DEMOCRATIC COUNTY TICKET.

For the Senate:
ADDISON H. PERRY.

For the House:
ROLAND H. HAYES,
JOHN J. PEOPLES.

For Sheriff:
STEPHEN W. BREWER.

For Clerk:
SAMUEL M. HOLT.

For Register:
DANIEL H. MARSH.

For Coroner:
ROMULUS S. EUBANKS.

For Surveyor:
HENRY H. SILER.

—Coconuts 5¢, at J. L. Comell's.

—Constable tickets printed at the Record office.

—Dogwood and persimmon timber wanted by B. Noe, Jr.

—The first killing frost of the season was last Monday morning.

—A lot of collins—walnut, oak and pine—for sale cheap, by B. Noe, Jr.

—Remember that there will be a democratic rally today at Graft and tomorrow (Friday) at Richmond.

—When you go to Graham call on our former countymen, Mr. M. F. Crawford, with L. B. Holt & Co.

—Whoever before heard of a candidate deeming it necessary to carry around a certificate to prove his good character?

—An old colored woman, near here, named Mary McLeod, has presented the Register with a beat weighing nearly eight pounds.

—Josephus Daniels and H. A. London will speak at Durham this Saturday. A large crowd is expected.

—A nice new stock of jewelry, watches and clocks just received, and for sale cheap, by W. T. Neese. Watches, clocks, &c., repaired at low rates and in best manner.

—The populist leaders in Chatham want all the offices for themselves, and are unwilling to give any office to the republicans, and yet they can be elected only by the solid republican vote.

—Thomas Quinn, a well known old colored man, died near here on last Sunday. In his younger days, before the war, he was a noted fiddler and furnished the music for all the dances in this community.

—Mr. Sylvester Johnson died at this place, on last Monday, from the effects of a wound in the leg, received during the late war. He was a brave soldier and a good citizen, highly respected by all who knew him.

—There is not a candidate on the populist ticket in Chatham who now claims to be a republican. What sort of "fusion" is that? If the populists expect republicans to vote on their ticket, why did they not put a republican on it?

—On the first day of our county canvass Mr. Wicker not only refused to say who he would vote for for United States Senator, but he also refused to say whether or not he would vote for W. P. Bynum, Jr., for Solicitor. Why?

—W. H. Edwards, dentist, will visit Bynum on Monday and Tuesday, and Pittsboro' on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, following the third Sunday of each month, prepared to do all kind of dental work. Office next to Bynum & Hendon.

—Let the voters of Chatham re-member that the populist leaders attempted to prevent the republican candidates from discussing the political issues with the other candidates. If these intolerant leaders had the power they would not allow any candidates to speak, except their own!

—Ladies, if you want a nice comfortable pair of shoes and a pair that will wear well, call at W. L. London & Son's and get a pair of Zeiglers, they have all kinds and sizes. They also have a stock of men's fine shoes which are very cheap. They are selling a good stout woman's shoe for 60 cents.

—Mr. W. P. Bynum, Jr., of Greenboro, the republican candidate for Solicitor in this judicial district, has been speaking in this county this week, but has failed to draw any crowds, only 17 listeners being at one of his appointments. The populists have no candidate for Solicitor, so far as we can learn.

—Have you seen those cheap cloaks at W. L. London & Son's. Another lot of ladies hats and millinery goods received this week. You can buy the best $5 overcoat you ever saw at London's, these coats brought $7.50 last year. They have received a large lot of cakes and crackers, which they will sell at wholesale or retail.

Suppressing Free Speech.

A POPULIST "REFORM"—AFRAID OF DISCUSSIONS—ATTEMPT AT GAU LAW, &c.

From time immemorial it has been the custom in Chatham for all the county candidates to accompany the sheriff at his tax gatherings, and have a joint discussion in the presence of the people. In this way the people would see face to face and hear all the candidates who sought their votes. And it made no difference by what convention or caucus these candidates were nominated, or whether they had received any nomination at all, every body and every body had the right to be a candidate and appear before the people for their votes. In some campaigns there were three sets of candidates, the democratic, the republican and the prohibition; and in many campaigns there were independent candidates, who had not been nominated by any party or convention, and yet they had the same right to attend the sheriff's tax gathering and present their claims before the people. Indeed no person had ever presumed to question their right, for it was conceded that this is a free country and the people were willing to give every candidate a fair hearing, whether he was the nominee of a convention or an independent. Every citizen of Chatham knows that this has been the true honored custom in this county, and therefore all will be surprised to learn that one of the "reforms" proposed by the populist leaders is to break up this custom.

Promptly at 12 o'clock the discussion began. Sheriff Jenkins began. He was followed by ex-sheriff Brewer, and by Mr. Paul Norwood, who announced himself as the republican candidate for sheriff. The candidates for clerk and register then announced their candidacy, each in only a few words. Then he began the political discussion by the legislative candidates, each one being invited to have an hour with ten minutes for a reply. Mr. A. W. Wicker opened the discussion in his most dramatic and oratorical style, and poured the trials of life upon upon the democratic party, uttering not one word against the republican party. He seemed to think that the democrats were more to blame than the republicans, because during only one session of Congress they had not been able to make the mischief that had been done by the republicans in thirty-three years!

Mr. Wicker was followed by Mr. A. H. Perry, who in a pleasant manner proceeded to puncture his windy arguments, and then showed the same question and he also refused to answer, but Mr. Self frankly stated (without even being asked) that he would vote for Pritchard or for any other republican whom the populists might nominate. Mr. Perry did succeed in getting Mr. Wicker to admit he endorsed Senator Peeler, who introduced a resolution into the Senate to raise all the revenues of the government by taxes on real estate.

Mr. Wicker then turned to the other party, and refused to answer although many persons in the audience called on him to answer like a man! And just here we would state that Mr. J. H. Bryan was a son-skinned question and he also refused to answer, but Mr. Self frankly stated (without even being asked) that he would vote for Pritchard or for any other republican whom the populists might nominate. Mr. Perry did succeed in getting Mr. Wicker to admit he endorsed Senator Peeler, who introduced a resolution into the Senate to raise all the revenues of the government by taxes on real estate.

The next speaker was Mr. Bryan D. Mason, who announced himself as the republican candidate for the senate, and made the same sort of speech that he had made when he was the republican candidate in 1889. Then came the catch questions for the House, Mr. J. E. Bryan leading off. He began by reading a certificate of his good character, which is the first time in Chatham that we have ever heard of any candidate desiring such a vindication necessary. He followed this up by stating that he had been a very bad man but had reformed. He then continued in personalities, defending himself and making all sorts of personal charges against almost everybody else, and not even attempting to discuss any of the great political questions. So disgusted was the respectable portion of his hearers with his speech that we heard several old men say that never had they heard the like before. He attempted to create a prejudice against Mr. Hayes by stating that he was a lawyer and for that reason ought not to be elected. To this Mr. Hayes replied that he is a lawyer, duly licensed by the Supreme Court, but that Mr. Bryan while a magistrate, and contrary to his oath of office, had attempted to practice law and had been indicted for it! Mr. Hayes also told him that he (Bryan) ought to be the last man to abuse the lawyers, because in all his troubles—in all the cases in which he had been indicted—he was very glad to get a lawyer to defend him. Mr. Hayes made one of the best campaign speeches that we have ever heard in Chatham and was listened to with the closest attention by everybody, including the populists, except a new "smart Alook" who interrupted him frequently with questions, which he invariably answered to their dis-satisfaction to avoid the laughter of the audience. He was followed by Mr. F. M. Farrel, who announced himself as a republican candidate. He told the colored people that they ought not to abandon their old party which had given them freedom, and in every way attempted to rally the old republicans and not allow them selves to be trifled with by designing office seekers. Mr. Self then spread himself, and the chief burden of his speech was the extravagance of our State government. Among other expenditures he denounced the expenses paid for the funeral of Gov. Fowle and the furnishing of the Governor's Mansion. This was got ting down about as low as any demagogue could descend, but it seemed especially inconsistent and ridiculous coming in a candidate who had been an old "fire tried" republican ever since the war until he joined the populist ticket in 1889.

After the above speeches had been made it was agreed to have the other legislative candidates (Messrs. John J. Peoples and Sherman Galloway) do not attempt to make any further speeches, but briefly announced their candidacy. On the whole it was a "sized" day for the democrats and they will greatly elated. The contrast was very striking between the speeches of the democratic candidates and those of their opponents, and this contrast will become more striking every day during the campaign, and ought to create a political revolution in Chatham.

—Populist leaders are telling their followers not to hear democratic speakers.
