Washington, Oct. 2.—Having loafed on the job of being in session and not being in session since September 21, with recesses of three days at a time after meetings of five minutes in which the time was largely taken up in hearing the short prayer of the chaplain, the House of Representatives will take its feet off the desk and begin to hold daily sessions Wednesday. Its extra days of loafing or "recessing" as per resolution was understood to be for the purpose of allowing the Senate time to get action on measures sent it by the House and for the House then to go at the bills again so as to iron out matters of differences.

The county attorney declared that the grand jury here would be called to investigate the incident and that pending its action he would take no steps in the matter beyond an investigation by his department for evidence for submission to the grand jury.

SENATOR STANLEY LIKES THIS STATE

Kentucky Solon Impressed With Observations Made On Recent Visit Here

The News and Observer Bureau, 603 District National Bank Bldg. By EDWARD E. BRITTON.

Washington, Oct. 2.—North Carolina has an ardent admirer in the person of United States Senator A. O. Stanley, of Kentucky. He says so himself.

As it would hardly do to apply the term "booster" to a member of the greatest legislative body in the world that word will not be used in connection with remarks which Senator Stanley makes about North Carolina and its people, but all the same the Kentucky Senator when the subject of North Carolina gets into conversation does not fail to say the nicest things about the State.

Recently he visited the State, making an address at the New Bern fair, his address receiving high praise, and during a conversation concerning his impressions of North Carolina he said some things which ought to be passed along, for he spoke of the wonderful progress made by the State, the unstinted hospitality of its people, and of the genuineness which animated their dealings with visitors.

"Coming of old fashioned 'rebel stock' and Southern in every fibre," said Senator Stanley, "I can feel a peculiar pride in the solid and wholesome advance of the so-called 'New South.' The almost unprecedented progress of North Carolina in improvement in the methods of agriculture, the fertility of the soil and the marked increase in the production of such staples as cotton and tobacco; and with it the great State's vivid appreciation of the economic advantages of converting her own raw materials into the finished product—this securing the double profit of production and conversion—is well known to every observer of the forward strides of Southern States.

"You fought against the calamity of war, but your work will not be completed until the burdens which the preparations for war imposes are lifted from the shoulders of all peoples. You gave your all for peace but your gift will be barren unless a generous spirit of unselfish co-operation arises to take the place of hatred. Unknown soldier, to you of whom thousands of mothers ask 'is it my son?', to your tomb, which is for France the altar of the country, I bring the love and affection of the American soldiers who fought beside you and the valiant soldiers of France."

BALLOON GAS NOT PLentiful AS YET

Discoverer Of Helium Says Not Enough In World To Have Lifted ZR-2

Lawrence, Kan., Oct. 2.—All the helium-non-explosive balloon gas now available in the world would have been entirely inadequate to lift the ZR-2, the dirigible that was to have been the nucleus of America's air navy, according to a statement today by Prof. H. P. Cady, of the University of Kansas department of chemistry. Doctor Cady discovered that helium was a constituent of the natural gas of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, and thus far processes of reduction have not been perfected. Only one per cent or less of the natural gas is helium, and this helium has to be refined to a purity of 90 per cent or better before it has the non-inflammable quality demanded for the safety in balloon construction.

ATTENDS TO UNMASK MEN

The fight took place when Sheriff Buchanan, with Deputies Burton and Wood attempted to disperse the marching Klansmen who were masked and robed, and, according to the Sheriff, they had refused to divulge their identity. He had agreed to permit them to parade, he said, if they would allow him to identify those participating.

After a conference with two masked leaders at a house on the outskirts of town, where he tried to persuade the Klansmen to desist from violating what he interpreted as the law against unknown masked men marching in a public demonstration, the Sheriff declared there would be no parade, according to eye witnesses.

Immediately afterward the throng of more than 3,000 people gathered to witness the parade saw the column of white-clad figures begin their march toward Lorena, down the road leading from Waco.

As the marchers advanced, cheers from the crowds which lined the road greeted them, mingled with hoots and jeers from those admonishing the Sheriff not to interfere.

When the leader of the column bearing an American flag reached a point a block from the main business street of the town, Sheriff Buchanan, followed by his two deputies, and a crowd of curious spectators halted the standard-bearer and grappled with him in an attempt to snatch the mask from his face.

Other marchers then came to the assistance of their leader and in the melee which followed the Sheriff was knocked down.

A single pistol shot was heard and as the Sheriff fought his way to his feet, 15 or 20 more shots were fired in rapid succession.

Unsheathing his knife after he was heard to exclaim: "Somebody got my gun while I was down," Sheriff Buchanan quickly cleared a space around him, but soon after he was seen to totter and fall.
