Sixteen Important Buildings and Many Residences Now Under Way

A BUILDING EPIDEMIC

Secretary of Chamber of Commerce Rambles Around and Sees Things Calculated to Make a Person Open His Eyes—Hardly a Block in Raleigh Without Building Operations Going On—Good Streets and Good Water Are Coming and Prosperity Will Continue.

That energetic and genial storehouse of information, Colonel Fred A. Olds, secretary of the Raleigh chamber of commerce by official title and a most valuable citizen in addition, always has his eyes and ears open when big things are in sight for Raleigh. The colonel got so full of the "building fever" yesterday that he chased all around the city making pictures to substantiate his statements about Raleigh's progress.

When seen this morning by a Times man, the colonel was just bubbling over and on the reporter's request to unfold what was on his mind the busy booster told his tale something like this:

"Raleigh is certainly growing fast these days, and as a wit remarked today, it needs only two things, up-to-date streets, and an abundance of good water. It grows fast as things are; what will it do when it gets both of these, for it is certainly going to have them? The hour has struck for these improvements.

"They tell a story about a man who was away from Raleigh a month and then put in two days going around to see what had been done since he left. To tell the truth the writer was away a fortnight on a mountain tramp and upon his return must needs put in half a day seeing new things, so it is very evident that something is going on. The fancy came to make a picture story, something always to be preserved, which would tell what Raleigh looked like yesterday, and so the writer, taking his camera, which was operated by Mr. Albert Barden, made a grand tour of the town. It would really be worth while to be a bird, a high-flyer at that, or in an aeroplane, in order to get a view of the very numerous constructions now under way here, for on perhaps half the blocks in the city some sort of work is in progress, and the sound of the hammer and the saw are as familiar as that of the gongs on the street cars. So yesterday photographs were taken, which tell exactly what the big constructions were under way in this city between the hours of 10 o'clock and noon, and it required sixteen pictures to do this. The beginning was made at the Y. M. C. A., where the iron girders were being put in place; in succession coming the new parish house and Sunday school building, of granite, for Christ church; the state administration building; the six stores that Mr. B. F. Montague is having constructed on East Hargett street; the Raleigh Banking & Trust building; that of the Boylan-Pearce Company; the Citizens National Bank, the Commercial National Bank; the work in progress on the lower floor of the Academy of Music building; that of the old Hotel Raleigh, which is to become the Raleigh Apartment House, with nine stores underneath; the new warehouse and office of the North Carolina Cotton Oil Company, now approaching completion, and the half-finished spacious warehouse and offices at the Southern Railway depot; the Church of the Good Shepherd; the dining hall and the Y. M. C. A. building of the Agricultural C. A. building of the Agricultural and Mechanical College; the express office stores and flats in rear of Capitol Inn.

"There are simply scores of other buildings going up. We took a look at the new and rapidly growing suburbs of Boylan Heights, Glenwood and Cameron Park, where houses are started almost every week, and it is to be observed that handsome houses are the rule, houses with designs which show taste and which make real homes with all the comforts.

"It was a piping hot day and it was painfully amusing to see Mr. Barden getting the picture of the new Southern freight depot. The only point from which to do this was the roof of the old depot, which was by the way, for many years Raleigh's

W. W. Wood.

WOOLEN TRUST HEAD ACCUSED IN DYNAMITE PLOT.

His friends and associates have not yet recovered from the astounding surprise furnished by W. W. Wood, president of the American Woollen Company, when he surrendered himself to the Boston authorities in answer to an indictment for conspiracy. Mr. Wood is accused of plotting to conceal dynamite in at least three places at Lawrence, Mass., so as to discredit the labor unions in the great strike of mill operatives which lasted from January 12 until March 14 last, alarmed the country and caused a reign of martial law.

first union passenger station, where the Seaboard and Southern trains arrived and departed. As he crawled out of one of the windows in one of the tiny little rooms on the upper deck of the old building, on to that tin roof his expression showed that, as they say in Texas, it was "some warm," and when he crawled in again he declared that the temperature there was not a whit less than 212 degrees; that is the boiling point. To tell the truth the temperature was way up yonder anywhere we went, but the thing was done, and the pictures themselves, which are on exhibition today in the window at Ellington's, tell the story a good deal plainer than words. "Go where we would there was the shine of new buildings, and not a few signs setting forth very plainly that carpenters and laborers were wanted. On one side of the Christian church men were at work on the addition to that building. Near Boylan bridge, the tracks of the Raleigh, Charlotte & Southern railway, men were at work getting the roadbed ready for ties and rails, the laying of which will soon begin from West Jones street, where the tracks will connect with that which has heretofore had that point as its terminal. Quite near this road the residence of Mr. E. S. Phillips, on the very edge of the track, has been torn down and is being rebuilt on Hillsboro street, in front of the Ashe place, while another dwelling is going up beside it. Various other new residences are going up on Hillsboro street.

"Out at the A. and M. College the preparations for the coming of students this week for the new term, were giving occupation to many people and in the handsome new dining hall tables were set, and there was a great array of china and glass and snowy cloths, while in the kitchen and larder other folks were busy. The graders are putting the finishing touches to what will be a lawn where, until a few months ago, the old power house stood, directly in the rear of the main building. At the Y. M. C. A. building, the roof was on and interior work being pushed. The growth of the college in the matter of buildings is certainly gratifying, and the dormitory, named for ex-President George T. Winston, the animal husbandry building, one of the best ever constructed in the state, the dairy, barns, silos, etc., make a brave show.

"We could have gone out to St. Augustine's school and obtained a picture of the dormitory which is under construction there, also of the dormitory at the Methodist Orphanage which is being built for new term. eight years in Durham and his old congregation there has been lately making efforts to get him to return. Later he was at Lexington before going to Norfolk. Rev. Dr. Bomar, the former pastor, resigned to accept a call to the First Baptist church of Owensboro, Ky.

First Cotton Received. Wilmington, Sept. 4.—The first cotton of the cotton year 1912-13 was received here in a 75-bale consignment Monday, and reported to their Chamber of Commerce yesterday. This year's crop will not be so large as last year's, but the price will be better.

The following ticket was named: For the Legislature, A. Cameron, Vass; Sheriff, J. M. Brown, Hemp; Register of Deeds, J. W. Seawell, Carthage; County Commissioners, W. M. Kinnitt, D. W. McDuffie, and J. C. Caviness; for Coroner, H. B. Shields, Carthage; for Surveyor, Leslie Harris, Eagle Springs.

This was a very good meeting from every standpoint. As a usual thing the Republicans in this county hold a very disorderly and unsatisfactory meeting but this was different, for everything passed off quietly and smoothly without any confusion or any fights. The ticket is a good one but there being more Democratic than Republican voters, doubtless none of the ticket will be elected. J. T. Copeland was elected chairman of the Executive Committee for the next two years.

DR. HULTEN RESIGNS

Will Go From Charlotte to Oklahoma City to Accept Pastorale. (Special to the Times.) Charlotte, Sept. 4.—Rev. Herman H. Hulthen, D. D., pastor of the First Baptist church of Charlotte for the past six years, will announce to his congregation next Sunday morning that he has accepted a unanimous call to the pastorate of the First Baptist church of Oklahoma City, Okla. Dr. Hulthen today wired his formal acceptance of the call, which he has had under consideration for several weeks. He will assume the duties of his new charge on the first Sunday in October.

Dr. Hulthen is recognized the state over as one of the greatest pulpits orators who has ever held a North Carolina pastorate. Extensively traveled, scholarly and with a dramatic touch that holds his audience with a grip of steel, he has drawn congregations that have overflowed his church almost from his first sermon in Charlotte. His discourses are not only attractive but tremendously effective. Under his pastorate the church has added more than 1,000 names to its roll of membership and one of the handsomest edifices in the south has replaced the former house of worship, while the Sunday school stands among the largest in the state.

Dr. Hulthen's church is Oklahoma City has a membership of 2,000 and has just completed a structure at the cost of $175,000. The Pritchard Baptist church of Charlotte has extended a call to Rev. W. A. Smith of Norfolk, Va., and it is understood that Mr. Smith has intimated that he will accept. Mr. Smith once served a pastorate of

Chantecler

IN a quiet town in this progressive land of ours there lived a man who was the proud possessor of a very active rooster. Although this good man was held in high esteem, by his peaceful loving fellow townsmen, they could not willingly, adapt themselves to his rooster with the big noise. Very early every morning, rain or shine, this chantecler would perch himself upon the loftiest fence post in his master's yard and give forth a series of cock-a-doodle-do's, just so as to let the slumbering town know that he was up and doing. Before the first strain of his crow had died away on the early morning dew-laden breezes, his master would be up and report for duty while the peaceful slumbering neighbors would awaken and with a disgusted grunt, pull the quilts up over their ears and drop off to sleep again. As time sped on the owner of this rooster was looked upon by his townsmen as one of the most prosperous in their community.

They commenced to sit up and take notice of this fact very seriously, so one and all decided to take action and discover the secrets of his success. The mystery was quickly solved by the chairman of the town who was appointed as a committee of one to investigate and report. It is needless to say what happened, for ever afterwards these peaceful citizens lying in bed during the early hours of the morning, would be anxiously straining their ears to catch the first call from their successful neighbor's chantecler. The result was that the town became a prosperous city and is growing greater than her sister cities every minute which only goes to show that "there never was a rooster yet who, with his everlasting crowing did not stir up a whole community."

SUCCESSFUL ADVERTISING

is only brought about by continual crowing about your wares at the right time in the right place and in the right way. By everlastingly keeping at it you are bound to awaken the impulses of the most conservative consumer. To impress the buying public with the merit of your wares, your advertising must be of the kind that will make them sit up and take notice.

Twenty-Five Years Ago, Bill,

When I was married, we went to a hardware store and picked out a coal range costing $45—hotter than blazes for the wife to cook over in the summer, and dirty all the time.

"The other day our daughter was married and her husband had to spend less than half as much for a modern gas range, with no coal or ashes to bother about.

"Times change, Bill, and somehow women seem to stay younger lots longer than they used to."

Why not get YOUR gas range now?
