of demanding a price which will pro-vide a fair profit, it will be their own fault. In this effort they ought to have the hearty aid and co-operation of the banks, because it is obvious that it will be not only to the interest of the in-dividual farmer and the community but to the interest of the banks as well, if the crop produced this year can be marketed at a full and fair price instend of at from one-half to two-thirds of such price. It will give the farmers more money to deposit in the banks, more money to pay their debts to the banks and more money for community investment and development.
