"I want to get a good hoss for plowing," said Farmer Jones to a horse trader, "and I want a good one, too." "I got just the hoss for you, friend, she's a good worker but she doesn't look good," returned the H. T.

"I ain't buyin' him for the looks, so if he's a good hoss I guess I'll take him."

Two days later Farmer Jones returned with the horse. "Why in the devil didn't you tell me the old boy was blind?" said Farmer Jones to the horse trader.

TAKES UP BIG FOOD TASK

Mr. Henry A. Page, North Carolina Food Administrator, Opens Office in Raleigh.

Raleigh .- Mr. Henry A. Page, of Aberdeen, North Carolina's Food Administrator, has opened his office in the Federal Building with the prospects of a vigorous war-time task of co-ordinating and maintaining, for the duration of the struggle, the efforts of all the food producing and food conserving agencies of the state. The perfection of state machinery will be undertaken on the basis of sacrificial service. Mr. Page himself will work bed. The doctor on the munificent salary of one dollar per annum.

> This is no time to preach profits, Mr. Page asserts. Men who are not giving themselves can do no less than give the utmost of what is theirs. In addition, for the money which could, under any circumstances, be paid for the efforts asked, the right calibre men could not be secured.

"No man should come out of this war wealthier than he was when he entered it," Mr. Page says. "Making money out of the war, before it came to our shores, honestly taking advantage of the business opportunities which offered themselves is not to be condemned. After we have become a party to it, profiteering must cease.

To make money out of the war now is a disgrace. This is the doctrine I shall preach.'

War is the Reason.

As Mr. Page puts it, the fixing of prices by the government is an intensely undemocratic thing, permissible in a democracy only on the ground that the war has destroyed moral conditions and threatens to destroy the world. The people of the world must do be fed. The emergency must be met by drastic action.

"As soon as the war is over and the need for food administration passes, every visage of this machinery now pass away. With a salaried machine ple who are at work." this couldn't be done in ten years. On good."
