so much as referred to the Marks & Tally incident last week. So here goes for the story. Along about midnight, about 10 days ago, while Messers Marks & Tally were sleeping soundly at the old Mark's home place, they were suddenly awakened by a rummaging around out in a nearby store room. The first thought that came to them was that another thieving raid was being made similar to the one that had just occurred a few nights previous over at Lawrence Bros. store. Their next thought was to catch the thief "with the goods on making any noise in any way, went to the phone, called up Deputy sheriff Henry Harrington and finally got him up and out to the rescue. The deputy came on the run, slipped in the yard row night. A special program has opposite to the store room, got in the house and after setting the two frightened men somewhat more at ease, they all three shouldered arms made a sally forth, surrounded the store room and called hands up! Getting no response they closed in and as they came together in the dark they came near firing point blank at a good gentle milch cow that had been enjoying a midnight ramble through the brush and tin cans in the back
