

LOVELL DIAMONDS STAND THE TEST.

Board of Experts So Decide.

Remarkable Investigation From Which
The Lovell Diamond Bicycle Came
Out Ahead of All Competitors.

Where there are so many makes of bicycles on the market, all of which at first sight seem to be equally good, it is not surprising that the public is often puzzled as to which is the best. The Lovell Diamond Bicycle is the only one that has been tested by a board of experts and found to be the best.

COLONEL HERBERT S. LOVELL,
President of the Lovell Diamond Bicycle Co.

The Lovell Diamond Bicycle is the only one that has been tested by a board of experts and found to be the best. It is made of the finest materials and is built to last. The Lovell Diamond Bicycle is the only one that has been tested by a board of experts and found to be the best.

HOUSEHOLD MATTERS

Fish to Cream.

Take a pint of cold boiled fish, remove bones, flake it. Mix with sprigs of watercress, cover with sweet milk, scald and season with a half-teaspoonful of salt and a saltspoonful of white pepper just before sending to the table. This is a delicate breakfast. Fishman haddock and smoked salmon served this way, after a thorough cooking, are excellent. They require no salt.

Delicious Peanut Wafers.

Peanut wafers are delicious. To make them, stir to a cream one-half cup of butter and one cupful sugar; add three-quarters of a cup of milk, two eggs, and a dash of salt. Beat the mixture until it is thick and creamy. Spread on a greased pan and bake in a moderate oven until brown. As soon as the tin is taken from the oven cut the cakes in squares, lift carefully from the tin and place on the moulding board to cool. Keep in tin to preserve their crispness.

Ideal Griddle Cakes.

"Wholesome" and "delicious," used in conjunction, have an appetizing sound, that is not belied by the breakfast product thus designated. To make ideal buttermilk griddle cakes, beat into a quart of buttermilk one teaspoonful of soda, a half-teaspoonful of salt, and flour to make a rather stiff batter.

When smooth and light, take a rich brown on the griddle. A common mistake made by many cooks is to add eggs to pancake batters; but, as a rule, cakes made with eggs are never so delicate as those thickened with their alone. Do not have the griddle remaining in grease. If you use the iron griddle, a bit of suet or fat pork, tied in a piece of cheesecloth, and quickly wiped over the griddle without leaving an offensive trail of fat behind, will be quite sufficient to keep the cakes from sticking.

A Plea For Salt Mackerel.

An antiquary makes a plea for the rather maligned salt mackerel. It is indigestible, and consequently disliked, he asserts, because its preparation and also the method of eating are not understood. The first point to be insisted upon is its thorough freshening. There is no danger of getting it too fresh, because salt can always be added, but there is the necessity of getting rid of traces of the curing process. It should then be broiled, and if it is planned into boiling water for an instant, when it is broiled, this operation will plump it to an attractive appearance. It is better for being broiled with a little olive oil than with butter, which is too rich. The second point to be insisted upon is its proper preparation. It should be served with a little lemon juice and a dash of salt. It is a valuable food, and a useful addition to the breakfast menu.—New York Post.

Household Hints.

Agreeing wages not suitable for hiring or for the rendering of suits.
Remington or a letter is much better than a telegram than in fact.
In sweeping a carpet, remember always to sweep with the pile, and not against it.
The water in which the fresh tongue, mutton or chicken is boiled may be used for soups added to the stock pot.
Table linens are now being made of silk and have gained considerable popularity among those who can afford them.
The marking table and bed linen are made of a material that is more durable than the old-fashioned ones.
A good cloth should belong to every household. It is a simple matter to preserve. Only the best granulated sugar should be used. Do not use any made from tin, but three-month glass jars.
A member is added to the household's stock of carpets in her pantry with this will be found most of them for covering the chimney from woodlands, corners of the window and over the heads of the beds.
One of the simplest and most efficient means of drying away rats is to set a corner of chloride of lime around the places which they frequent. They do not eat the lime, but its fumes are very disagreeable to them and will result in their leaving the neighborhood.
In individual and exclusive tablecloths, hemstitched and with hemstitched medallions to match, we found in great variety of attractive patterns. For afternoon reception small round tables, the best sized cloth are thirty-six by thirty-six and fifty-four by fifty-four. They may be had in finest damask as well as in plain hemstitched effects.
An excellent salve for foot jelly may be made from the hind huckle or hock in place of the feet. Indeed, many give it the preference, thinking it has a better taste, in making the traditional salve for foot jelly, considered specially suitable for invalids, one set of feet or "bottles" are allowed to one gallon of water. This heated slowly and strained gently will give two quarts of jelly.

Prayer of the Pedestrian.

Keep me this day unharmed, I pray,
From whatever coming up and down
They may look out care, not they care,
They bowl one'er and side away,
And who they are there's none can say,
And you with broken ribs and crown.

From reckless driving, I suppose,

Guard me this day. I fear the boy
Who drives his car so small, petty sure,
Each year their numbers grow the more,
They dash along with wild uproar,
And scientists fill them with joy.

But if it be ordained that I
Must meet to-day with dispiriting fate,
That spite of how I strive and try,
In spite of care and warning cry,
Am struck, run o'er and scolded by,
Grant me the favor I require.

Let me, while yet I sigh and groan,

Have leave at least to look on chance,
To carry a load of dust into which one
Transported of baking powder has
Been sifted, and a teaspoonful of Vanilla.

Let me be bruised by cable cars,

Street railroads are the best to suit;
Or some great brewer's wagon pass
By with their horns and rattling brass,
And leave me with the fury as I pass,
Scars tell with twelve good men and True.

Keep me, I pray, unharmed this day

As I go forth where danger lies;
Let it be done, I pray, without
Let it be done, I pray, without
By those means which I try to shun,
For damage and compensation

Strange Things Pneumonia.

This is the age of things pneumonia. A St. Louis man has invented a rubber duck which can be transformed into a mattress by blowing it up. Everything is blown up nowadays. A patient has been granted for a kind of cap which, being blown up, may be made to serve as a pillow at night or as a life preserver in case of shipwreck. This is a most convenient thing to travel with on the ocean. There is also a life preserver corset. Better than any of these, however, is a peculiar breast cloth devised by a German. It is interwoven with the grille of goose or other birds and is intended for wearing apparel or for hangings. So light is it that a person on a voyage, if clad in a suit or dress of it, may be sure of floating in case of disaster or falling overboard.

How to keep a cold in your eyes.

It is a common mistake to think that a cold in the eyes is a minor ailment. It is a serious condition and should be treated as such. The best remedy is to use a solution of borax and water. This will soothe the eyes and prevent the cold from spreading to other parts of the face.

Woman's Fate.

From the Boston Herald, Feb. 11.
No woman is better able to speak to others, regarding "woman's fate" than Mrs. Jacob Weaver, of Bushnell, Ill., wife of ex-City Marshal Weaver. She has entirely recovered from the illness which kept her bedfast much of the time for five or six years past, and says her recovery is due to that well-known remedy, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Mrs. Weaver is fifty-six years old, and has lived in Bushnell nearly thirty years. She is a woman of unquestionable veracity and unblemished reputation. The story of her recovery is interesting. She says:

"I suffered for five or six years with the trouble that comes to women at this time of life. I was much weakened, was unable to do any of the things I used to do, and suffered beyond my power to describe. I was disappointed and despondent. I took many different medicines, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I was told that I should try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I bought a bottle and took it according to the directions. I began to feel better in a few days. I was able to do my usual work in a few weeks. I am now as well as ever, and I am sure that it is due to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Outwitted the Laird.

In the absence of a family, says Sparo Moments, the private grounds of a certain Scottish lord were often used by the natives of the two neighboring villages, as thereby a saving of fully a mile was effected.

Occasionally, too, when his lordship was at home, attempts were made to "rouse the blockade" for, whenever any trespasser was caught by his lordship he had to obey the command to "go back the way he had come."

A local hunter, who cautiously wheeled his burrow along the forbidden path one day, happened to see his lordship before the latter saw him, and he only turned the burrow round and down with his back to the dreaded laird, who, coming up, gave him a severe reprimand and then ordered him to "wheel about and go back by the road by which he had come."

The wily hunter did as he was bidden, thereby turning his burrow in the direction in which he wished to go, and so effectually outwitting the unsuspecting laird.

Woman's Fate.

The clergyman who, a few Sundays ago, whipped out a check-knife from behind his pulpit and brandished it before his throat, and another who during his sermon weighed a balloon with a whisky bottle, may have convinced their congregations that drink is both salutary and delectable, but they seem to have forgotten the rule of rhetoric that such studies burlesque both the subject and the object. Eccentricity and "allow" methods, whether in speech, or journalism, or social life, may enforce attention and excite comment, but are meretricious in character and of doubtful utility.

How to keep a cold in your chest.

It is a common mistake to think that a cold in the chest is a minor ailment. It is a serious condition and should be treated as such. The best remedy is to use a solution of borax and water. This will soothe the chest and prevent the cold from spreading to other parts of the face.

How to keep a cold in your stomach.

It is a common mistake to think that a cold in the stomach is a minor ailment. It is a serious condition and should be treated as such. The best remedy is to use a solution of borax and water. This will soothe the stomach and prevent the cold from spreading to other parts of the face.

A New Swindling Scheme.

The new villain poses as an author. He writes to the typewriter, saying that he has a great deal of invaluable material, and he requires a deposit of $100 security for his safety before it can be forwarded. Once the trusting young woman has forwarded the deposit, the correspondence with the author ends.

Bobby's View.

"I don't want to quarrel, mamma,
But it's this way—don't you see?
I can't agree with sister,
And she won't agree with me."
