New York Cotton Letter.
New York, Sept. 4.—There was a renewal of yesterday's buying movement at the opening of cotton market this a. m. and first prices 17 to 22 points net higher with Dec. selling 60 points above the low level of last Friday. On the call, as we had anticipated, there was heavy selling by Boars who had taken profits last week, and also a good deal of realigning by recent buyers who were more than half inclined to view the rally as the expression of little more than an oversold market, and a temporary relief from bear pressure.
Prices turned easier under these offerings reacting 12 or 15 points from best, but the official weather details for eastern belt, combined with a bullish weekly weather report caused a renewal of demand during the early afternoon which sent December contracts up to 11.51 or 29 points net higher and 65 points above the recent low level.
Reports of rain along the eastern belt coast, or at Norfolk and Charleston suggested a possibility of a change in the weather however, and prices eased off somewhat from the best after two p. m.
The leading spot houses was credited with having increased long lines of December against further sales of January today. Another of old bear houses has advised covering because of crop deterioration but continues to express expectations of ultimately lower prices.

and that the physical valuation of the concern is about $150,000. It is physically and morally insolvent, he said. He urged that the city have its representatives appear before the court at Smithfield September 27 and insist that a receiver friendly to Raleigh be appointed. No sympathy should be wasted on the company, for it deserved none, he declared, and urged the construction of a temporary dam to conserve sufficient water to tide the city over the equinoctial period, when rainfall will be abundant. Mr. Pou termed the officers of the company as moral murderers.
Favor Resolution.
Mr. Strong agreed heartily with the speakers in the necessity for action and relief, but insisted that the president of the company was a good man and had not willfully done anything to injure the people of the city. He wanted the resolutions to be adopted not to be regarded as a criticism of the president. Mr. Pou thought a man could not be such a good citizen who was so derelict in his duty, as officers of this company had been, and he stood pat. Other speeches were made in favor of the resolution by Messrs. J. E. Fogue, S. Brown Shepherd, Geo. W. Lay and Col. F. B. Arendell.
The Resolution.
Whereas, the board of aldermen of the city is in municipal ownership every opportunity to the Wake Water Company to furnish an adequate supply of pure water to the people of Raleigh and maintain an adequate supply for fire protection, has taken steps to annul the franchise now held by the Wake Water Company, which it has forfeited by its failure, and whereas the vital question to Raleigh and paramount to everything else, is good water and plenty of it, therefore be it resolved by the chamber of commerce and citizens of Raleigh that the thanks of the city be tendered to the board of aldermen for their determination to have the charter of the Water company annulled and to secure for the city a system of waterworks that will meet the needs of a growing city;

APEX MARKET OPENS TODAY

Over Fifty Thousand Pounds Sold First Day--A Busy Place

(Special to The Times.)
Apex, Sept. 4.—The Apex tobacco market opened today. For weeks past this event has been looked forward to by the people of Apex, the tobacco men and the farmers of a large scope of territory including parts of Wake, Chatham, Harnett and other counties.
Commencing yesterday there was a continual procession of wagons loaded with tobacco making their untill eleven o'clock this morning, one half hour after the market was scheduled to open.
The unloading of tobacco and placing it upon the warehouse floors began early this morning and when eleven o'clock arrived the warehouse floors were completely filled, there being between fifty and sixty thousand pounds of tobacco on the market.
The sales began at eleven o'clock. The magnificent voice of Captain Paylor, the veteran auctioneer of Smithfield, who will be on the Apex market this year, sounded as sweet music to the ears of the farmer and the business man as it commenced to cry in figures the spirited bids, which announced the beginning of the returns of this great money crop of this section.
The floors of the warehouses were literally crowded with local and visiting tobacco men and good humored farmers and presented the liveliest spectacle ever witnessed in the history of this market. The weather was intensely hot. The numerous sky windows in use on the warehouse roof for the purpose of affording the best possible light concentrated the sun's rays and made the outer man uncomfortable. The tobacco buyers, numbering seven, representing all of the large tobacco companies and a number of other large dealers who make special efforts to obtain the fine quality of tobacco marketed here, took their places with the warehousemen beside the auctioneer. The farmers crowded around and the auctioneer pleaded for more room and air. Down two long rows and back and he had to be relieved, and thereafter he and another strong man alternated throughout the sale, which continued until 4 o'clock.
As pile after pile was passed in rapid succession, the grower and seller grabbed with eagerness the tags and gave careful examination to the quality of the leaf which they marked. In the section like this where tobacco has been grown for so many years the average farmer is a capable judge of quality and prices. From the reports of the markets which had previously opened throughout the state good prices for the finer grades were expected, but only fair prices for the medium and lower grades were looked for.
As the tags were scanned and the leaf was examined the faces of the farmers were covered with smiles, for the prices marked on the finer grades were fully up to the expectation and the prices for the medium and lower grades were far beyond what had been anticipated.
This was by far the largest and most satisfactory opening ever had on the Apex market. The weather has been very dry and it was not anticipated that so large a quantity of tobacco could be properly worked. There was a good sprinkling even of the finer grades of the yellow wrapper tobacco presented on the market, which is very unusual for the opening in this section. Some of this brought as high as sixty cents per pound. It was the general sentiment of the farmers present that the prices of fillers, smokers and cutters were twenty-five per cent higher than expected.
In spite of the unusual dry weather obtainable in this section this year there will be more tobacco marketed than ever before. The acreage has been increased at least twenty to twenty-five per cent; there has been a uniform stand, whereas last year there was only about eighty per cent of a stand, and while tobacco cannot be considered as heavy, it is weighing a great deal better than anyone expected. In addition there has been no hail as there was last year and some years heretofore.
Apex is splendidly equipped in the matter of market facilities, having two large warehouses and three large pipe houses, and ample banking and railroad facilities for its prompt handling. Messrs. Stone and Puckett are proprietors of the Planters Warehouse and Messrs. Johnson and Chenham of the Golden Leaf. They have large forces of office and floor help.
The town of Apex yesterday afternoon, last night and throughout the entire day today presented a most busy and bustling appearance. Its magnificent new buildings and stores, erected for the most part, since the fire of a little more than a year ago and completed since the closing of the market a few months ago, were a revelation to a vast number of farmers who came to town to market their product and to be present at the opening to get a line upon the prices of tobacco for the opening season.
Today's opening leaves everyone concerned and who has witnessed it perfectly satisfied and in the best of heart.

Roosevelt Men Excluded.

a resolution I have in hand. The supporters of Mr. Taft arrest that the party's supreme tribunal is its national convention from which there is no appeal. We deny this and on the contrary we hold that the party's supreme tribunal is the will of the people which is and must ever remain the sovereign power in a Republic. To this tribunal of last resort we now appeal. Conventions and committees are mere agencies to express and execute the sovereign will of the people. It is vain, futile and insolent to ask the people to ratify a nomination when the convention making such nomination has openly defied and defeated the clearly expressed will of the people. This is fundamental. The national committee cannot arrogate to itself the sovereign will of the people and when it does so, as it did in Chicago, then it is time to show it the mistake. We Roosevelt Republicans endorse the party and its principles but Mr. Taft, never."
Will Not Recant.
Colonel Pearson was asked if a compromise would be effected the basis of which would be the support of the Taft administration, by the Progressives. He declared that the serious suggestion of this was out-of-the-question and would not be considered for a moment. He added that two electoral tickets would doubtless be placed in the field and that the fight on these tickets would be very sharp between the Roosevelt followers and the Taft followers. As to the State ticket, he expressed the belief that a compromise might be reached but would not venture to forecast its personnel. As to the county tickets, it was generally thought that the Roosevelt and Taft followers would get together in each locality and sketch out a ticket and then both factions put their shoulders to the wheel to achieve the success of that ticket. Colonel Pearson appeared very buoyant as to the prospects for the success of the Roosevelt following in the State. He would not hazard a forecast to the insertion of a local form although he declared that there was a very strong sentiment favoring it in many localities.

Taft Suffers From Ankle.

Had to Forego Welcoming Address to Scientists and Go to Bed.
Washington, Sept. 4.—When President Taft returned to the white house his right ankle sprained a few days ago while playing golf, gave him so much trouble he was obliged to break the morning engagement to address the opening of the international congress of Applied Chemistry and remain in the executive offices. The president will receive the delegates at the garden party in the white house grounds if the weather permits. Until the garden party, the president, on the advice of Dr. Rhoads, took his bed for a few hours, for a needed rest. He suffered no illness other than the injured ankle. He expects to start back for Beverly tomorrow.
