A CHATHAMITE IN CALIFORNIA. Our former county man, Mr. George W. Perry, who moved to California about two years ago, is now on a visit to his old home in Hadley township. His many friends are pleased to greet him again and to learn of the success he has had in his new home. When he first went to California he went to work on a ranch, about 25 miles from Los Angeles, and by his steady habits and industry he soon won the confidence of his employer so as to become the manager of the ranch, which held for several years.

When we published an account of our trip to California two years ago, and told of the wonderful wheat farms out there, many of our readers thought that we were exaggerating, but Mr. Perry's statements fully corroborate all that we said. In order to give our readers an idea of a Californian wheat farm, or ranch, as it is there called, we will here publish what Mr. Perry tells about the ranch of which he is the manager. He says that it consists of 6,000 acres in cultivation, 3,000 acres in wheat and 1,000 acres in barley. The average yield of barley to the acre is about 35 bushels, and of wheat nearly 25 bushels. His last year's crop of wheat amounted to 121,000 bushels. What do our Chatham farmers think of that?

Mr. Perry says that during the threshing season in threes he averages 2,250 bushels of wheat every day. His threshing is run by a steam engine of 25 horse-power, and the wheat is threshed in the fields as soon as it is cut. They do not use the reaper and binder, but a machine called a 'header,' that cuts off the heads of wheat, and leaves the stubble. The uses four of these headers, and each one cuts 20 acres a day. Each header cuts a swath 10 feet wide, and is drawn by 8 horses, hitched 2 abreast. Ten horses, each with 4 horses, are employed to haul up the wheat as it is cut. The total number of horses on this ranch is nearly 200, of which 100 are of 1750 lb. ploughing the land. Mr. Perry uses 12 mowing machines, each pulled by 4 horses and each cuts 19 acres a day.

Raised with such immense wheat crops raised so much cheaper than we can, is it any wonder that Chatham farmers cannot compete with California farmers? And is it any wonder, after reading this story, that the price of wheat is so low?

Mr. Perry himself estimates the ranch's expenditure in two years at $100,000, and that they produce a net profit of $100,000. He says that he would not be surprised if this it was faring to Chatham.
