For Senator, 22nd District, THOMAS B. WOODSON, OF CHARGE COUNTY.
Election, November 7th, 1882.

Young Men are not ignored by the democratic party, as is alleged by republicans. The latter are continually asserting that a young man has no showing in the democratic party, hoping thereby to create dissatisfaction among the young democrats and induce them to join the republican party with the promise of promotion. We are pleased to know that the young men of the democratic party are too true to their principles to be seduced from their party allegiance. The recent recruits or converts to the republicans are not all young men, but most of them are old broken down backs like Clingman, Leach, Johnson, Edwards, &c., who, despairing of further promotion in the democratic party, have sought "new fields and pastures green" in the republican party. It is true that there are a few fine Darby and Devereux, but their number is as insignificant as the men themselves. The young democrats of North Carolina do not complain, nor have they cause to complain, of the treatment that they receive from their party. In every county their claims are duly recognized and their services rewarded. It is a well known fact that a majority of the members of our State Legislatures for several years past have been young men, and by the way they have generally been the most efficient members, and in the next Legislature our young men will be well and fully represented. In this county a young man has been nominated for the Senate, and the young democrats of Chatham will show their appreciation of this compliment to one of their number by giving him a handsome majority.

The State convention of the republican party in Kansas was held last week and nominated Gov. St. John for re-election. He has been Governor for some time past, and it was through his influence chiefly that Prohibition was adopted in the State of Kansas. Not only did this republican convention endorse Gov. St. John's course by re-nominating him, but they also adopted a platform, the first resolution of which is the following: "Resolved, That we declare ourselves unopposedly in favor of the prohibition of the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and pledge ourselves to such additional legislation as shall secure the rigid enforcement of the constitutional provision upon this subject in all parts of the State."

Not only did the republicans of Kansas adopt an amendment to their State constitution prohibiting the manufacture or sale of liquor, but now at their State convention they solemnly pledge themselves to such additional legislation as shall secure the rigid enforcement of the constitutional provision upon this subject. And yet in North Carolina Prohibition is denounced as a democratic measure, and old democrats are asked to leave their party or that account and join the republicans!

The Republicans of the first Congressional district held a convention at Elenton, on last Friday, and nominated Mr. Walter R. Pool as their candidate for Congress. It will be remembered that the "liberals" held a convention in that district last month and nominated Mr. Respass. This nomination is not endorsed by the republicans as was expected, who prefer to select their own candidate, and hence they nominated Mr. Pool. It is truly refreshing to find the republicans of one district who dare to assert their manhood and refuse to be ruled by deserters from the democratic party. The reason of this action of the republicans of the first district is that there are so few revenue officers in that district, too few of them to control the masses of their party, as they do in this and other districts.

A LEGISLATURE will be elected at the approaching election, and a majority of its members will be either democrats or republicans. The voters of the State must decide which it shall be, and in making that decision they should be influenced by what the Legislatures of the two parties have done in the past. We have had republican Legislatures in North Carolina and we have had democratic Legislatures, and it is well enough to contrast them so that we may the better decide whether the next Legislature shall be republican or democratic. Let us contrast the cost of them, for our people are particularly sensitive as to any extravagance on the part of their public servants, and when you touch a taxpayer's pocket you touch his tenderest part. Let us, therefore, compare the cost of the last republican Legislature with that of the last democratic Legislature. The last republican Legislature is known as the Legislature of 1878-'80, and the pay of its members amounted to $430,958.60—nearly half a million dollars. The last democratic Legislature cost only $250,280.26—about one-fourth as much as the republican Legislature. These figures cannot be disputed, and should be remembered by every taxpayer. Let the voters of North Carolina bear in mind, when they vote for members of the next Legislature, that the republican Legislature cost eight times as much as a democratic Legislature!

The Prohibition question will not divide and disrupt the democratic party, as was hoped by our republican friends. Democrats are not fools, and are not yet ready to commit political suicide. We cannot speak so positively of other countries, but in Chatham we do know that the democratic leaders of the anti prohibitionists of the anti prohibitionists are working together harmoniously for the success of their party. A notable instance of this was witnessed at our Senatorial convention last week. We there saw prohibitionists vote for the nomination of an anti prohibitionist, and anti prohibitionists vote for a prohibitionist. It will be seen by reading the proceedings of that convention (published on our local paper) that Mr. W. E. Bondinot placed in nomination and voted for Mr. A. H. Moore, and yet the former actively canvassed this county against prohibition, while the latter was chairman of the prohibition executive committee of the county.

Republican Dissatisfaction.

The old "fire-tried" republicans are not at all satisfied at being told to take back seats and give the offices to deserters from the democrats. They do not relish the idea of simply "adorning" candidates whom the liberals are pleased to nominate. They begin to notice that all letters of acquaintance are addressed to the "liberal" committees by the candidates, and the republican committees are mere figments. The Greensboro' North State, the oldest republican paper in the State, has this to say on that subject:

"It makes us feel lonesome when we think we are on the eve of a great State campaign, that the tickets are in the field and none of the candidates have condescended to address themselves to the grand old republican organization which has manfully battled against KKK and Bourbonism for the past sixteen years. The candidates who expect the republican votes address themselves in their letters of acceptance to the Anti-Prohibition committee, and accept the nomination from that source. We hope our noble old party is not omitted on the ground that the dead are soon forgotten. Republicans are not overjoyed or enthusiastic about the feast to which they are invited and we hope every effort will be made to keep them in harness."

Slave Marriages.

A curious case relating to the marriage status of former slaves has just been decided by the Supreme Court of Alabama. The controversy was between two women, each of whom claimed to be the widow of Gus Washington and entitled to dower in his estate. One named Edie had been married to him in 1847, when both were slaves of the same master. The ceremony was performed by a colored minister with the consent of the master. The two lived together as husband and wife till the fall of 1866. At that time the husband, being then of course a freedman, took out a license and married another woman, with whom he lived till his death. Under those circumstances the Court was called upon to decide which of the two had been the lawful wife. It has decided in favor of the one claiming by virtue of the slave marriage. It holds that slaves were not competent to enter into a valid marriage contract or hold the legal relation of husband and wife. But in September, 1865, the Constitutional Convention of Alabama declared that all freedmen and freedwomen then living together and recognizing one another as husband and wife should hold that relation under the law. The Supreme Court decides that this was a ratification of the marital relations then existing between Gus and Edie Washington, and that his subsequent marriage with the other element was void. This is the law in North Carolina also.—Ed. Record.

Letter From Colorado.

Special Correspondence. DENVER, COLORADO, Aug. 4, 1882. The tourist who comes to Colorado expecting to "see all there is to be seen," or to learn all there is to be learned, of the scenery, resources and characteristics of the State in a few days, or even weeks, will be disappointed. Since my arrival I have been constantly on the go, and have gathered so much material that I scarcely know where to begin to unravel the thread; yet I have but just commenced my explorations. Approaching the Centennial State from the east, we have been gradually ascending since we left the Missouri River, and cross its eastern border at an elevation of 4,000 feet. Up to the foot-hills run plains intersected by streams and by the "Divide," a ridge 8,000 feet high, fifty miles south of Denver—giving room for many cattle, sheep and farming ranches. Of these there are many interesting facts for future letters. Boldly out among these foot-hills comes the great lateral buttress capped by the famed Pike's Peak; then comes the majestic range itself, the backbone of the continent, describing a tortuous course through the State, which, as the slang phrase has it, "covers more outdoors" than any other State in the Union, except California and Texas.

The Fruit Fair.

North Carolina is well adapted in soil and climate to the growth of fruit, and we are pleased to know that increasing interest is being manifested in that particular. This will be further stimulated by the very abundant fruit crop of this year. The first fruit fair was held last week at Greensboro' and was quite a success. We copy from the Charlotte Observer the following:

"The State fruit fair was inaugurated at Greensboro' on the 9th inst., under the most auspicious circumstances. The spacious exhibition halls were taxed to their fullest capacity. An immense crowd was in attendance, the number being estimated at between two and three thousand. The display of fruit was unexpectedly large and very fine. By 11 o'clock both exhibition halls were densely packed, and the streets for several hundred yards on either side of the buildings were full of people. At 11:45 Colonel John N. Staples, of Greensboro', in brief and appropriate remarks, made the welcome address and introduced Colonel Heck, president of the State Fruit Growers' Association. Colonel Heck expressed agreeable surprise at the attendance at the fair and particularly at the fine display of fruits on exhibition. He congratulated the association on its selecting Greensboro' as the place for holding the fruit fair. Governor Jarvis was then introduced and spoke about twenty minutes. He spoke of the pleasure it afforded him, as the Governor of North Carolina, to respond to the call made upon him to open the first fruit fair in the State. He was deeply gratified that such an opportunity had presented itself, and whatever he could do by his presence and words of cheer and encouragement he was more than willing to do. He alluded to the importance of cheap transportation in successful fruit culture. He had already exerted his official influence in that direction and would continue to do so. He alluded to the prosperity of North Carolina, and predicted that in a short time the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley Railroad would be completed, when the beautiful city of Greensboro', the grand old county of Guilford and the whole unsurpassed piedmont region of North Carolina would blossom as a rose. The address was brief, appropriate and well received. It was here announced that John Van Lindley, of Guilford county, would deliver an address at 1 o'clock on fruit growing. At 1 o'clock Mr. Ludley delivered an admirable address. In conclusion he read a statement made by the railroad and express officials, showing that up to this time there had been shipped from Greensboro' this season over 200,000 pounds of fruit."

A Novel Marriage.

An agricultural fair was held in Cabarrus county last week, and in order to attract a crowd, the novel expedient of having a marriage was resorted to. A correspondent of the Charlotte Observer thus describes it: "At 9 o'clock in the morning, the high contracting parties were seated on a bench on the stand, where they could be viewed by the spectators. From this time until the knot was tied they sat there and the searching and oftentimes impertinent glances of the crowd that were directed to a pair of clay menials for all the effect they had. The groom, a brown and unshaven youth of forty-two years, stood the fire of the thousand eyes leveled at him, without flinching. The bride looked the picture of the maiden all forlorn, who kind words of love had never, never known up to the time that festive cupid had pinned her heart to that of the man beside her with a silver arrow. She is just rounding her 40th year, and even to the most careless observer it was evident that old time had turned the rows pretty deep in his annual passages. Upon Col. Wm. Johnston devolved the duty of giving the bride away, which he did in a speech of about 10 minutes in length, after which the couple rose from their seats, and with arms securely locked listened to the words that made them one, by Col. Thomas Robinson, justice of the peace. When the Colonel informed them they were man and wife, and that they whom the Lord joined together no man shall put asunder, Captain Charles McDonald announced that in compliance with the agreement made by the fair, the newly wedded would be presented with a ten dollar bill, and forthwith handed it over to the groom amidst the most vociferous cheering."

General News.

The school census will make the present population of Chicago 567,000. It is said that 16,000 men are employed in railroad construction in Florida. A hotel at Seabright, N. J., has been deserted because of two cases of typhoid fever. Bishop LeFebvre, of the Roman Catholic diocese of Three Rivers, in Canada, has condemned the wearing of curls as a sin. Some boys at Streator, Ill., annoyed an old man until in his rage he struck one with a stick and killed him instantly. Gen. A. M. Seales and Hon. W. M. Robbins were nominated, last week, as the democratic candidates for Congress in the fifth and seventh districts. The Harley Powder Works, at Vallejo, Cal., containing fifteen tons of powder, exploded killing two men and dangerously wounding a third man. By the accidental explosion of a barrel of gunpowder in a tradesman's shop near a school house in Grodoro, Russia, almost all the school (who were Jews) were killed. A dispatch from Alexandria, states that the Sultan has peremptorily ordered Arabi Pasha to lay down his arms. If he refuses the Sultan will leave him to be dealt with by the English. Two white men named Mooney and Williams, on Saturday, near Starbuck, Miss., shot and fatally wounded a negro named Booth, who refused to allow them to ride in his wagon. Both men escaped. Information has been received at the Post Office Department that Inspector Booth has arrested Thomas G. Hayson, Assistant Postmaster at Talladega, Alabama, on the charge of riding registered letters.

Death of Ben Hill.

A dispatch from Atlanta, dated 16th, says: About 2 o'clock this morning Senator Hill was found to be rapidly sinking. He breathed with much difficulty. He continued to sleep, however, and at a few minutes after 6 o'clock his death occurred without a struggle. He died from exhaustion. Several hours before Senator Hill's death it was evident that the end was near. Soon after daybreak his family were summoned to his bedside. Four hours before passing away he made a sign for a hyperdermic injection of morphine which was administered. He appeared to be awake and conscious several times, but could not speak. At 6:15 he was apparently awake. He then closed his eyes gently and died without even a tremor. The funeral will take place on Friday. A committee of Senators is expected to be here.

A Valuable Addition.

Because it is beneficial to the scalp and adds to personal beauty by restoring color and lustre to gray or faded hair, is why Parker's Hair Balsam is such a popular dressing.
