Count Tissea, president of the lower house of Hungary, had a very narrow escape from assassination in the diet at Budapest. He was fired upon three times by Deputy Julius Knooves, who then shot himself, probably fatally. The attack upon the count is a direct outcome of the agitation which has been persisted in since his election as speaker, May 22. Tissea is an opponent of universal suffrage. An unopposed delegation to the Democratic national convention at Baltimore was elected by the Louisiana state convention.

At district delegate conventions held in the five congressional districts of West Virginia, Speaker Clark secured six instructed delegates in the second, third and fourth districts. The Aiken county grand jury returned a true bill to the indictment against Fred O. Beach of New York, charging assault and battery with intent to kill. Pearl Hampton, the negro laundress, was attacked the same night Mrs. Beach was cut across the throat, and seven prominent Aiken, S. C., residents were summoned before the grand jury and gave evidence. The case will be called for trial at the fall term of court.

Some sixty Confederate veterans were the recipients of the much prized crosses of honor at the hands of Mrs. William McCarthy, president of the Atlanta chapter, U. D. C., when they gathered in the hall of the house of representatives of Georgia to do honor to the memory of Jefferson Davis, the late president of the Confederacy. The occasion will long be remembered as one of interest and note, as the distribution of these crosses of honor is soon to cease.

A total of $53,494 was received by the New Orleans flood relief committee as cash donations from all over the country for the relief of Mississippi flood sufferers up to June 1, according to a statement made by Secretary M. B. Trezevant of the committee. Complying with Governor Hall's request the committee forwarded a check for $15,859.87 to him, together with three carloads of clothing, bedding and other household goods and a carload of provisions.

General.

The first large and concrete undertaking in the making of the New South has just been consummated in the acquisition of the Seaboard Air Line, the most important industry of the South Atlantic states, by Mr. Davies Warfield of Baltimore and a syndicate of Southern business men and New York bankers. The transfer of the majority stock of the property has been made, and now Southern men have come into control of the property. Purchase of this railroad was part of a larger idea of Mr. Warfield and progressive Southern who organized early in the year for this purpose.

Twenty-four delegates from Alabama and Arkansas were added to the Taft column by the action of the Republican national committee on the so-called Roosevelt contests from those states. All contests presented before the committee were decided in Taft's favor, and in all but two of the decisions the action was unanimous.

Frank confession of President Gomez that he was unable to meet the demands of the large plantation owners in eastern Cuba for adequate guards was the factor that led Captain Kline, in the battle of Santiago, given upon the spur of the moment and in the heat of battle, decided to fight and saved the day for American arms. Senator Rayner sought to make this point clear in a speech accompanying an amendment which he offered to the pension appropriation bill so as to provide a pension of $150 a month instead of $50 a month, to the widow of Admiral Schley.

Provision for President Taft's tariff board was eliminated in the sundry civil appropriation bill as reported to the house. The annual appropriation for the president's traveling expenses was allowed, but the total appropriation was cut to a little more than $109,000,000, making heavy reductions in provisions for the Panama canal, public buildings and other projects.

An investigation of the law office of the postoffice department is sought by Representative Akin of New York who introduced a resolution asking that a special committee be appointed to inquire into the conduct of the department for withholding from delivery mail sent under a congressional frank. Mr. Akin recently delivered a speech in the house in which he attacked several prominent New York politicians. Mr. Akin took an excerpt and had it printed on the envelopes in which he sought to mail copies of the speech. It was held up as a violation of the postal laws.

Naked children by the score appeared in the streets of Chicago through the congested quarters of the west side of the city as a striking protest against the suffering brought to Hebrew women and children by reason of the high cost of kosher meat, the only meat Hebrews may eat. The sentence of Mrs. Lena Cusumano of Hull, Mass., condemned to die for the murder of her husband, Frank Cusumano, was commuted to life imprisonment by the executive council. She declared that Enrico Mascioli killed her husband without her knowledge, that after the murder he threatened her life and took what money she had and declared himself the head of her home. Enrico Mascioli, convicted jointly with Mrs. Cusumano, was electrocuted at the Charleston state prison.

At least six persons were shot and many others wounded by missiles in a street battle in New York City between 150 striking laborers and the police. Five strikers, a policeman and a citizen are at the city hospital, most of them suffering from gunshot wounds.

Duncan of New York City. James M. Lynch was re-elected president. W. H. McKee, a Union Printers' Home trustee, fell behind the four highest candidates.

Just before Capt. A. H. Rostron of the steamer Carpathia, the savior of the Titanic survivors, sailed for Mediterranean points, he was stormed by a host of pretty girls, who blushed less rosy than the captain as they begged for the customary blessing of a hero—a kiss. Two of them brought a gift in the shape of a black kitten, as an omen of good luck to the captain and his ship.

A dozen athletes have been tentatively picked as members of the American team to compete in the Olympic games at Stockholm. The action was taken by the executive committee of the American Olympic committee which recommended the men to the selection committee. They are to report to Manager Halpin, New York City, not later than June 1.

In Brussels a mob made a rapid tour of the city wrecking street cars, smashing windows and doing all manner of damage. They broke in the doors of the church of St. John and St. Nicholas, and entering, demolished the tabernacle. They then set fire to the doors. They next tried to force an entrance to the monastery of the Artois fathers and, arriving at the Anderlecht quarter, wrecked a cafe and attempted to storm a convent, but were dispersed by firemen.

Blow after blow was given the new commerce court by the Supreme court of the United States, which upheld the exclusive jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission over Federal rate laws. The principal decision was announced by Chief Justice White. He was sustained by the entire court. He held that the commerce court was not to substitute its judgment for the interstate commerce commission in the administration of the rate laws.

Testimony intended to show how the power of the New York City clearing house committee was used to force a solvent bank to the wall during the aftermath of the panic of 1907, with the result that the "fair reputation" of its president was "blasted," was dramatically presented before the Pujol committee of the house of representatives, which is investigating the so-called money trust.

The cost of policing the national capitol and the office buildings provided for the use of senators and representatives is $107,850. This item caused a considerable stir when it was reached in the legislative appropriation bill. Senator Reed of Missouri said that he was once mayor of Kansas City and that the town only had one policeman to every 1,000 persons, while there was a policeman on Capitol Hill to every four congressmen.

Senator Rayner of Maryland told the senate that the famous order for what is known as the loop of the cruiser Brooklyn in the battle of Santiago, given upon the spur of the moment and in the heat of battle, decided to fight and saved the day for American arms. Senator Rayner sought to make this point clear in a speech accompanying an amendment which he offered to the pension appropriation bill so as to provide a pension of $150 a month instead of $50 a month, to the widow of Admiral Schley.

THE DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION

ENDORSES WILSON FOR PRESIDENT—SIMMONS MEN WIN A GREAT FIGHT.

LOCKE CRAIG FOR GOVERNOR

Daughtridge For Lieut. Governor, Pell and Travis For Corporation Commission—Simmons Men Control 75 Per Cent of New Executive Committee.

Raleigh. — After a continuous session at which it nominated Locke Craig for governor; E. L. Daughtridge, lieutenant governor and a complete state ticket with them endorsed the record of the members of the United States senate, the congressmen, the state officers and other democratic officers since the last convention and endorsed Governor Woodrow Wilson for president of the United States, electing nine delegates at large to the Baltimore convention, and electing two presidential electors at large and dealing with every feature of the political situation, the state democratic convention adjourned.

Daughtridge Won on Fifth. The nomination for Daughtridge for the lieutenant governorship came after five ballots had been taken and he won out over Daniel after it appeared that he would be selected on the third ballot.

There were two big fights in the convention one coming when Cameron Morrison, chairman of the platform committee, made the report of the convention embodying the following paragraph: "We heartily endorse the record of our senators and representatives in the congress of the United States and the administration of the state's affairs by our governor and other state officers."

Morrison Won His Fight. Hon. J. S. Manning of the platform committee, presented a minority report, which merely endorsed the record of the party in the state and nation and declared that it would be unfair to the other two candidates for senator to endorse that one which now happens to hold the office. Mr. Morrison sustained the contention of the committee, however, and secured its adoption by a vote of more than 200 majority after an effort had been made to adopt the minority report as the report of the committee. The vote was indicative of the control of the convention by the Simmons' forces, as forecasted in these dispatches.

Big Majority For Wilson. The endorsement for Woodrow Wilson was stubbornly contested by the leaders of the Underwood forces, headed by Mr. H. B. Varner of Lexington. An effort was made to adjourn and lost; following which a substitute to the endorsement resolution, providing for sending the delegates to the Baltimore convention uninstructed, was voted down and on the final vote the Wilson forces adopted the resolution by a vote of 503 to 377. This was the last official account of the convention, adjournment being taken immediately.

The Delegates at Large. The delegates at large go to Baltimore each while a half vote, eight having been determined upon instead of the four which is customary. Mr. W. C. Dowd, president of the Charlotte News, led a big field, holding 879 votes while only 479 were necessary to elect. They delegates are, Messrs. A. W. McLean, ex-Governor R. B. Glenn, Gen. Julian S. Carr, W. C. Newland, E. J. Justice, W. C. Hammer, E. J. Hale, and W. T. Dortch.

At the close of the balloting it appeared that nine had received a majority of the votes cast and on motion of Editor Josephus Daniels it was decided to send nine instead of eight. Mr. George E. Pell won the nomination for the long term of corporation commissioner, while E. L. Travis was nominated for the short term.

Hon. Francis D. Winston and Hon. G. E. Gardner were selected as presidential electors at large and it was Farmer Trampled by Horse. While returning to Kinston, from Jones county, William Turner, a resident of East Kinston, was trampled by a frightened horse which he was driving and seriously injured. The traces becoming unfastened, Mr. Turner alighted from the vehicle to repair the trouble, and while he was thus engaged the animal stepped into a hole and took fright, breaking three of the man's ribs. The accident occurred on a bridge over Neuse river. The injured man's companion came to town for medical assistance.

Workman Falls Thirty Feet. Falling 30 feet from the girders on the new Atlantic Coast Line shop building at South Rocky Mount, Jim Stokes, a young man, employed on the construction of the building, sustained several painful bruises. The young man was in the act of walking from one side of the building to the other on one of the girders when his foot slipped and he fell to the ground striking on his head and shoulders. He is bruised severely about the head, arms and shoulders.

with the feeling that the strongest ticket that could have been selected has been sent against the republicans. Simmons' Men in Saddle. The Simmons people control 75 per cent. of the new executive committee and will name the new chairman. It is rumored that Clyde R. Hoy will probably be tended the chairmanship.

Features of The Day. Two new counties were read in the roll call. They are Hoke, formed from Robeson and Cumberland, and Avery from Mitchell. Combined they have six votes, the first being the major commonwealth. These are named after distinguished North Carolinians as nearly all of the others happen to be.

The Opening Events. Sharp on the stroke of twelve Hon. A. H. Eller, of Forsyth, chairman of the State Executive Committee, called the great convention of the untried Democracy to order, and introduced Rev. H. M. North, pastor of Edenton Street Methodist Church, who made the opening prayer, an appeal for Divine guidance on the proceedings of the convention, that all might be done well and wisely, and for the best interest of the people of the state.

Following this chairman Eller introduced Hon. James I. Johnson, mayor of the city of Raleigh, who made a capital address of welcome on behalf of the city, that its doors were wide open and that the welcome was a warm and hearty one.

The State Chairman Speaks. The roll of counties was next called and Secretary W. E. Brock reported each of the one hundred counties represented.

State Chairman A. H. Eller next addressed the convention, and in brief but sweeping review of Democracy's record, told of its accomplishments since the last convention, to its adherence to the rule of the people, and to its great record of work done for the best of the state. In his remarks, he referred to the harmony in the party in its determination to nominate Hon. Locke Craig for Governor, and there was great applause. He spoke of the divided Republican party, without a leader, Morehead once claiming to be making progress now in difficulty is merely standing pat to hold his position as Republican State Chairman.

"And Butler," he said, "where is wandering Marion Butler today?" His address throughout was heard with close attention, and when he declared that this is a Democratic year, with every county of the one hundred in North Carolina represented in the convention, there was a storm of applause.

Glenn's Keynote Speech. Then state Chairman Eller introduced happily ex-Governor Robert Brodnax Glenn as the temporary presiding officer of the convention. There was an outburst of applause as Governor Glenn came forward, and it was some time before he could speak. His address,—"the keynote address," was a powerful one. In it he discussed the records and policies of the Democratic and Republican parties, that Democracy meant progress, that Republicanism was not caring for the interest of the people. Early in his address he made reference to the presidential candidates of the Democracy, and as each name was called there was applause. As he said Champ Clark, and then Judson Harmon there was some of this, but when Woodrow Wilson was named there came the first "big noise" of the convention. If the sentiment of the convention could be gauged by the applause the Wilson men were in a large majority. Then came the name of Oscar W. Underwood, and again there was great applause, but not in the volume which had greeted the name of the New Jersey Governor.

Having called these names Governor Glenn next mentioned the name of William Jennings Bryan, and at this there broke forth roundings of applause, which showed that the name of the great Nebraskan was one to conjure with in North Carolina.

The chair next called for the naming of members of committees and officers of the convention made by the congressional district delegations.

State Republican Convention. Charlotte. — Although the second state Republican convention which meets in Charlotte in midsummer will name a complete state ticket, this ticket will not receive any support from a parallel county ticket, according to one of the leading members of the Republican party who resides in the city. This means that the county Republicans will not put out candidates for county or legislative offices in Mecklenburg county, according to this same leader.

Repairing Rozzell's Ferry Road. Charlotte. — Superintendent Little has completed the three-mile gap of the Rozzell's ferry road, connecting with the new steel bridge across the Catawba and travel may hereafter be pushed unimpeded between the two counties of Mecklenburg and Gaston without fear of interruption. This stretch of dirt road has heretofore rendered valueless to a large extent the elegant steel bridge save in times when the road was in splendid condition. This gap on account of the heavy traffic was always cut up.

Duplicative Work Eliminated. Raleigh. — The state board of agriculture in session here settled upon an agreement relative to the elimination of duplicative work in experiments and demonstrations between the department of agriculture and the trustees of the A. and M. College. The definite agreement settled on is that Dr. B. W. Kilgore, state chemist, is to have in charge the direction of the experimental and demonstration work both at the college and for the state chemist's division, of the department of agriculture.

PROFIT IN APPLES

WESTERN PORTION OF STATE OFFERS OPPORTUNITY FOR APPLE GROWING.

THE SOIL AND CLIMATE FINE

Mitchell and Yancey Counties Are Destined to be Great Orchard Section of the South Atlantic States.—Noted All Over Country.

Charlotte.—The apple is the most widely grown of the fruits and yet it is a fact that the total production of last year is but little above one-third of that reported in the year 1896. Apple growing is exceedingly profitable and just at this time considerable attention is being given to the planting of orchards in the western section of this state.

Two counties—Yancey and Mitchell—have thousands of acres of undeveloped land which can be purchased at a low price and this land is admirably adapted to apple culture. The climate is temperate; the altitude high; the soil good; the drainage perfect; and the rainfall is abundant. These conditions are necessary to apple culture and together with the absence of frost in the spring the conditions are almost ideal in Yancey and Mitchell counties, as well as the adjacent territory for profitable orchards.

In the section about Spruce Pine there are a number of orchards. Some of these are very old and still bearing. J. E. Burleson of Spruce Pine, the president of the J. E. Burleson Mica Company, and by the way, owners of one of the largest mica mines in the country, is enthusiastic in the belief that the section in which he lives is destined to become the apple growing center of the United States. He says that there are orchards in that country over 100 years old that are still bearing. The High Peak orchard, the property of Dr. J. B. Ewing of Booneville, is given as one illustration of age.

The "parkis" black loam soil of Yancey and Mitchell counties is particularly adapted to several varieties of apples and the Albemarle Pippin, the Spitzenburg Eopous and York Imperial grow to perfection. The Yancey apple is now world known. It took the prize over the world at the Paris exposition in 1900. The first prize at the apple shows of both Raleigh and Asheville was awarded the Yancey apple and the second prize at the national apple show in St. Joseph was given to Yancey.

Acreage Reduction in Mecklenburg. Charlotte.—As a result of the "Rock Hill plan" of cotton reduction, which pledged a curtailment of 25 per cent of acreage, and which was made operative in Mecklenburg county along with a somewhat similar proposition to encourage the planting of one acre of food crops to every acre of cotton it is figured that a total reduction of 6,000,000 acres in round numbers has been effected. This is the statement made by E. J. Watson, commissioner of agriculture of South Carolina.

Sent to Jail to Await Trial. New Bern.—Harold T. Pratt, who was brought back to this city a few days ago to answer to several charges including forgery, embezzlement and passing worthless checks, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace, S. E. Street for a preliminary hearing. The defendant waived examination and was bound over to the next term of Craven county superior court under a bond of $2,000, which he failed to give and was recommitted to jail.

Charlotte. — Although the second state Republican convention which meets in Charlotte in midsummer will name a complete state ticket, this ticket will not receive any support from a parallel county ticket, according to one of the leading members of the Republican party who resides in the city. This means that the county Republicans will not put out candidates for county or legislative offices in Mecklenburg county, according to this same leader.
