

THE UNIVERSITY.

We have ever felt a tender regard and warm affection for the State University at Chapel Hill.

While hundreds of negroes in Louisiana and Mississippi have been emigrating to Kansas, we have heard of none in this State being guilty of such folly.

There is much being said about the negro emigration from the South. I think there are some causes for this movement in many of the Southern States.

The accelerated velocity, with which compound interest runs, is wonderfully startling, and to one who has not thought of it, is simply incredible.

The very great degree of success that has attended the resurrection of our University is undoubtedly due to the indomitable energy and intelligent management of its accomplished and popular President.

It is gratifying to know that this Institution is becoming more popular with the masses of our people, and that it is no longer regarded as a place where only "rich men's sons" are taught.

It is thought that Congress will adjourn before the first of July. The Warner Silver Bill, which had been passed by the House, will not be acted upon by the Senate during this session.

This Act is appropriated or shall be paid for the subsistence, equipment, transportation or compensation of any part of the Army of the United States to be used as a police force to keep the peace at the polls at any election held within any State.

So that while the Army will be paid for the performance of its proper duties, yet no money shall be paid for intimidating the peaceable citizen at the ballot-box.

An Old Hero.

There has recently died one of the most famous citizens of this country, General James Shields, who was eminently distinguished both as a soldier and politician.

Early in the morning Shields' brigade had orders to advance across rugged, broken ground, attack the Mexican reserve under Santa Anna and seize the Jalapa road in order to cut off his retreat to the capital.

Correspondence.

WE WILL BE PLEASED TO RECEIVE COMMUNICATIONS ON ANY SUBJECT THAT MAY BE OF INTEREST TO OUR READERS.

Solid South vs. Solid North.

The southern people are solid in the opinion that they have a right to self-government, and that every voter (without regard to color or previous condition) can vote for a democrat if he thinks proper.

At the great general outpouring at the recent meeting held in Philadelphia, or some other place, every section being fully represented by revenue thieves, body snatchers and other rascals, up to the first of July, the Southern people were in a state of excitement.

passed twenty thousand inhabitants, with valuable timber forests, rich in birds of numerous and unlimited water-powers, were to find his lamentations he would come to the conclusion that he inhabited a narrow, barren, poverty-stricken God forsaken spot.

I will next notice the very official instructions sent out by calling. He is his business, as I think I can safely assert that there was no factory proposed.

The proposition is this: if you have money and wish to build a factory you must build a bridge; if you do not have the money a factory is worthless and if you do not have your factory built by the end of the year, and besides the other things you will have the advantage of a piece of good bridges free of cost.

But enough of this. I appeal to the people of the western part of our country to be more liberal hearted and less narrow minded; let there be no more quarreling when the interests of the country see fit to make some necessary improvement on one side of it even if the other side is not directly interested in it.

article referred to in the Record of the 29th, it might have been passed over by me as anonymous or fictitious matter. But the name was familiar; I remembered that it was the name of a preacher, under the sound of whose voice I have had the pleasure to sit. Yes, a few years since we were both citizens of the same town, and then at length I learned to recognize the name; hence I can read and appreciate his article on temperance.

[We can assure our esteemed correspondent that we will publish with pleasure any communications, that ministers of the Gospel or any other persons may be pleased to write for the Record, on temperance or any other subject that may be of interest to our people.—Editor Record.]

FOR THE RECORD. HAYSTACK CO. May 30th, 1879. Mr. Editor:—Please let me say to the farmers of your county, those that have planted clover, be not discouraged if they come up slow, for much depends on the season for a stand of clover. But if you fail to get a stand they will soon sprout up, and you can draw up and set out hills that are missing, from now until the last of June.
