To Enforce Child Labor Law All these questions will be noted upo the Peditation next week, and it ongst a policy will be entlined, and a challenge issued to the employers and the press of the State that, if accepted, will eliminate labor disputes during the ming year, and enable North Care ma to progress industrially as never before in the history of the Sinte, The Federation is especially proud of

While there are some chil cen yet being workend in violation of the law, the number is quall, and is much more pastly handled that when enetically every industry had its plan-I of little children. Central bodies and local labor unions will be urged to appoint committees in the various centers and investigate and report cases where the law is being violated.

Ministers Change Attitude Another matter that gives great pleas ire to the State buly is the changed ttitude of many ministers and churches oward the people of labor. It was Labor, in convention in Raleigh in 1918. that started a movement which has since become nation wide in its scope. tire undertaking will cost the State A resolution was adopted by that con- less than $500, and will probably fall vention, calling attention to the fact that many ministers were not being take into consideration the labor of allowed to preach the gospel as they prisoners, the wages of State Highway festred to preach, because of the influ- Commission supervision and mechani-LARGE CROWD IN OXFORD ence exerted by wealth over the officers cal help, and the cost of gasoline Oxford, Aug. 6.-Dr. J. It is hoped by these interested in the progress of the State and the welfare its people that the convention next neek will, by its sane action and de-ternithed stand for right things, bring musands of people to the movement riends. It is to be a great convenon, for its purpose is great. Other conentions held by other interests plan and adopt ways and means whereby profits may be increased, busines prooted. The Labor Federation convenon will plan for food and raiment, Loller and warmith, for human beings, other conventions make plans that wi protect property and guarantee dividends for its membership. The labor of the children of the masses, for bet r opportunities for rolly living Other conventions are guided by men had to defend his property rights, and aho see the balance sheet in the books f the member companies. The labor envention will be controlled by men the are looking out over the sections f the cities where live the workers, and see the poorly equipped house, called home by those who toil.

Prejudice Greatest Obstacle. The greatest obstacle in the way the convention next week is that of prejudice. Prejudice costs the State of North Carolina more in dollars and cents than all the fevers, tuberculosis. cattle tick, boll weevel and old rock quarries combined. Were it not for negudice, there could be established a ling of hearty co operation among the arrious people of the State that would sy fremendous dividends. All that the repeal of the excess profits tax as of uplayers. Inher is guilty of harbornurturing prejudice; the public will in the tax levy. quit its work just in order to walk lames by men like David Clark. It is a costly proposition, and every man, woman and child in this State helps pay the expense bill;

If the State Federation of Labor could tart the wheels in motion that would replace prejudice with a spirit of coperation, North Carolina would never top until it took its rightful place at the head of all the States in this naon. And the State Federation is rendy ad anxious to do that very thing. We that the interests of employer and employes are not identical; we . know also that nature is filled with atraries, and it is only through co peration that those contraries can pro that barmony that will guarantee safety and advancement of a State Nation.

The peculiar circumstances of the letting afford splendid opportunity to test comparative costs in building. Each of the dermitories, included in the contracts let yesterday, was identical with the dormitory contracted for fifcen months ago and now nearing completion. That building was awarded under a bid of $160,000. Contract for each of the dormitory buildings vester day went for $95,000, a drop of $65,000, or over 40 per cent.

Contractors here stated vesterday the the only thing that hasn't declined is freight rates, the rate on cement alone being as high as the cost of cement itself.

The dormitories included in the con tract are modern, fire-proof buildings of brick, limestone and terra cotta cor struction on the interior with compostion floors on reinforced concerts, five proof stairways and fire proof parts tions.

TEXTILE BUSINESS IS MORE ACTIVE

Nearly All Branches of The Industry

(Special Correspondence of New York Evening Post.)

Providence, R. I .- Business conditions in the worsted, woolen and silk branches of the textile industry in this State are picking up, and manu facturers in the cotton end are anticipating an improvement in the cotton goods situation within a short time. With the greater part of business activity taking place within the limits of the textile industry, particularly in connection with cotton and woolen goods openings for spring, there is a tendency towards optimism on future business, noting that textile mill operations are more active and that cotton goods for spring are selling well at this season's prices.

Trade and industry in general this week are as quiet if not quieter than last week, but it is said there is no ignificance in this other than that the duliness is merely seasonal and that conditions generally have had little endency towards change.

The Fall River print cloth market continues quiet but steady, several styles showing slight advances over firm and a better feeling is predom? Prices are nant, although manufacturers are authority for the statement that further alvances are necessary before a profit is assured.

The market is quite spotty and sales are wholly spot and extending through next month. Manufacturers are unwilling to accept business with de liveries for September. The demand has been largely for 36 inch goods, sateens and twills, with a moderate amount of 38 1-2 inch goods sold during the past ten days. Nafrow print cloths have also been in fair demand.
