A turne trade is done in exporting timber from America to Australia, which gets most of her wood from other countrics. In 1885 there were imported into of timber, valued at $2,201,000. Of this amount 23,000,000 feet were from the United States, a larger quantity than from any other country. New Zealand comes next in the amount and value of the import, and British America third. Norway furnishes the largest share of dressed timber, and our Consul at Sydney, Mr. Griffio, thinks that this is occased by the low price of labor in that country. The imports from the United States consist principally of pine and redwood from the States and Territories on the Pacific slope. The sawmills of California, Oregon and Washington Territory rank among the foremost in the world, and are equipped with the best and latest improvements in inilling machinery. The sawed timber of the Parific alone is often 150 feet, in length, Preparations are being made for its shipnt in larger quantities than ever not only to Australia, but Japan and other countries. The men who own timber land in Australia are very jealous of the popular ty of the American woods, and strong efforts are being made to have the govcrament increase the tax upon the timher imports. They want the present duty The except they make for wanting this protection is that the American wood takes fire too casely. It is likely that this effort will be successful, and
