"With a cry of joy, Auacaona rushed futo his arms and was charped to his heart; and, with devout thankegiving. Tedro know that, for the present at least, he was safe. He had observed with wonder and fear that the more Anacaous was under his influence the less her power became to read his shoughts or foresee his intentions. This psychological mystery, like everything else connected with his Indian wife, served only to increase his dread and horror of her, but for the safety of his gold and his life, he was ready to swear a thousands oaths of love and fidelity, and so regain all his better over the foldow Flower. his power over the Golden Flower. He quickly explained his purpose, and, having vowed her to secrecy, hurried to the shore to make arrangements for quitting the island.

It was natural that Anacaona, as on as she no longer felt the spell of has presence and the influence of his Voice and touch, should begin to doubt litm; and while assuring her own heart that she believed and trusted him. Pedra had built a store-room for his Petro had fount a store-room for his pold and gene in a cave at the foot of a mountain—a sacred spot where only he and has wife were permitted to no.
