Choosing Counsel

When you choose advisers in law, medicine o urgery, you exercisthought and care. Real hie insurance experts a tate, the number of the in the whole United States is not large.

Life Insurance is a business, some art and some science. It is not codified or digested as are law and medicine. It can not be learned out of a book.

Nevertheless, nearly every one speaks of life insurance confidently as with authority. The self confidence of the prospective insurer may be justified, but a more conservative plan would be to consult the best life insurance counsel to be had.

The most experienced insurers pay for real service; the least experienced choose life insurance advisers quite casually. All of us know that our own best interests are served by following the most competent advice.

Service is the Virtue of the day and that is our long suit.
