

The Spanish Treasure.

A NOVEL.

By Mrs. Elizabeth C. Winter.
(MARCELINA CASTELLAS.)

CHAPTER XI.

The gratification of the Hamilton family and their affection for her was so genuine that Dolores speedily felt herself as entirely at home as if she had been born there all her life, and from the hour when she had first seen Polly Hamilton until the present moment there had not been the slightest change in the two girls, save in the matter of Clarence Stanley.

Dolores placed Polly's carefully written exercises before her and began reading it, taking up a pen occasionally to correct a word or a phrase, till at last she pushed away the paper, almost impatiently, and murmured half aloud:

"Why am I haunted by that man's face, and by the sound of his voice? It is surely not a pleasant memory, and yet I cannot shake off the thought of him. Can it be possible there is any truth in those rumors of hypnotism with which the whole world seems carried away nowadays? And that man really obtained some wonderful power—did he not? No, no! I won't allow myself to think of such a thing; it would sicken my imagination, and I am not so foolish as to believe in such a thing. I'll never allow myself to dwell on it more."

Stanley resolved again to the examination of Polly's Spanish exercises, and by an effort concentrated his mind upon the task before her, to the exclusion of all else for the time.

But in summer the exercises were not so easy, and it only failed away in one of the probabilities of her writing more than she could bear. Her own heart was not so much in the matter as it had been in winter. She had had some of the exercises before her to study, and she found them very interesting. Her own heart was not so much in the matter as it had been in winter. She had had some of the exercises before her to study, and she found them very interesting.

Given through the family's eyes and ears, and she had seen the light in the eyes of the girl who had been so long in the shadows. She had seen the light in the eyes of the girl who had been so long in the shadows. She had seen the light in the eyes of the girl who had been so long in the shadows.

"On the whole, I don't know but I must be very grateful that Rita doesn't feel any enthusiastic admiration for Clarence. Darling Clara! She would be a very dangerous rival."

"How was my exercise, Mrs. Stanley?" she asked, languishingly. "Oh, I improve in my Spanish."

"Oh, yes, indeed! There were not many mistakes, and I think you have done very well. I am sure you will be very successful in your studies. I am sure you will be very successful in your studies. I am sure you will be very successful in your studies."

"Oh, thank you, dear old lady! And Clarence, too—you will let him be present?"

of sense left. I am going this instant to find for Dolores. May. I know you are going to have to see awful illness—a brain fever or something."

"Not at all," said Dolores. "See, take my hand, feel my pulse—I am perfectly calm. All the recent excitement has left me, and I feel well and happy."

"And, indeed, May Hamilton could not tell you that a very insignificant change had passed over her friend, and so far as her physical condition could show, she would be entirely well."

"You are a wonderful creature," she said in a respectful tone. "And I shall never understand you at all. But of course, this makes you far more interesting, the reading a story in an indefinite number of volumes. Well, then, I would read for Dolores. May this time, but I'll take over my Spanish exercises."

CHAPTER XII.
AS AN INVESTIGATION.

Clarence Stanley could helplessly divert the attention of Professor Stanley Van Pelt. He had tried his best, but the professor's eyes were so keenly directed upon him that he could not help but feel that he was being watched. He was being watched. He was being watched.

"What the mischief are you talking about?" interrupted Stanley, indignantly. "You are said to be a girl. You have your own mind, and you are not to be told what to do by a man. You are not to be told what to do by a man."

"You are not to be told what to do by a man. You are not to be told what to do by a man. You are not to be told what to do by a man. You are not to be told what to do by a man."

"You are not to be told what to do by a man. You are not to be told what to do by a man. You are not to be told what to do by a man. You are not to be told what to do by a man."

WOMAN'S REALITY
DOMESTIC SERVICE IN CHILE.

The Maids Are Much Like Other Girls in Other Lands.

Somewhere in the mountains of Chile, the other day gave a lecture in Boston on the women of her country. Her account of the domestic service situation is interesting.

"There are two kinds of cooks," she said. "The first kind is the one who is paid by the day, and the second kind is the one who is paid by the month."

"The first kind is the one who is paid by the day, and the second kind is the one who is paid by the month. The first kind is the one who is paid by the day, and the second kind is the one who is paid by the month."

"The first kind is the one who is paid by the day, and the second kind is the one who is paid by the month. The first kind is the one who is paid by the day, and the second kind is the one who is paid by the month."

"The first kind is the one who is paid by the day, and the second kind is the one who is paid by the month. The first kind is the one who is paid by the day, and the second kind is the one who is paid by the month."

"The first kind is the one who is paid by the day, and the second kind is the one who is paid by the month. The first kind is the one who is paid by the day, and the second kind is the one who is paid by the month."

New Jersey club women are looking for a successful effort to preserve the Highlands and Mountains, leaving no stone unturned to preserve the beautiful pine forests of Adams county in northern New Jersey.

The little city of Holly, Va., is suffering a great famine in the city. It is suffering a great famine in the city. It is suffering a great famine in the city.

Women's Journalists. Of the thirty-seven journalists of the American Journalists Association...

Published in Holly, Va. The Holly Journal is published in Holly, Va. The Holly Journal is published in Holly, Va.

Published in Holly, Va. The Holly Journal is published in Holly, Va. The Holly Journal is published in Holly, Va.

A thoughtful hostess. A thoughtful hostess is one who is thoughtful of her guests. A thoughtful hostess is one who is thoughtful of her guests.

A thoughtful hostess. A thoughtful hostess is one who is thoughtful of her guests. A thoughtful hostess is one who is thoughtful of her guests.

A thoughtful hostess. A thoughtful hostess is one who is thoughtful of her guests. A thoughtful hostess is one who is thoughtful of her guests.

GOOD ROADS

County Highways. The county highways are in a very bad state of repair. The county highways are in a very bad state of repair.

The county highways are in a very bad state of repair. The county highways are in a very bad state of repair. The county highways are in a very bad state of repair.

The county highways are in a very bad state of repair. The county highways are in a very bad state of repair. The county highways are in a very bad state of repair.

The county highways are in a very bad state of repair. The county highways are in a very bad state of repair. The county highways are in a very bad state of repair.

The county highways are in a very bad state of repair. The county highways are in a very bad state of repair. The county highways are in a very bad state of repair.

The county highways are in a very bad state of repair. The county highways are in a very bad state of repair. The county highways are in a very bad state of repair.

The county highways are in a very bad state of repair. The county highways are in a very bad state of repair. The county highways are in a very bad state of repair.

CUR GOODS IN EUROPE.

We have long held supremacy as a producer of cotton. We are now making supremacy as makers of cloth. American cottons are finding their way into the markets of every country. They can be found in Main, China, and in the shops of the Orient. Brazil is based in Palestine from American cottons.

Photographs are making a contribution to the cotton trade. The photographs are making a contribution to the cotton trade. The photographs are making a contribution to the cotton trade.

Photographs are making a contribution to the cotton trade. The photographs are making a contribution to the cotton trade. The photographs are making a contribution to the cotton trade.

Photographs are making a contribution to the cotton trade. The photographs are making a contribution to the cotton trade. The photographs are making a contribution to the cotton trade.

Photographs are making a contribution to the cotton trade. The photographs are making a contribution to the cotton trade. The photographs are making a contribution to the cotton trade.

Photographs are making a contribution to the cotton trade. The photographs are making a contribution to the cotton trade. The photographs are making a contribution to the cotton trade.

Photographs are making a contribution to the cotton trade. The photographs are making a contribution to the cotton trade. The photographs are making a contribution to the cotton trade.