau chiefs and invited guests.

Announcement also was made that Major General March would continue temporarily as chief of staff of the War Department.

Secretary Denby, after a conference with the President, announced that Major General Lejeune would continue as commandant of the Marine Corps, and that the rank of major general would be recommended for the former commandant, George Barnett, who reverted to his regular rank of brigadier general when he was relieved last summer of command of the corps.

As is the custom where there is a change of administrations, the chief assistants in the various departments whose terms of office expired with the Wilson administration have tendered their resignations, but many of them will continue in office for a time.

Among those who have resigned are William M. Williams, of this city, commissioner of internal revenue, and James H. Moyle, of Salt Lake City, Utah, an assistant secretary of the Treasury.

Besides the numerous appointments to be made to other departments, the new administration also is to recommend to congress promotions for a number of army officers. Secretary Weeks desires to study carefully the list of such promotions which failed of confirmation by the last senate before it is re-submitted. He said today he would investigate the record of each officer.

YALE MAKES NEW RELAY WORLD SWIMMING RECORD

Philadelphia, March 5.—The Yale University relay swimming team made a new world record today when it defeated the University of Pennsylvania quarter in the 800 foot relay race, negotiating the distance in 2 minutes and 22 seconds.

The bronze equestrian statue of Louis XIV, demolished in 1792, contained 60,000 pounds.

Power Bill Dies In Lower Branch By Single Vote

Wolfs of Gaston composed the action of the cotton mills. In endeavoring to take the case away from the Corporation Commission to "shoot the stakeholder in a poker game when a player is losing." He declared that the mill interests back of the bill were very much more powerful than the power companies in the State, and were making use of the most extensive lobby that had ever appeared in the city of Raleigh.

Thurs closed the debate. He invoked the decision of the supreme court which declared that the power companies of the state were under the jurisdiction of the Corporation Commission, and that under that ruling there is no contract, that all existing contracts had been abrogated. "Show me a contract and I will vote for your bill" he declared again and again.

Martin exhibited a document which he declared was a contract bearing the name of J. B. Duke and L. Banks Holt, when he arose to conclude the debate. He declared the purpose of the bill was not to abridge the powers of the Corporation Commission, but to write something into the law that ought to have been written when it was first passed in 1912.

On the question of adopting the minority report and placing the bill on the calendar, the vote, with pairs, stood as follows:

Ayes—Speaker Oriez, Barnes of Johnston, Bennett, Burt, Byrd, Clement, Coffee, Coleman, Cooke, Coughenour, Cowles, Dees, Everett of Richmond, Erwin, Glover, Gosney, Grady, Graham of Orange, Hall, Hamilton, Hill, Holderby, Honeycutt, Jenkins, Johnson of Currituck, Johnston of Pender, Jones, Kennedy, Lane, Lawrence, Lee, Linney, Martin, Matthews of Bertie, Monroe, Morris of Wayne, Newby, Pennington, Rose, Shaw, Spencer, Taylor of Halifax, Taylor of Vance, Tucker, Urzell, Walker, Walton, Williams, Williamson, Wright and Young.

Noes—Austin, Barnes of Hertford, Barshall, Bell, Bellamy, Blackwelder, Bolton, Bowie, Bradley, Brown, Bryant, Bundy, Butt, Christopher, Clarke, Cline, Connor, Cooper, Cox, Darden, Dawson, Donnell, Doughton, Esley, Everett of Durham, Essall, Fisher, Fuller, Gaston, Gibbs, Graham of Graham, Grant, Henderson, Hendricks, Hicks, King, Leah, Limerick, McBea, Matthews of Mecklenburg, Melvin, Moore, McSwain, Neal, Owen, Person, Phear, Riddings, Rogers, Smith of Brunswick, Smith of Pitt, Swan, Templeton, Townsend, Whitaker, White, Wolts, and Ward.

Owen's "Widder Woman"

The morning session started off with a resurrection of "my old widder woman," by Representative Owen of Sampson, she being the widow of a veteran to whom the member had endeavored to appropriate $1000 early in the session. She has been bobbing up all during the session. Mr. Owen letting no occasion escape to inquire, "What you going to do for my old widder woman" whenever appropriations were up.

Yesterday it was on a measure to put on the pension roll an old negro patriarch who had served through the war with his master, and when the matter was killed toward the end, through the difficulties brought the body back to be buried among his own people. The House was for pensioning the old darkey, for whom there is no law, since he was not a citizen and could not enlist. Mr. Owen was thunderous in his protests, but the House voted for the old negro. He is from Henderson county, and goes on the rolls fourth class.

Falls To Reconsider

After the flurry, Mr. Connor moved to reconsider the vote by which the House killed the proposed amendment to the constitution limiting the State indebtedness. The House was apparently determined when it voted on Friday night, and the Connor motion was won by a vote of 44 to 46, and any effort to limit the State debt or to remove the limitations of the State's ability to pay is dead for the session.

Two set speeches, among the best that have been heard at the session were delivered by Mr. Everett, of Richmond, and Mr. Murphy when the bill authorizing bond issues for the permanent improvements of the State institutions came up. Both placed their arguments on a broad appeal to the intelligence and humanity of the State, and, rare event for the rushed closing days of the session, both were vigorously applauded during their addresses.

"I am prepared to go in any length for these institutions," declared Mr. Everett in closing, "but two years from now, we expect the heads of the institutions to come to us with an account of their stewardship. While I would not attack any of these institutions, I now and here serve notice that if we do not get a dollar's value for a dollar spent, I am going after the institutional heads with a tomahawk."

The bill passed by a 103 to 1 vote, none but Spence of Randolph gaining the distinction of opposition.

Machinery Act Passes

Then Mr. Doughton brought the machinery act, carrying in it the answer to the cry for a reduction in property values, and it passed with scarcely a quiver of interest in the very sections of it that have been most feared. No amendments were offered to that feature, the House taking the word of the Old Tiger that it was correct, and the best that could be done.

Efforts to amend the section that imposes penalties for the non-payment of taxes and awards reductions for prompt payment were killed. Mr. Bowie led the fight for the amendment to the law as it has stood from time immemorial. The Barshall amendment to reduce the property exemption from taxation from $500 to $100 was killed overwhelmingly and the House recessed for an hour to eat.

Downs Senate Changes

Giving ear to the Everett-Doughton plea to cut the appropriations garment to fit the revenue cloth, the House last night struck out of the Committee Appropriations bill the Senate addition providing an extra quarter of a million dollars Confederate pensions to be paid out of the general fund.

With the amendment strikes out, the House, without a dissenting voice, passed the entire bill and sent it back for Senate concurrence.

Tired as were the members of the House with a session that had lasted with but brief intermissions since 10 o'clock in the morning, the House waited for two hours of debate before it returned to the previous question

Richmond, declaring during all his years in the General Assembly he had not found a man "who measures up more fully to the definition of a statesman."

"All of these institutions are our children, the lame, the blind, the deaf, the dumb, the children in our schools, our insane—we are all members of one family and we cannot be unjust to any of them. We must deal equitably with all of them, and justly. It will not be just to take from one to give to another. . . . And, gentlemen, this is not a matter of politics, but it will be made so. If we have a deficit, we, of the majority, must account for it. And I believe, I know, that if we deal justly with all, if we deal equitably, if we live within our income our act will be justified by the people."

With the Appropriations bill out of the way Mr. Doughton brought up the Revenue Commission bill and it was passed without material discussion. The measure provides for the establishment of a City Tax Commission, composed of a State Revenue Commissioner, the chairman of the State Corporation Commission and the Attorney General. The Commission will have general oversight of the revenues of the State.

The Judiciary committee substitute for the workmen's compensation act was presented by Mr. Quickel, authorizing a commission of five, two recommended by the manufacturers, two by organized labor and the fifth to represent a disinterested viewpoint. The commission will study the compensation laws of other states and recommend to the next session of the General Assembly some form of compensation legislation. The measure was passed.
