

H. A. LONDON, Editor.

The Atlanta Exposition.

The Atlanta Exposition is well worth seeing and a visit to it will well repay anyone who wishes to have his eyes enlarged with useful information as to the resources and resources of our great country, and especially of the South. It has been our privilege to have visited many of the leading exhibitions held in the United States, beginning with the Philadelphia Centennial in 1876 and ending with the Chicago Exposition in 1893, and after seeing them all we are pleased to state that the Atlanta Exposition compares most favorably with any of them. While neither its buildings nor its exhibits are as large and extensive as those of the Chicago Exposition, yet it may be termed a representative smaller scale and more complete than any of the others. It is situated on the site of the old city of Milledgeville, which was the capital of Georgia from 1807 to 1845. The grounds have been laid out and the buildings erected in a most attractive and harmonious manner. The main building is a plain, called the "Palace of Agriculture," which is a masterpiece of architecture. It is a long, low building with a series of arches along its front. The grounds are well kept and the exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner.

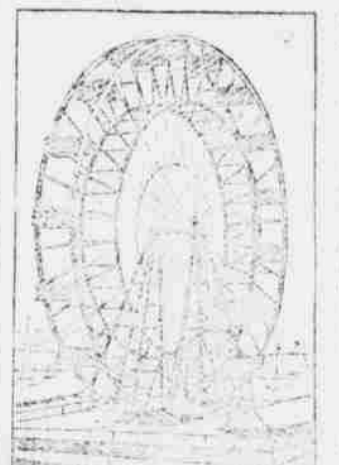

The main building is a masterpiece of architecture. It is a long, low building with a series of arches along its front. The grounds are well kept and the exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner.

All North Carolinians who visit the Exposition deeply regret and are gratified that their good old State has no exhibit there. Every other Southern State has a very creditable exhibit, displaying its products and resources, but poor old North Carolina is conspicuous by her absence. As is well known, our State Legislature refused to have our State represented. But though the State itself has no exhibit, yet thanks to the public spirit and generous contribution of the Seaboard Air Line system of railroads, North Carolina is not entirely unknown at Atlanta. That company at once offered and with most judicious care has collected a most highly creditable exhibit of the products of the territory traversed by its rails, extending from Portsmouth to Atlanta. In this exhibit, which occupies a central and conspicuous space, there is the Agricultural Building, to be seen the varied products of North Carolina's mines, forests, and fields. For instance, there are there are displayed in this exhibit sixty varieties of hard wood beautifully polished, thirty-six varieties of peaches, eighteen varieties of grapes, ten varieties of apples, eleven of cherries, thirteen of pears, and luscious looking fruit, some of the most species of rice, and other berries. In this exhibit, there are specimens of our mines and minerals, including some of our Carolina coal, which was the only coal on exhibit. All kinds of grains and cereals were displayed in abundance, and there was also a good display of hops from Granville, some of the best in the industry which should be fostered in our State. There were also in this exhibit of the S. A. L. many specimens of the good manufactured products of North Carolina, some of which were of the highest quality. There were also in this exhibit of the S. A. L. many specimens of the good manufactured products of North Carolina, some of which were of the highest quality. There were also in this exhibit of the S. A. L. many specimens of the good manufactured products of North Carolina, some of which were of the highest quality.

The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner.

The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner.

ter dark when thousands upon thousands of electric lights light their windows and houses. The grounds and buildings are so brilliantly illuminated that the sky is lit up as if it were a vast field of stars. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner.

The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner.

The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner. The exhibits are arranged in a most attractive manner.

WAR REMINISCENCES.

A. Calhoun, Calhoun, Calhoun.

The following article, clipped from the Richmond Dispatch, was enclosed in a parcel from the editor from Gen. John H. Lane of Auburn, Ala., who is a descendant of great-grandfather John Calhoun. It is a most interesting and valuable contribution to the history of the war.

The following article, clipped from the Richmond Dispatch, was enclosed in a parcel from the editor from Gen. John H. Lane of Auburn, Ala., who is a descendant of great-grandfather John Calhoun. It is a most interesting and valuable contribution to the history of the war.

terrible charge by the North Carolina.

Major Cowtan had examined a case of the dead confederates, who were lying on the ground at the work, and near one found a torn and bloody commission, on which was written only "John C." of the name.

Major Cowtan expressed a desire to return this commission if any relatives of the dead soldier could be found. The commission was found to be that of the brig. Gen. John Caldwell. It was a most interesting and valuable contribution to the history of the war.

Major Cowtan expressed a desire to return this commission if any relatives of the dead soldier could be found. The commission was found to be that of the brig. Gen. John Caldwell. It was a most interesting and valuable contribution to the history of the war.

DO YOU WANT THE BEST?

We lay especial stress on the excellence of our goods, always keeping the quality up to the highest point, prices down to the lowest point. We are now opening a grand assortment of Fall and Winter Goods.

Just purchased in New York and will sell them at a low price. We have a large stock of goods, and we are now opening a grand assortment of is magnificent. Our Dressmaker's department is splendid and very full. All kinds of new styles, trimmings, and fancy goods. We have never had so large and cheap a stock of clothing as we now have.

Our Stock of Millinery

Our Shoe Department

contains double the supply we have ever had and as cheap as they ever before. We try to keep everything up to the highest point, prices down to the lowest point. We are now opening a grand assortment of

W. L. LONDON & SONS.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 10, 1909.

CONDENSED REPORT OF THE CONDITION OF THE Commercial and Farmers Bank,

AS SET FORTH IN AN ANNUAL REPORT MADE AT THE ANNUAL MEETING, 1909.

RESOURCES. LIABILITIES.

Capital paid in $100,000.00

Surplus $21,623.11

Banking Assets $11,325.63

Current Assets $311,495.96

Total $474,444.70

We solicit your patronage and we guarantee satisfaction. We will be pleased to correspond with you in all matters relating to the business of the bank.

J. S. THOMAS, President.

W. L. LONDON & SONS.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 10, 1909.

IT PAYS TO BUY AT TUCKER'S.

We sell the best quality of goods at the lowest prices. We have a large stock of goods, and we are now opening a grand assortment of

Our goods are of the highest quality and we are now opening a grand assortment of

Our goods are of the highest quality and we are now opening a grand assortment of

Our goods are of the highest quality and we are now opening a grand assortment of

Our goods are of the highest quality and we are now opening a grand assortment of

Our goods are of the highest quality and we are now opening a grand assortment of

Our goods are of the highest quality and we are now opening a grand assortment of

Our goods are of the highest quality and we are now opening a grand assortment of

Our goods are of the highest quality and we are now opening a grand assortment of

Our goods are of the highest quality and we are now opening a grand assortment of

Our goods are of the highest quality and we are now opening a grand assortment of

Our goods are of the highest quality and we are now opening a grand assortment of

Our goods are of the highest quality and we are now opening a grand assortment of