

A COMMITTEE from the House of Representatives at Washington is examining witnesses at Macon, Georgia, in the investigation of the charges alleged against Judge Emery Speer, of the United States District Court. This investigation is being conducted because of the resolution introduced in the House of Representatives for his impeachment. Many of the witnesses have testified as to the arbitrary conduct of the judge, who seems from their evidence to have made himself very disagreeable to parties having business in his court.

The conduct of Judge Speer in Georgia seems to be quite similar to some of the judges in North Carolina, both federal and state. The public will await with much interest the result of this investigation in Georgia, and it is hoped that it will have a good effect not only on Judge Speer but on all other judges who act like petty despots.

FARMING is the chief occupation of a large majority of the citizens of this state and our prosperity depends greatly upon successful farming. It is to the interest of us all, regardless of our business or occupation, to wish for and encourage profitable farming.

Therefore we take pleasure in publishing on the local page of this issue the communication of Mr. M. T. Kelly in regard to the successful farming of Mr. Thad Wilson, one of his neighbors, in this county.

We commend the example of Mr. Wilson for emulation and would urge others to try this year and do what Mr. Wilson did last year in farming. His success shows what can be done on a one-horse farm and should encourage others to do as well.

THE RECORD will be pleased to publish accounts of the good farming of any others and thus stimulate a rivalry for the best results in farming.

PRESIDENT WILSON has so conducted his administration of our government that he is receiving the approval and praise not only of all Democrats, but also of many Republicans. He has fully met the expectations of his friends and has even pleased his political opponents. His course has been so safe and sane as to win the confidence of the entire country.

Last week he delivered in person another message to congress, which has met with general approval. It was in regard to the legislation necessary to control the great trusts. He has proved himself a statesman of wonderful wisdom, and has fully justified his nomination and election to the highest office in this Republic.

As an illustration of the high regard in which President Wilson is held by many Republicans we will mention that a prominent Republican of this county recently remarked to a friend, "I can't keep it in any longer and must say that Wilson is making a splendid president."

RAILROAD accidents are frequently caused by persons walking on the railroad track. An instance of this occurred last week in this state. Some children were walking on the railroad track and out of fun they placed some pieces of coal on the rails and one of them placed a spike on a rail. Soon thereafter a train came dashing along at high speed and the locomotive was thrown off the rails by the spike, causing the death of the engineer and injuries to others. Persons should not walk on the railroad track anywhere or at any time and any one doing so should be punished. Walking on the railroad tracks is not only dangerous to the person guilty of such folly, but also endangers the lives of the persons who may be on the trains. It is for the protection of the latter and not the former that we call attention to the folly of persons walking on the railroad tracks, which should be used exclusively for the running of trains.

HAZING seems to exist still in some of the schools and colleges of the state, and an aggravated case of it was disclosed last week at the noted Bingham school near Asheville. Some of his fellow students shaved the head of a student at that school, and when he informed on them they whipped him. Three of the hazers were arrested and carried before a magistrate who fined them, and four of them were expelled by Maj. Bingham, the principal of the school.

At the beginning of the school term each student had signed a pledge to refrain from hazing, so that these hazers violated their solemn pledge as well as the laws of the land. Upon the discovery of this hazing, Colonel Bingham very properly announced that all students who were unwilling to live up to their pledge, could leave the school. We are pleased to note that these hazers were arrested and fined just as other criminals are, and as all hazers should be treated who assault their fellow students. Every student who assaults his fellow student or treats him with personal indignity should be arrested and punished just the same as other criminals are.

The President's Message.

Washington, Jan. 26.—The president's message which was delivered to congress personally by the president the same as all of his previous messages has made a remarkable impression on the entire country. Mr. Wilson has the most extraordinary endowment of common sense of any president within the last fifty years. His first message dealt with the tariff, his second message relating to legislation urging congress to pass an elastic currency bill. The former became a law on October 3rd, and the latter on December 23rd. These two great measures having been written into our statute book, he now urges congress to take up the trust question. The main provisions which he desires to be enacted into laws are as follows:

1. Prohibiting interlocking directorates of great corporations, especially prohibiting one who is director in a great manufacturing concern from serving on a board of directors of any transportation company that moves the manufactured products thereof.

2. Prohibiting railroads from issuing stocks and bonds for larger amounts than the value of the road. This measure will keep "water" out of railroad stocks in the future.

3. A provision for punishing the guilty individual instead of the business where the law is violated.

4. A provision forbidding one corporation from owning another.

When laws remedying the above evils have been made effective the greater part of the wrong doings of the trust and big business will be cured.

Drank Hair Tonic, Now Dead.

Philadelphia, Jan. 25.—"Hair tonic," which it is said they drank to satisfy a craving of alcohol, caused the death tonight of Charles Harris and Charles Reitze, serving sentences in the Eastern penitentiary for burglary. Prison officials said the men obtained the liquid from a prison barber on the plea that they wished to "fix up" for some visitors.

Prolific Tree.

We are informed that Mr. I. L. Reel, of Curfew, this county, recently cut a white-oak tree on his place from which he made 23 croissants, got three of four good loads of wood, and unexpectedly found a nest of honey bees in the tree, a part of the comb being exposed by the cutting.

Electrocuted in Bath Tub.

Chicago, Jan. 25.—Lozarus I. Silverman, president of a manufacturing concern, was electrocuted today as he was using a small electrical massage machine in his bath.

The machine was connected with an ordinary electric light socket.

The freight depot of the Seaboard Air Line and the union passenger station at Apex were burned last Saturday night.

The Ohio state prison warden is going to open a hotel in the penitentiary of that state.

The U. S. navy is beginning to realize at last that it has a Daniels come to judgment.

The coal chute on the Seaboard yard at Raleigh was burned early Sunday morning.

The Confederate Reunion.

Headquarters N. C. Division, United Confederate Veterans. General Orders, No. 51. Durham, N. C., Jan. 23, 1914.

Paragraph 1. The next annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans will be held at Jacksonville, Florida, on the 29th and 30th of April, and the 1st of May, 1914; and the hospitable citizens of that city will do their utmost to make it one of the most pleasant that has yet been held. Free entertainment will be given all veterans who may desire it; and this free entertainment will not be given in tents, as has been customary at our reunions, but all will be comfortably housed, and meals served them at hotels, boarding houses, &c. All veterans who may desire any information concerning the reunion, and especially those who may desire free entertainment, should write to General A. D. Williams, 209 West Ashley street, Jacksonville, Florida, who will gladly furnish the desired information.

Par. 2. The railroad companies will give, as heretofore, the low rate of one cent a mile to all persons, whether veterans or other visitors, who may attend this reunion. The exact fare from any station can be learned from the local railroad agent.

Par. 3. Every Camp must pay its dues before the first day of next April to General W. E. Mickle, 824 Common street, New Orleans. According to the rules of our organization, no Camp, that is in arrears for its dues, is entitled to a vote or voice in the meetings at our annual reunions. It is earnestly hoped that every Camp in this Division will promptly pay its dues to General Mickle, and that North Carolina will have such a representation at Jacksonville as will be worthy of good old state and her glorious war record.

Par. 4. Miss Wyatt McKinnon, of Red Springs, has accepted the appointment of sponsor for this Division at the approaching reunion, and her maids of honor will be announced in due time.

Par. 5. The recent death of Comrade S. A. Cunningham, the editor of The Confederate Veteran, at Nashville, Tenn., is a loss that is not only deeply deplored but is almost impossible to replace. Not only was he one of the bravest of the brave who wore the gray, but for more than twenty years past he had rendered valuable service in preserving and perpetuating the heroic deeds of the soldiers of the Confederacy.

By order of Major-General J. S. Carr.

H. A. LONDON, Adjutant-General and Chief of Staff.

Alaskan Railroad Bill Passes Senate.

Washington, Jan. 24.—By a vote of 6 to 16 late this afternoon the senate passed the Alaska railroad bill, directing the president to purchase or construct 1,000 miles of railroad in Alaska at a cost not to exceed $40,000,000.

Fifteen Republicans and Senator Poindexter, Progressive, voted for the bill. Senators Bacon, Hoke Smith and Williams, Democrats, voted against it.

The bill places upon the president responsibility for the selection of the route from tidewater to the interior of Alaska, and the construction, equipment and operation or leasing of such lines as he may construct or buy to constitute this route.

The Massacre of Mexicans.

Mexico City, Jan. 24.—One hundred women and children and 150 federal soldiers were massacred by rebels recently near Vanegas, north of San Luis Potosi, according to reports received here today.

The soldiers, with the women, surrendered to the rebels and were taken to a ranch near Matahuata, where the butchery is alleged to have occurred.

Major Rebollo and Capt Ramirez and a handful of men were the only ones to escape. They arrived here today bringing news of the affair which occurred several days ago.

There are 61 cases of smallpox in the corporate limit and suburbs of Goldsboro last week. Judge Peebles adjourned court on account of so many smallpox cases after charging the grand jury on Monday.

Dangers of a Cold.

Do you know that all the minor ailments colds are by far the most dangerous? It is not the cold themselves that you need to fear, but the serious diseases that they so often lead to. For that reason every child should be protected with the least possible delay. To accomplish this you will find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy of great help to you. It loosens a cold, relieves the lungs, aids expectoration and enables the system to throw off the cold. Sold by all dealers. adv

A Big Parcel Post Mail.

From the Sanford Express.

Mr. C. H. Poe, who handles the mail at the passenger station for the night trains, tells The Express that on last Thursday morning he put on the Sanford Wilmington shoofly train 169 bags of mail. One hundred of these bags contained bargain mail-order goods from a Chicago mail-order house. They were for towns between here and Wilmington and along the Atlantic Coast Line in South Carolina. Since the parcel post was put in operation the mail order houses have flooded the mails with their catalogues. They are redoubling their efforts to catch trade all over the country. Let the local merchants push their business as never before and use the parcel post to bring in trade.

The Return Of Gypsy.

By ADDISON HOWARD GIBSON.
Copyrighted, 1902, by Associated Literary Press.

In the amethyst haze of an April morning on the Arizona foothills the cowboys of Circle H wheeled their bronchos into the gray dust of the trail.

There was a wild jangle of spurs, a clatter of restive hoofs, and they were off like one of the brown whirlwinds of their own desert to meet Gypsy and "the boss," who were coming to the ranch to spend a week.

They had derisively hurled "Arios, Layne" at the bronzed young foreman as he leaned against the corral gate. They could not understand why he had persistently refused to join their reception committee.

It really was not the coming of Herington, "the boss," that was calling forth the unusual demonstration, but the return of Gypsy, their little comrade of the range, whom they had not seen for four years. It never entered their simple heads that two years of school in France, followed by two more of travel and society, might have changed their merry, fun loving little pet.

She was coming back as she had promised—that was the dominant consideration—and off they went, whooping.

Ned Layne, however, knew differently. He had seen her a year ago, and the knowledge had come to him then. She was a young lady, and they—and he—were only cowboys. As he leaned against the gate he thought of the old days. He remembered her eyes and voice on the evening before she departed into the world, and he remembered how she had said to him:

"Goodbye, Ned. Father is going to give you the place of foreman. Make the most of your opportunities and buy out the Bar T. Don't forget me, Ned," and her eyes had been moist when she suddenly dropped them.

"I'll never forget you, Gypsy," he had promised stoutly, pressing the hand that fluttered in his.

"When I come home to the ranch I want you to be here to meet me," she added.

"I'll be sure to meet you," he returned. Then the train had borne her away to the new life, so different from that among the boys on her father's ranch.

Ned Layne and Gypsy Herington had been great comrades in those care free days, and if now he was the only one not riding out to meet her it was because he felt that those old days were gone forever and would best be forgotten. There should be nothing on his part to remind her of old promises and old thoughts that could have no place in her life any more.

Just a year ago Layne had seen her once at a great hotel in New York, where the wealthy ranchman and his daughter were stopping. He had gone all the way to the far eastern city for no other purpose than to see her, but the result had been a sadly discouraging one, and he had said farewell to his dreams. Gypsy, dressed in a bewildering gown and moving with bewildering ease and elegance among the elegant throng that oppressed the ranchman, was on her way to the opera under escort of an immaculately clad young Englishman possessed of a big title, and Layne was left to be entertained by her father.

She had asked him to come back and breakfast with them, but he had changed bearing and the cool treatment accorded to him by the contending nobleman had nettled Layne. He took the very next train back to the land of sunshine, where people were not proud and stuck up and did not forget old friends.

On his return the cowboys of Circle H had bestowed him eagerly for news of their little chum of the ranch.

"Yes, I saw her," he answered, telling the bitterness in his heart, "and she was a better belle for society toget. She has a beau, Lord Percy Ellington, one of those pluck hatted chaps, and she seems to like his attentions all right. The boss says he followed them back from Europe."

Having imparted this information to the news hungry men, Ned had gone off by himself under the starlight and finally abandoned all his old plans and hopes.

Ever since that night the young man had been formulating a plan for his future which he kept strictly to himself, resolved to execute the first step toward it when the owner of the ranch returned to his own again. Accordingly he mounted Muggins, his own pony, and rode rapidly away across the brown mesa before the party could arrive.

From an eminence his well trained eyes caught the blur of rising dust far up the trail. Nearer approach enabled him to recognize the ranch buckboard driven by Bob Cat Nick. Seated by the driver was the trim figure of Gypsy, while the stout form of Herington and a slender man wearing a derby occupied the back seat. Trailing behind or galloping proudly on either side of the vehicle rode the adoring cowboys, chatting merrily with their old friend.

At sight of the derby hat a frown crossed Ned's face, and putting spur to the unoffending Muggins, the disgruntled young horseman rode off down the gulch.

"Ellington along!" he exclaimed. "Yet what right have I to be surprised or care for that? No doubt Herington wants to show his prospective son-in-

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescription from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is too far to be good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co., medicinal chemists. Sold by Druggists. Price, 75c. per bottle. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Mr. Franklin at the Bar.

Among the state papers for the year 1836 may be read a letter from John Bartlett to Henry VIII's minister, Thomas Cromwell, stating that in accordance with the recent act the mayor and aldermen had chosen Mr. Fryseley the English parliament as the representative of Calais and that he had made certain arrangements about his passage into England.

One Thomas Boyd was elected as his colleague, and Calais continued to send M. P.'s to Westminster until, in the reign of Mary, we lost the stronghold we had held for over two centuries. This is the only instance in England's history of anything like colonial representation at Westminster unless indeed we reckon one or two exceptional occasions when colonial grievances have been voiced at the bar of the house of commons, as they were so brilliantly by Benjamin Franklin, when Burke said the scene reminded him of "a master examined by a parcel of schoolboys."—London News.

Jenny Lind and the Trill.

Jenny Lind after years of steady practice believed that the much coveted trill was for her an impossibility. She practiced hours a day, but was unable to accomplish the feat. One day, thoroughly discouraged, she was sitting in her garden when all at once she looked up to a tree. Above her a bird was trilling. She at once went to her piano and through some magic or power of imitation began the trill; and from that day never had any further difficulty.

Losing His Senses.

A mischievous boy, having got possession of his grandfather's spectacles, privately took out the glasses. When the old gentleman put them on, finding he could not see, he exclaimed: "Mercy on me! I've lost my sight!" But, thinking the impediment to vision might be the dirtiness of the glasses, he took them off to wipe them, when, not feeling them, he still more frightened, cried out: "Why, what's come now? I've lost my feeling too!"—London Ideas.

But Yet a Woman.

"We have been friends a long time," said she. "You would be very unhappy if we quarrelled for good, wouldn't you?"

"Certainly," said he.

"Would you be unhappy enough to kill yourself?" she asked eagerly.

"I'd be very unhappy," said he, "but I don't think I would kill myself."

She was silent a long while, looking at him sadly. "I hoped," she pointed then, "that you would be unhappy enough to kill yourself if we happened to quarrel."—New York Press.
