Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill.—"I was troubled with falling and inflammation, and the doctors said I could not get well unless I had an operation. I knew I could not stand the strain of one, so I wrote to you sometime ago about my health and you told me what to do. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier I am today a well woman."—Mrs. WILLIAM A. KENNEDY, 21st St., Chicago, Ill.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases of any similar medicine in the country, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaint, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every such suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

HUMOR IN THESE VERDICTS

Quaint Ideas and Expressions Recorded as Having Been Rendered by Coroner's Juries.

Referring to a verdict recently given by a coroner's jury that death was "caused by the medical evidence," the British Medical Journal says: "This verdict may be added to those cited in the report of the select committee on death certification, where Dr. Ogilvie is quoted as saying: 'One verdict came before me a little time ago which was this: "A man died from stone in the kidney, which stone he swallowed when lying on a gravel path in a state of drunkenness." That was given as a verdict. I thought some joke had been played, and I wrote down about it, and found it was an absolute fact. Another one is like this: "Child three months old, found dead, but no evidence whether born alive." These novel judgments recall that an up-state newspaper not long ago spoke of taking a murdered man's "post-mortem" statement.

"I can't stay long," said the chairman of the committee from the colored church. "I just came to see if you wouldn't join de mission band."

"Yo' de lan' sakes, honey," replied the old mammy, "doan' come to me! I can't even play a mouf-organ."—Bippincott's.

Penitent. "Irate Father—Wretch! I saw you stealing kisses from my daughter. Young Man—I admit it, but I am quite willing to give them back to her."

Twin Extravagances. "I don't suppose there is anything gets out of date quicker than a woman's hat?" "Unless it is a battleship."

BREEDING PEDIGREE STOCK IS HIGHLY PROFITABLE

Man Must be Lover of Animals and Possess More Than Ordinary Amount of Patience if He Is to Become a Prosperous Breeder.

Perhaps of all branches of farming breeding pedigree livestock is the most interesting, and, in addition, it has the further recommendation that when properly conducted it is profitable. I know that many persons have dropped money, and some large amounts, over pedigree stock; but I could name several tenant farmers who have weathered bad times and are today in a prosperous condition, thanks mainly to this industry. A man must be a lover of animals and possess a more than ordinary amount of patience if he is to become a prominent breeder, says a writer in Country Life. Furthermore, unless he is able to place a large amount of capital in the business he must be prepared to lock his money up for some years. Those who can afford to buy the best-bred and most typical animals of any breed as foundation stock, and who are content to pay good salaries and wages to competent men to take charge of them, ought soon to get a good return for their investment. Persons with limited means must be satisfied to start with a few animals less perfect in type and conformation or with aged individuals which can be picked up for comparatively little money, and then gradually breed up a stud herd or flock. The latter plan, unless one is a good judge of stock and a practical farmer, is the one I should advise. Clever and experienced breeders are apt to make mistakes in buying, mating and rearing their stock and a novice is sure to purchase his experience very dearly if he starts breeding on too large a scale.

The situation and soil of one's farm should govern, to a great extent, the variety of stock which it is decided to keep.

SEVERAL KINDS OF LEGHORN

Of the several breeds of Leghorn, the white is the most popular and the brown next, says the Farm Poultry. The Buff Leghorns of the best strains have about all the good qualities of the white variety and are fast gaining popularity, the color being more attractive to some tastes. The Black and Dominique Leghorns also have their advocates. Each of the Leghorns, although naturally having single combs, are bred also with rose combs. The rose comb is obtained by introduction of Hamburg blood, and the result is in general a tendency to smaller bodies and smaller eggs in the rose comb varieties. The single combs vary greatly in size and weight, according to strain. Some of the larger strains are almost equal in size to the average of some of the medium weight breeds, and it is claimed that the size is not obtained at the expense of laying powers. The Leghorns, like most of the breeds, need to be bred with care to prevent the tendency to smaller sizes. Small bodies, pinched or cramped in shape, are considered undesirable, as tending to small eggs and lack of constitution. Eight or ten years ago Leghorn cockerels were in considerable demand for crossing. The Leghorn and Brahma cross, Leghorn and Wyandotte, or Leghorn and Plymouth Rock were preferred by many poultrymen to breed crossed chickens for broilers and roasters, and of late years the tendency of the poultry plants seems to be toward the use of one or another of the pure breeds. Cross breeding is more trouble and results less uniform than from the pure breeds.

green food provided we have yards in sufficient numbers. Rape should have growth of a foot high before old fowls have access. Otherwise they will eat it so closely that it will not make much of a growth. It is a delight to see the hens eat at the green rape leaves. Rape also is a good plant to furnish shade for young poultry. Also flies and other insects will alight on the leaves, furnishing insects for the fowls. In a favorable season rape will grow very rapidly. Four weeks from sowing ought to make a fair growth.

Uniting Bee Colonies. Queenless or very weak colonies may be united with others by placing them on top with a newspaper between, leaving a hole so that only one bee at a time can pass from one hive to the other. In a week or two the top hives may be taken off and stored away. Some hives will be found with more honey than others, and equalizing of stores may be practiced, taking care not to move any combs from diseased colonies or the light hives may be fed with syrup or liquid honey in a feeder.

UNCLE CALHOUN SPOKE OUT

Answer No Doubt Truthful, but by No Means Was the Orator Desired.

Booker T. Washington, congratulated by a New York reporter on the success he had made of his life, said with a smile: "I suppose I must be modest and declare that luck has had more to do with my progress, or otherwise I'll be in Senator Dash's shoes."

"Senator Dash of Tallapoosa prided himself on his rise from the bottom, for Senator Dash in his youth had worked with the colored people in the cotton fields. "Boasting at a political meeting about his rise, the senator singled out Uncle Calhoun Webster among his audience and said: "I see before me old Calhoun Webster, beside whom, in the broiling southern sun, I toiled day after day. Now, ladies and gentlemen, I appeal to Uncle Calhoun. Tell us all, uncle, was I, or was I not, a good man in the cotton field?"

"Yo' wuz a good man, senatath,' the aged negro replied; 'yo' wuz a good man, fo' a fack; but yo' sutny didn't work much."

Kidding Worse Than Cutting. "Talk about making good with your friends," a New Orleans man told everybody he knew that he was going to Philadelphia for the dual purpose of seeing the world's baseball series and having a slight surgical operation performed. Reaching this city, he consulted a specialist, and was told that an operation was not necessary. "But, doctor," the New Orleans party urgently interposed, "it must be done."

"Why must it?" wonderingly queried the surgeon. "Because," was the startling rejoinder of the southern man, "I told all the boys at home that I was going to have an operation performed, and if I don't make good they will kid the life out of me."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

On the Senators. The wit of Bishop Seth Ward amused Nashville frequently. Bishop Ward, in company with two senators, came forth from a Nashville reception the other day and entered a motor car. "Ah, bishop," said one of his companions, "you are not like your master. He was content to ride an ass." "Yes, and so should I be," Bishop Ward answered, "but there's no such animal to be got nowadays. They make them all senators."

THE TRIAL OF JESUS

Sunday School Lesson for Nov. 27, 1910. Specially Arranged for This Paper.

Lesson Text—Matthew 26:57-68. Memory Verse 64. Golden Text—"Who, when he was reviled, reviled not again."—1 Peter 2:23.

Time—Friday morning of the Crucifixion, continuing from between 1 and 2 o'clock until after sunrise. Place—The palace of the High Priest.

Judas had betrayed his Master with a kiss, and the great mingled company of rulers, Romans, officers, and soldiers with lanterns and swords and staves, were beginning their homeward march to the city.

Peter, immediately alone, single-handed, drew his sword and defied the whole Roman and Jewish powers. He, in his impetuous, loving, courageous way, began to show that he would live up to his promise that he would die for Jesus before he would desert him.

Attacking the nearest one, who may have been officious in the taking of Jesus, a servant of the high priest, Malchus by name, Peter struck wildly and missing his mark cut off merely the ear of his opponent. Jesus immediately stopped him. For it was unnecessary, since Jesus could have at any time twelve legions of angel defenders. Peter's defense was contrary to the teachings and plans of Jesus. It was useless, for Peter could not overthrow by the sword the Roman power. It was the worst thing he could do for his Master; it would ruin his cause and his defense, for it placed him in the attitude of a rebel against the Roman government, and Pilate could not have pronounced an innocent, for it would give color to the charges of the Pharisees that Jesus was an enemy of Caesar, and a rebel against the Roman government. Peter might have been arrested for rebellion, and perhaps the other disciples with him, and their work of founding the kingdom had been hindered.

Jesus remedies the evil by miraculously healing the wound. This healing showed that Jesus was no rebel against the Roman power. It showed the nature of his kingdom, as the kingdom of peace and truth and love. It showed his own character and how he lived up to his own precepts. It showed his divine nature and power.

It is recorded only by the physician, Luke, (22:51). "Thus," says Tholuck, "the last act of those hands before they were bound was a work of mercy and of peace in healing that slight wound, the only one ever inflicted for his sake."

The trial before the Sanhedrin was illegal according to all the above tests. It was held in the night. "It was a packed jury, a star chamber of self-appointed assessors." The object of the enemies of Jesus was to condemn him and to give him over to the Roman authorities for crucifixion before his friends could rally and interpose in his behalf. Sought false witness against Jesus, for it was impossible to condemn him by any true accusations. To put him to death. This they had determined for reasons of their own. What they wanted was some plausible pretext that would enable them to persuade the Roman authorities to put Jesus to death.

Jesus held his peace. They would not accept a denial, and they would have perverted the meaning of any explanation he could make. He refused to "cast pearls before swine" or to "give that which was holy to dogs." There are many times when it is well for Christians to imitate the Master in this. Do not waste time and strength in replying to those who are determined to oppose Christianity under all circumstances. Replying often advertises the enemy; and arguments take the attention from the main work of the Gospel, the saving of the world from sin. Attend to the business of the church, save men from sin; culture them into a noble character, help the needy, visit the sick, preach the Gospel, and the works of christianity will answer its enemies. At the same time explanations of difficulties to those who wish to learn are always in order.

Macaulay in his essay on Milton says, "Aristo tells a story of a fairy, who, by some mysterious law of her nature, was condemned to appear at certain seasons in the form of a foul, poisonous snake. Those who injured her during the period of her disguise were forever excluded from participation in the blessings which she bestowed. But to those who, in spite of her loathsome aspect, plied and protected her, she afterward revealed herself in the beautiful and celestial form which was natural to her, accompanied their steps, granted all their wishes, filled their houses with wealth, made them happy in love and victorious in war." So what is done to Christ in his disguised and lowly form is a test of our character and of our love, and will be rewarded and blessed by him when he comes in his glory, while those who reject him in his humility must come before his judgment seat when he sits on the right hand of the power of God.

A possible array of witnesses if they had wished to learn the truth. What an array of witnesses they might have found had they wished to learn the truth! Here a company of those who had been lame, but now were running to tell the story of their healing; there a band of those who had been blind, but now could see; lepers who had been cleansed; demonaics clothed and in their right mind; sick raised from their beds, and dead brought to life again; sad hearts comforted; sinful souls redeemed; ignorant minds enlightened, and the wandering ones restored.

Godlike Giving. God so loved that He gave. That is the expression, as it is the test, of love. Giving—not receiving, not withholding, not condemning. We sinners can receive and withhold and condemn. Can we love? That is to be Godlike. God is love, and whosoever loveth is born of God and knoweth God. God loved, and just because He loved He gave. Can we measure that love? Only by His gift. Can we measure that gift? Only by His love. Both are measureless.
