CHAPTER XI.

It is hard to say how long the two young men had been in the house when Major Wadsworth came in. The boy was seated on the sofa, and Major Wadsworth sat down in a chair, and they were talking about the war, when Major Wadsworth said, "What do you think of the chances of victory?"

"I think we'll win," said the boy, "but I don't know. We're not strong enough, and we've got to fight hard."

"Yes, we're strong enough," said Major Wadsworth, "but we've got to fight hard."

"Yes, we're strong enough," said the boy, "but we've got to fight hard."

"Yes, we're strong enough," said Major Wadsworth, "but we've got to fight hard."
