The Chatham Record.

THURSDAY, January 11, 1900.

H. A. LONDON, Editor.

QUARANTINE AGAIN.

The quarantine established last week by the commissioners of this county against Gulford county seems to have created quite a sensation among the people of Greensboro, and to have aroused their displeasure. One of their contemporary, the Evening Telegram, of the 5th inst., published editorial upon the matter, and we copy as follows:

"The action of the Board of Commissioners of Chatham county in establishing a quarantine against Guilford county on account of the smallpox scare in this county has created a great deal of comment here to-day by reason of the fact that Chatham county has been the source of a great deal of the smallpox that has been in Guilford county during the past few months. The Chatham Record, the leading paper of Chatham county, has been publishing a series of articles during the past few weeks in which it has attempted to show that the smallpox in Guilford county originated in Chatham county, and that the Guilford county authorities were responsible for the spread of the disease. The Record has been publishing a series of articles