Never Satisfied.

"Yes, my eldest daughter married for money."

"Far from it. While she has every thing she could wish for, she is far from being happy. She loved another."

"Your second daughter also married did she not?"

"Yes, she married a man for his good looks."

"I suppose she is happy?"

"Indeed, she is not. While her husband is a good provider, he can't afford to give her what her elder sister receives, and consequently, she is unhappy."

"And your youngest daughter, the one I always thought so much of, is she married?"

"Yes, she married a man for love."

"All sensible little girls!"

"But her husband is very poor!"

"Still, with all her poverty, she loves the man of her choice, and is, of course, happy!"

"No, indeed. She is the unhappiest of the three."—San Francisco Wave

COULDN'T AGREE WITH HIMSELF.

In the trial of a case in Powell County, Ky., not long ago the attorneys objected to all the jurors who had been summoned save one. As no others were at hand, it was agreed that the action should be tried by the one juror left.
