Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which quickly Relieves by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which assists in improving the General Health. Sold by druggists for over 40 years. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

OCTOPUS DRAGS MAN TO DEATH

Fisherman Is Pulled From His Boat by Large Devilfish He Had Speared.

IS DANGEROUS SPORT

Devilfish After Capture Are Kept Alive in Salt Water to Supply Winter Demand Among Pacific Coast Japanese.

Sunrise Beach, Wash.—Dragged from his rowboat by a giant devilfish which he had speared, Albert Garness lost his life while several companion fishermen felt the searching tentacles of the big fish.

The devilfish season is at its height in the narrows off Gig Harbor, in this part of Puget sound, and fishermen declare the daily catch is remarkable for the size of the octopuses. About 40 grizzled veterans in open trawls are busy hauling in the traps and taking out the devilfish. The devilfish, after capture, are imprisoned in large tanks of sea water and kept alive to supply the winter demand among the Pacific coast Japanese.

There is an element of danger connected with this kind of fishing that lends spice to the work. Most of the devilfish caught will weigh around 30 to 40 pounds and vary in the spread of their tentacles from four to eight feet. This winter, however, fishermen have brought in extra large octopuses. The one which dragged Garness from the trawl measured 15 to 20 feet across the spread of legs.

Prosaic Occupation. Catching the devilfish is a prosaic occupation. In fact, the fish catch themselves. The traps, spaced to the depth of water from five to fifty fathoms, are fastened to long lines laid on the bottom. Some stretch out 10 miles into the sound, the average being three to four miles. The trap resembles a small, loosely built barrel, which is open at one end and baited with clams. After the fish has entered and devoured the clams, it generally reclines in a tightly drawn bundle to enjoy perfect digestion. Fishermen in trawls and dories row over the trapping area to haul up the snares. The devilfish remains in the secluded shelter from sheer laziness, until exposed to the air. Then there is a sudden spring to life and the wiggling of the long tentacles is threatening. The octopus is immediately speared, but many are tenacious enough to fight many minutes.

Octopus meat is worth 25 cents a pound on the northwestern market.

LAUGHS AT DEATH THEN DIES

World War Veteran Told Friends at Banquet He Soon Would Go.

Newark, N. J.—Percy Evans, World war veteran who, last October 26, gave a dinner to 22 boyhood friends and wartime buddies, and told them that he "felt himself slipping," is dead here.

Evans had to be taken to his "death dinner" on a stretcher. When he realized that he could not recover from the effects of poison gas, he made complete arrangements for his funeral.

Children's Quarrel Ends in Killing. Madison, Mo.—A quarrel between school children, taken home to their parents, culminated in the killing of Edgar Roney by Al Carpenter in the neighborhood where the men lived. Carpenter struck Roney on the head with a hammer, police say. Carpenter surrendered to police following the killing.
