Distinguished Divine Holds Up High Ideals to Graduating Class at St. Mary's

REFERS TO SUFFRAGE AS ADDED RESPONSIBILITY

Warns Students That Radical and Revolutionary Change May Result in Great Good or Great Harm; Program For Today a Full One; Luncheon To Alumnae

Taking as his text the words of the Christ "I am among you as he who serves," the Rev. Frederick F. Reese, D. D., Bishop of Georgia, yesterday placed before the graduates of St. Mary's School a high ideal of unselfish devotion to humanity in the annual baccalaureate sermon, which was delivered in the Chapel of the School.

Addressing himself particularly to the seventeen young ladies composing the graduating class, the bishop sought to impress upon them the importance of the occasion in their lives. He cited confirmation, the first communion, marriage and the embarking upon one's first enterprise in life as among the milestones of human experience and included graduation in this category.

Characterizing graduation from a church school as, in a measure, an act of consecration, Bishop Reese commended the authorities of the school for the custom of having the delivery of diplomas take place in the chapel rather than in the auditorium, where the other commencement exercises are held.

After speaking upon the responsibilities entailed upon them by reason of their unusual opportunities in life the bishop called the attention of the graduates to the fact that the responsibilities of womanhood have been lately increased.

Added Responsibilities
"You have received, you have taken added responsibilities, not greater ones God forbid than that, but additional ones, and you must now share in the responsibilities heretofore assumed by men," declared the bishop. "It is impossible for men to assume the glorious responsibilities of womanhood, but the State has seen fit to add to the burden of womanhood" he continued.

"If you use this added responsibility to purify and uplift our political life, much good will result from this radical and revolutionary change; if you do not, God has mercy on our Nation," was the warning conveyed by Bishop Reese.

Program For Today
The program for today includes Class Day exercises in the Grove at eleven o'clock; the Alumnae Luncheon at the Woman's Club at one o'clock; followed by the annual meeting of the Alumnae; the annual concert in the Auditorium at 8:30 o'clock; and the Rector's reception in the Parlor at 9:30 o'clock.

Honor guests at the luncheon at the Woman's club will be Miss Emilie McVee, of Sweetwater, Va., Miss Emilie Rose Knox, of Raleigh and Mrs. Curry Brown, of Washington, D. C., all of whom are alumnae of the school.

Miss McVee and Mrs. Brown will make the principal speeches of the occasion, while Miss Knox, who has recently been awarded a scholarship at the Paris Conservatory of Music and who has won several prizes in competition with some of the most noted violinists of the country will play several selections.

Miss Knox will be accompanied by her mother, who is also an Alumnae of the institution.

Miss Kate McKimmon, secretary of the association will also make a short talk at the luncheon, which will be attended by delegates from all portions of the State.

Officers of the Alumnae Association are Miss Beba Shields, Scotland Neck, president; Miss Susan Marshall, vice-president; Miss Kate McKimmon, secretary; Mrs. Ernest Opikshank, treasurer.

"THE TRUTH" AROUSING MUCH INTEREST HERE

A great deal of interest is being aroused over "The Truth," the play that is to be presented at the Academy of Music Friday night, by the Community Players, Raleigh's local dramatic organization. The Players established quite a reputation for themselves, when they presented "Green Stockings" to successful several months ago, both in Raleigh and Greenville, N. C., and they are determined that "The Truth" shall be put across in such a manner as to sustain their well earned reputation for worth while productions. The cast is composed of local stars, most of whom have gained popularity in previous performances, and they have worked hard and enthusiastically under the able guidance of Mr. William H. Jones and Mrs. W. W. Staniel, with the one end in view of giving to Raleigh theatregoers a real treat on Friday Night.

The local business establishments are co-operating in a generous manner, and will contribute much to the success of the play. Miss Elizabeth Thompson, Raleigh's well known interior decorator, has designed and executed the stage settings. Miss Hadie King has promised to furnish her most handsome gowns for the occasion, and Balger & Denton are to provide the millinery creations.

LOCAL CONTRACTOR SECURES BIG ROAD CONTRACT
P. B. Ashby, local Contractor, was awarded contract for five miles of hard-surface road in Florence County, South Carolina between Florence and Timmonsville. Work to begin within ten days. The contract will total about $227,000.00.

Licensed Embalmer
The name of Mr. Burtley R. Evans, of Raleigh, should have been included in the list of the successful applicants for license to practice embalming in North Carolina. Mr. Evans recently stood the examination before the State Board of Embalmers.

HOLD ORDINATION SERVICE IN CITY

Rev. H. S. Hartzell and Rev. J. L. Martin Ordained to Priesthood Yesterday

The Rev. H. S. Hartzell, of Smithfield, and the Rev. J. L. Martin, of Durham, were ordained to the priesthood of the Protestant Episcopal church by Bishop Joseph Blount Cheshire at an impressive ordination service held at Christ church yesterday morning. The Rev. Milton A. Barber, rector of Christ church, the Rev. I. McK. Pittenger, D. D., rector emeritus of the Church of the Good Shepherd, the Rev. Boston M. Backer, curate of Christ church, the Rev. J. K. Iglio, and the Rev. S. S. Root, rector of St. Philip's church, of Durham, assisted, the latter presenting the candidates to the bishop.

Preceding the ordination of the candidates, Bishop Cheshire made an address in which he outlined the duties of priests, the authority for the priesthood and the esteem in which these members of the clergy should be held. The bishop spoke on a text from the Fourth chapter of Epistle of St. Paul to the Ephesians, the 11th, 12th and 13th verses: "And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ. Till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ."

The bishop told of the setting apart of three orders in the church in the days of the apostles—bishops, priests and deacons—and said these have remained unchanged. He also told of the ordination of bishops by the apostles, who gave instructions as to the exercise of powers in church government. He characterized priests and members of the other orders as the channels through which God transmits His gifts "for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ."

In speaking of the duties of priests in the administration of the Holy Word and the administration of the Holy Things, Bishop Cheshire stressed the effectiveness of and necessity for the spoken word. The bishop, however, criticized what appears to be a demand for short sermons of 10 or 15 minutes in delivery.

"Some men who have a genius for preaching can say more in 10 or 15 minutes than many others can say in an hour, but they are few and are exceptions. The man who has a large part of the community before him and has the habit of sitting down after speaking 10 or 15 minutes displays an inadequate conception of his duties and opportunities." The bishop also stated there often appeared to be a lack of earnestness and fervent appeal from the pulpit, contrasting this with the fact that noted public speakers hold the attention of audiences although they do not always speak on subjects as weighty and inspiring as those expounded by the clergy.

"We should dip and season our words in our hearts," said the bishop, "and see that what we express and say is heart deep."

In concluding the bishop stated that priests and other clergy should be esteemed highly by the members of the congregations and the people generally, and that they should not try to pull down ministers from the high places which they have set before them. "They should not set up a worldly and selfish standard for him," for the general standard outside the clergy is low, asserted the bishop. "The man who denies himself of worldly lusts is more likely to meet opposition in the church than encouragement from those affected, which is in line with the old saying that a man's foes are of his own household."

Following a talk by the bishop to the candidates, they were presented by the Rev. S. S. Root and the impressive ordination service carried out. Mr. Hartzell is in charge of St. Paul's church at Smithfield, and also conducts services at the church at Selma. He is from Philadelphia and has been in the diocese nearly three years. Mr. Martin is assistant to Mr. Root at Durham and from the seminary nearly two years ago.
