- Life's but a required river, flowing on To rain the count, whose grim name is
- We float upon its surface, then are gone, Learning its besons when, alas' too late. We quarred with the sunshine while 'tis there.
- Pinck not the flowers that bloscom all Bround,
 Herd not the beauties in this world so fair,
 This round chies thicken, and the vision's drawness.

- Which sees not want tologs are or ought to be.

 So dwafed our knowledge truth confounds with treatm.

 And pride weat toll us we've not power to few.

 Contestant its a lesson past our learning.

 We room the happiness the gods do send:

 For fare-off words and myths we've always verning.
- To stoop to beauties near our minds won't beat to be but one long and fruitless strain-
- To get beyond what is within our reach:
 The river flows on without a moment
 difguing
 To liven to the wisdom we would teach;
 And Fare is reached—the dark and seething
- which overs all and well its secrets keep;
 We float all and what coward motion,
 This is a over and in death we sleep.

Miss Faith's Advice.

Miss Faith act in close companion-ship, as usual, with her familiar spirit, a pince of enclisted edging. Her touch upon the masses of tangled touch upon the mases of tangled thread was very goutle, even endearing, and her look of content as she held it up and noted its effect as a whole scenied vastly out of pronoution to the cause. Mase Faith was still pretty, with the paths is beauty held as flotuan from the wrick of years. Her hair was pertied as silver than it had ever been as brown, and her eyes, though they had lost their vivid glow and cargeness. Indigened a kindly sympative Her tenderness had even extended to the crocheting in her hard singured something to that usually very impersonal object that usually very impersonal object that her fancy had fettled into thinking a tesponee. She passed her hand affec-tionately over it now, as the figure of a pineapole much conventionalized, repeating itself like history again and again fell in explanate the floor again, fell in scalleys to the floor. 'It's most done,' she thought. 'I can so back to the oak leaf pretty

A change in the etochet pattern was the chief diversion of Faith's life, that the child sirveston of Faith's life, that can che as menotoneously to the coherence as the time of the famous harper who played upon only one string. To no and the coming of a stick or a stone may be a great event. It is not hard to understand how a life that consists in taking infinite pains with many little things may get its slips of excitoment, interest and novelty from a change it a pattern of ath signs of excitoment, interest and novelty from a change in a pattern of crushel. The examination of the work appears I to be satisfactory, and Faith had it on the table at her side. This table was desored to the uses of her art, nor was ever profused by the presence of any area and substance. There were too a of spools upon it, drawn up in lines like sold upon it, drawn up in lines like sold upon it, sides in the lines in the side and various rolls of lace, the finished product of their warfare. Faith reproduct of their warfare. Faith reproduct of their warner. Faith re-garded them with approval, but her hand that had lain upon the table fell away from the accust smell task, and she sat ille, watching the red coal, the shallows the lamplight threw upon the carpet and listening to the clatter that

She wondered, as she sat staring dolly at the blaze, how the crecheting had come to mean so much to her and could not think for the instant, then half remembered, saddened a little, lost the thread of memory again, re-covered it and fell to musing, her elboy serting on the table, her check in he ever really happened. soon returned, bringing three rolls of very broad crocheted lace. "Can you crochet, Grace?" "Not very much," said Grace,

"Not very much," said Grace, wonderingly, "Well, I will teach you. This is the way I learned to forget. The nec lie slips in and out, and the sunlight and slips in and out, and the sunlight and firelight shine on it, and the lace grows and is so pretty, and it brings comfort. When I began, I couldn't see the needle—ch, how long ago that it—for the tears. That was when I knew he would never come again, and I hall my wedding dress all ready—it's grown yellow in a chest in the garret. But after awhile the lace took up my trouble drop by drop till it was gone, and I couldn't tell you today where it is. So I'll teach you, dear. There are the three rolls I did in the three years, one for cach. They are yellow years, one for cach. They are yellow ow, you see."

Faith opened one and spread it out. It was an intricate pattern, very broad.
"It's hard to do," she said, "but that is all the better for the forgetting. If I'd been a man, I should have gone away to Africa. I've often thought it would do a good deal toward making a body forget to see the sun falling down like a ball and the dark come acif somebody had blown out the light. But I couldn't very well, so I learned to crochet. I never gave the lace away, you see, because I had we ked my trouble into it, and I was attail I thought a long time about it when Alice was married, but I was afraid it would some way make her sail when she were it. So it's all here. This is the first year's—you see I've numbered it one-and this is the second and this is the third's. There's the
