Dalsy Chains,

Down in the meadows, half asleep, Where breezes through the grasses sweep, An idle youth, in quiet lay, While at his side a bine-sand fay Sat weaving with such artful care A dainty chain of daisies fair.

His eyes were closed in sweet contempt; Her thoughts alone on mischief best; She would the chain about his head. And arms, and form, and over him spr. 13. Till he seemed but a daisy bed.

The laughing eyes then open dev And peered into the eyes of blue ; Up rose his hands, and with a bound The chain lay broken on the ground : The bine eyes flashed with suiden light, And, pelting him with delete white, The vengeance in her eyes he read, As haughtily the midget said Young man, another time I'll make A stouter chain you cannot break."

The little wifch ! Could it be true How well she spoke her dear heart knew For, sure enough, around his heart She wave a chain he could not part And if this very day you pass Across the meadow's waving grass You'll see the children of this runin A wearing each a daisy chain,
