The Chatham Record

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 28 .1895.

TODAY has been appointed by the civil authority and is observed by the churches as our annual Thanksgiving Day—as a day for especial prayer and thanksgiving. This is a time honored custom most proper and appropriate. While every day in every day in the year should render prayer and praise and thanksgiving for the blessings and mercies vouchsafed by Almighty God, yet it is eminently right and proper that on particular day should be specially designated for that purpose. And if any people in this world have especial cause for observing a general Thanksgiving Day, it is the American people, the inhabitants of these United States. No people of any country, in either ancient or modern times, can compare with us in our favored lot, in the blessings that are showered upon us. Yes, it is undoubtedly true our lot has been cast in pleasant places and that we are blessed above all the nations of the earth. Ought we not then to be duly thankful? Is it asking too much, for our people to give one day for this purpose?

And how shall this day be spent? In sports and amusements? In gluttony and feasting? In debauchery and drunkenness? Or, in the words of the President's proclamation, should we not "forego our usual occupations and in our accustomed places of worship join in rendering thanks to the Giver of every good and perfect gift?" What an acceptable sight in the eyes of that merciful God would be the spectacle of an entire people assembled in their respective churches, throughout the broad land of ours, devoutly and prayerfully giving Him thanks for the great blessings bestowed on them!

But there may be some chronic grumblers who say they have nothing to be thankful for, and who cannot cease their complaints even on Thanksgiving Day. Such miserable creatures are rather to be pitied than censured, and their unhappy lot must be admitted by all. Yes, even the most unlucky mortal must admit that in the words of the Governor's proclamation, "let us remember in our prayers and offerings the charitable institutions of the State, the wounded and needy soldiers, the orphans, the poor and afflicted, and by substantial giving show forth the thankfulness of our hearts". Let us all so observe this Thanksgiving Day as to express our appreciation of the blessings already enjoyed and to hope for a continuance of the same!

CONGRESS will meet next Monday, and the republican party, which for so many years controlled every department of the federal government, will again control the legislative department. And but for the veto power of a democratic President this republican Congress could re enact all the odious and oppressive laws, which the same party had once before enacted and were repealed by a democratic Congress. And strange to say, for it does seem so strange a contradiction, some former democrats are pleased and happy (or pretend to be) at this state of affairs. Yes, there are some former democrats now rejoicing at the defeat of their old party and at the success of the very party which they formerly denounced so bitterly. Men, who only a few years ago were denouncing the republican party for its unjust and oppressive legislation, have aided that party in its restoration to power and are doing all they can to enable that party to do the very same thing again. How strangely inconsistent and contradictory is our frail and perverse human nature!

The Representatives in this Congress were elected over a year ago, and it does seem strange that this is not changed so as to prevent so long an interval between their election and the meeting of Congress.

Already a horde of hungry office seekers are swarming in Washington, eagerly trying to secure the offices and pieces of "pie" which Congress can give.

TONIGHT there will be a jollification and thanksgiving meeting of republicans at Raleigh, when the "old fire tried" will rejoice over the result of the recent elections. No doubt they will also shout in their loose [illegible] winning their victory and restoring them once more to power.

THE THIRTY-SECOND REGIMENT.

ITS ORGANIZATION--

CONSPICUOUSLY COMPLIMENTED.

FLAG PRESENTATION AT CARLISLE—GALLANTRY AT GETTYSBURG.

Instead of the Richmond weekly "War Reminiscences" we begin in this issue the publication of a sketch of the 32nd N. C. regiment, in which was a company from this county—mustered into the service and was in Pickett's division during the war. Some readers are aware it was decided last year, at a meeting of the State Confederate Veterans Association, to have a history written by one of its survivors, and then all these histories to be published in book form. Judge Walter Clark was appointed historian and superintendent and has since worked, and at his request the colonel of the 32nd has written the following sketch of the 32nd regiment, which will be continued from week to week until the whole history of that regiment is published. Every one of the survivors of that regiment should read these reminiscences and suggest omissions and corrections, and any one having any data or papers bearing upon the history of the regiment will please furnish them to Col. Cowand, or to the undersigned, as soon as possible, that the history of this regiment may be strictly accurate, full and just.

The regiments composing the Fifth Brigade, Second Division, Second Army Corps, were organized as follows:

Company A, in Tyrrel
Company B, in Gaston
Company C, in Northampton,
Company D, in Northampton,
Company E, in Catawba,
Company F, in Catawba,
Company G, in Burke,
Company H, in Nash,
Company I, in Cleveland,
Company K, in Franklin.

Although this regiment was not organized until the year 1862, yet many of the companies composing it had seen service in the field for nearly a year before that time. Company A, Tyrrel Rifles, was one of the companies of the 1st North Carolina Regiment, which was the first regiment to be mustered into the service of the State. Company B, Gaston Rifles, was one of the companies of the 2nd North Carolina Regiment, which was also one of the first regiments to be mustered into the service of the State. Company C, Northampton Rifles, was one of the companies of the 14th North Carolina Regiment, which was also one of the first regiments to be mustered into the service of the State. Company D, Northampton Riflemen, was one of the companies of the 35th North Carolina Regiment, which was also one of the first regiments to be mustered into the service of the State. Company E, Catawba Rifles, was one of the companies of the 18th North Carolina Regiment, which was also one of the first regiments to be mustered into the service of the State. Company F, Catawba Rifles, was one of the companies of the 28th North Carolina Regiment, which was also one of the first regiments to be mustered into the service of the State. Company G, Burke Rifles, was one of the companies of the 23rd North Carolina Regiment, which was also one of the first regiments to be mustered into the service of the State. Company H, Nash Rifles, was one of the companies of the 33rd North Carolina Regiment, which was also one of the first regiments to be mustered into the service of the State. Company I, Cleveland Guards, was one of the companies of the 28th North Carolina Regiment, which was also one of the first regiments to be mustered into the service of the State. Company K, Franklin Rifles, was one of the companies of the 33rd North Carolina Regiment, which was also one of the first regiments to be mustered into the service of the State.

The 32nd regiment was organized at Camp Mangum, Raleigh, N. C., on the 16th day of August, 1862, by the election of the following field officers: Colonel, Edward Conigland Brabble; Lieutenant Colonel, Alexander Craig Godwin; Major, Robert Frederick Webb. Colonel Brabble was a graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point, and had resigned from the United States Army at the beginning of the war between the States, and had been appointed Colonel of Ordnance in the Confederate Army. He was a gallant officer, and was killed at the battle of Sharpsburg, Md., on the 17th day of September, 1862. Lieutenant Colonel Godwin was a native of Duplin county, and had been a captain in the 3rd North Carolina Regiment, which was one of the first regiments to be mustered into the service of the State. He was a gallant officer, and was killed at the battle of Fredericksburg, Va., on the 13th day of December, 1862. Major Webb was a native of Granville county, and had been a captain in the 14th North Carolina Regiment, which was also one of the first regiments to be mustered into the service of the State. He was a gallant officer, and was killed at the battle of Gettysburg, Pa., on the 2nd day of July, 1863.

The regiment was ordered to Camp Holmes, near Raleigh, N. C., where it remained until the 29th day of August, 1862, when it was ordered to Kinston, N. C., and was brigaded with the 43rd North Carolina Regiment, Colonel Kenan, the 44th North Carolina Regiment, Colonel Murchison, and the 53rd North Carolina Regiment, Colonel Avery, and was assigned to Hoke's brigade, Hoke's division, Department of North Carolina. The 32nd regiment remained in Kinston and vicinity until the 14th day of December, 1862, when it was ordered to Goldsboro, N. C., and was brigaded with the 6th North Carolina Regiment, Colonel Lewis, the 21st North Carolina Regiment, Colonel Hoke, and the 57th North Carolina Regiment, Colonel Lamb, and was assigned to Clingman's brigade, Hoke's division, Department of North Carolina.
