It is said that a Lexington, S. got Cole Blease's goat the other day. The governor pardoned a lot of folks who had applied the torch in that county and done other evil things and the voters asked him about the matter.

It seems that the prosecutors will connect the police in New York with the gambling joints. New York is a big city and has over 8,000 policeto find in that large nummen a few crooks more or not surprising. It is to be hoped that the guilty officers will be brought to judgment.

HAM SANDWICHES IN GREENSBORO AND CHARLOTTE.

We are fully aware that the high cost of living had crawled up to an alarming point, but we must confess it has reached a point beyond our expectation, if we are to credit the statement of an Oxford gentleman who has returned from a trip to the western part of the state. Our friend advises us that he stopped off at Greensboro, and while waiting for his train saw a man come from a nearby restaurant with a ham sandwhich in his hand, which he ex-hibited to a crowd of fellow *travelers, remarking on the tissue-like thinness of the ham. A gentleman, noting the discomfiture of the hungry man, laid a soothing hand on his shoulder and remarked: "My friend let me tell you something; you may think that piece of ham is thin, but you just wait until you get to Charotte and ask for a ham sandwich and see what you get. Maj. Chas. M. Stedman, representative of congress from this district, was among the one hundred congressmen piloted to Sea Girt the other day to call on Governor Wilcongress, was perhaps the most distinguished looking of all the statesmen who came here today. He was an officer in the first and the last battles of the civil war. Major Stedman, who is seventy years old, told Governor Wilson that North Carolina will roll up the largest democratic majority that has been given in a quarter of a century. Major Stedman knows what he is talking about. But speaking about his deportment and bearing, a lady from this state, in Washington on one occasion, went to see him at the capitol. Press Comment.

In time of trouble, stck to the old Thirty years ago it reliable issues. was the opinion of some republican leaders that there was still one more resident in the Bloody Shirt. Taft, today, seems to believe that there is still one more president in the protective tariff. Forecasts from Washington indicate that the tariff is to be probably the most important feature of Mr. Taft's campaign platform. It is not to be called protec tion, mind you; it is republican tariff revision as opposed to demo-cratic free trade. But there is an extraordinary resemblance between the blessings that will flow from tariff revision and those that have always emanated from high protection. There is an equally striking resemblance between the dangers that will follow the rejection of tar-iff revision and those that would have followed the abandonment of high protection, say, fifteen years ago. Business depression will come, of course, and long periods of un certainty for the manufacturer and "loss of employment to thousands of workingmen." How the fond memories of Harrison's and McKinley's days rise at the familiar words Only many things have happened during these years. Among other things thousands of business men have learned that the protective tariff is not incompatible with five years of almost continuous business depression, and incidents like the Lawrence strike have revealed to tens of thousands of workingmen the beneficient effect of the tariff on their wages and their standard of living .- New York Evening Post.

Private Use of Public Offices.

The political use of offices which should be administered only in the service of the people is a republican The present fashion was set abuse. by McKinley, continued by Roosevelt and reduced to the absurd by Taft. When the head of the nation uses his office to personal advantage and becomes a peripatetic politician, son. In giving an account of the his subordinates naturally imitate visit, the New York World said: his example, and so it has come "Maj. Charles M. Stedman, of about that offices and appointment have been grossly manipulated in the fifth North Carolina district in the interest of partisanship or candidacies. The sight which the American people have beheld in the last decade has been disgusting, for presidents have become no than traveling county fair exhibits and of no more dignity than ward President, senators, politicians. governors and representatives have been treating public offices as if they belonged to them as much as do their motor cars and their goldheaded canes.

What is the use of an office for personal account but graf;" It is worse than graft to pur a man into public position and then order him to use it as a political job. When a public servant is paid a salary for performing certain duties and fails with him that she felt like hugging to perform them or hires some one else at public cost to do them, he is a fraudulent official and a grafter. Woodrow Wilson stands for a cleaner, better, right policy in this If he is elected, he would do as he is now doing; he would stay at home and stay on the job. Municipal New York. In this period of New York's trouble and sore disgrace, when many circumstances indicate police complicity in the assassination of a gambler who had uncovered police graft, the metropolis may at least feel the consolation of knowing that no reproach can possibly attach to the responsible city heads. Officials like Mayor Gaynor and District Attorney hitman are above the atmosphere in which the tragedy is involved. Neither can any one charge them with displaying lack of diligence now or heretofore. New York city's government is sound at the top, any way. Its boards of financial administration are trustworthy and intelligent, as well as the city officers of the class named. It can wisely decide and get honestly executed such great municipal projects as the spoke ill of none. It was always subways and the Catskill water refreshing to meet him, because of scheme. It can acquit itself well enough so far as the men conspicuously responsible to the electorate are concerned. If these men could gave Him the best service which he hold their subordinates as complete-was capable. God grant that the ly responsible toward them as they are held toward the public, there would be, with rare exceptions, honesty and efficiency all around. That is to say, New *York needs the practical operation, if not the form, of commission government. It is through the multitude of inconspicu ous officials, necessarily voted for without discrimination on ballots whole feet long or appointed by such officials acting as agents of the po-litical bosses, that the influences of bad government get in their work. There is too much that continues remote from any effort at the polls which disinterested friends of good government can exert.

New York was patriotically described by Mayor Gaynor some time ago as "one of the best-governed large cities in the world." So New York is, at the top. No stronger municipal patriotism, no more zeal-ous public morality, exists anywhere. Good government majorities clean up everything within reach. It is down below, where they cannot makeselves felt because the men commissioned by them are virtually superseded by the bosses beyond a certain point, that darkness and corruption occur.-Charlotte Observer.

ALLENS ARE SAID TO BE IN DAVIDSON

(Special to The Times.) Lexington, July 25 .- Are the survivors of the Allen gang in David-A great many people believe that they are. Two men that answer the descriptions of Sidna Allen and Wesley Edwards have been seen in several sections of the county, and, so far as The Dispatch knows, they are still within two miles of Lexington.

Suspicions were aroused when letter was taken up along one of the rural routes north of the city addressed to Mrs. Sidna Allen. Of course, some citizen of Davidson might have desired to drop Mrs. Sidna Allen a few lines, but that is hardly probable. Then, when two men filling almost exactly the descriptions of the two outlaws appeared at the home of a good farmer in Tyro and spent the night, there was more talk. One of the men had a wound on his arm that had not quite healed and both were literally "armed to the teeth."

A few days ago two men were seen near Abbots Creek, a short distance southeast of the city, certainly the same pair that had been seen in the upper end of the county. They "laid in the woods near this point for four days.

Up to the present writing Sheriff Delap and his deputies have evinced no burning desire to lay hands on either of the suspected parties. though there are rewards of $1,000 outstanding for each.
