

There is trouble in the Republican ranks in this State. After suffering the most disastrous defeat any party has ever experienced in this State it does seem as if the Republican party is in especially hard luck now to have a serious rupture threatened among their leaders. And yet such is their dismal plight.

President Roosevelt has most emphatically declared his disapproval of the attempt in Alabama and North Carolina to organize a "lily white" Republican party. He condemns the course of Senator Pritchard in excluding colored Republicans from any participation in the affairs of the party. He condemns their exclusion from Republican conventions and their ungrateful ill-treatment. He has most emphatically notified the Republican leaders in Alabama and North Carolina that they must change their treatment of the colored Republicans, whom he considers as just as good as the white Republicans and are entitled to the same treatment.

The reason why the President has done this is because of the colored voters in certain Northern States, where they hold the balance of power and can control the election. He is afraid that they will resent the ill-treatment of their Southern brethren by voting the Democratic ticket. If they should, they would carry enough Northern States for the Democrats to elect a President in 1904. This they could easily do, and this the President is afraid they will do unless he stops the ungrateful ill-treatment of the Southern colored Republicans.

It is said that there is a decided difference of opinion among the Republican leaders in this State as to what course they shall pursue. Some are in favor of going ahead with the organization of a "lily white" party and excluding the negroes from any participation in the party's councils. Others, however, are afraid to oppose the President's policy and are willing to take back the colored brother into full fellowship again. What will be the result of this division or which side will prevail, only the future can determine.

Every Democratic member-elect of the next Legislature is no doubt receiving numerous letters from applicants for positions in the Legislature. At the opening of every Legislature there is a swarm of eager applicants at Raleigh, and of course the bulk of them are disappointed, for there are never enough places to go around. Most of the applicants are meritorious and deserve to get the places applied for. They are generally men who have worked hard for the party and need what little they can get. We wish all could get the reward they deserve, but that is impossible and the majority are doomed to disappointment.

The truth is that every Legislature has more employment than are actually needed. Similarly, for eager applicants induces many members of the Legislature insist on the employment of as many men as they need. It might be well for the next Legislature to institute a reform in this respect and only have employees who are actually necessary.

With the passing away of the Populist party in North Carolina there will now be less bitterness in politics. Indeed there has been much less ever since that party became powerless. There was certainly much less during the late campaign than there had been since the organization of that party in 1892.

The members of no political party have ever been so bitter and intolerant as were the Democrats in many counties they need so far as to refuse to pay their premiums who might differ with them in politics. This bitterness and intolerance was caused by the demagogical appeals of their scheming and selfish leaders, whose influence was most baneful. Those leaders were pestiferous agitators, who appealed only to prejudice and whose only object was their own personal advancement. And it was passing strange when an influence such selfish demagogues for a while had ever good honest men!

Washington Letter.
Washington, Nov. 19, 1902.
The congressional session is rapidly drawing to a close. The most interesting subject discussed in recent years. The Republicans have good working majorities in both houses of Congress and there is nothing to prevent them from having their own way, except the fact that the party is split into several factions and that the two important branches, the tariff revision branch and that section which regards the Pledge bill as a special and important, are as far apart as the poles.

Accidentally Shot His Friend.
Asheville, Nov. 17.—William McKee, night watchman at the William Whittier textile plant on the French Broad river, five miles from Asheville, was accidentally shot and instantly killed last night by William Beardwood, a young Englishman. The men were examining McKee's revolver. McKee went out of the room and before he returned loaded the pistol. When he came back he set it rattling in Beardwood's hand and Beardwood, who was holding the revolver and took it in his hands, firing the trigger. A sharp crack followed and McKee fell shot through the heart. The group stands Beardwood in the line.
