

Blinding Headaches

"For about twenty years," says Mr. P. A. Walker, a well-known citizen of Newburg, Ky., "one of our family remedies has been Black-Draught, the old reliable. . . I use it for colds, biliousness, sour stomach and indigestion. I was subject to headaches when my liver would get out of order. I would have blinding headaches and couldn't stoop about my work, just couldn't go. I used and it relieved me. "About eight years ago my wife got down with liver and stomach trouble. . . We tried all week to help her. . . but she didn't get any better. One day I said to the doctor, 'I believe I will try Black-Draught, it helps my liver.' He said that I might try it and to follow directions. She was nauseated and couldn't eat or rest. She began taking Black-Draught and in two days she was greatly improved and in a week she was up."

Try Black-Draught. It costs only one cent a dose. Sold everywhere. E-99

SELF-FINANCING INVESTMENT

Public Ports Self-Supporting and a Good Investment.

Realizing the great importance to our commercial and industrial interests the General Assembly in Special Session passed an Act known as the Port Terminals and Water Transportation Act, authorizing the development of our ocean, coastwise and inland water trade. This act is to be approved by the vote of the people at the general election on November 4th next. After its approval the Port Terminals Commission will, in fact MUST, make a survey to determine what terminals and facilities are necessary to attract shipping and to develop our ports and inland waters to a point of efficiency in keeping with the commercial and industrial importance of the state.

Undeveloped Resources.

North Carolina's inland water system consists of 1300 miles of navigable rivers and not less than 1500 miles of other inland navigable waters or a combined mileage more than all our railroads. These resources are not being used.

The Federal Government has spent $16,000,000 in improving these waters and stands ready to spend much more if the state will provide public ports and terminal facilities. A well developed seaport at one end is absolutely essential to the successful commercial use of a river.

A Seaport Is An Asset.

A well developed seaport is a most valuable asset to the entire state in which it is located. It brings employment to the thousands of men in the immediate vicinity and to other thousands scattered throughout the state who are engaged in making, producing or transporting export commodities. It employs capital and utilizes, in the repair of ships, vast quantities of materials produced in the state. It enhances the property values and swells tax receipts. The larger these receipts the more money there will be for distribution to schools and other public institutions and purposes.

Public Ports Are Self-Supporting.

Wharves, quays, piers, warehouses, grain elevators and other essential terminal facilities are investments in the strictest sense of the word. If privately owned, as they now are in North Carolina, they are expected to yield a reasonable profit after meeting all expenses. If publicly owned they are expected to meet all expenses, including profit for additional improvements. It is expressly provided in the Bill that the schedule harbor fees must be so fixed as to make safe the state's investment.

This has been accomplished by every state that has constructed public port terminals. Two striking examples in support of this fact will be found in New Orleans where in spite of reduction of about fifty per cent in port charges, a surplus of $2,000,000 has been accumulated. In nine or ten years Louisiana has acquired absolute title to port properties valued at more than $50,000,000 above all liabilities.

California about twelve years ago issued $13,000,000 in bonds to construct public port terminals in San Francisco. These are owned and operated by the state through a commission under the same condition as are prescribed by the Bill to be voted in this state. The revenue from these terminals has paid the interest, provided a sinking fund to retire the bonds, and increased the terminal facilities to a valuation of more than $50,000,000. San Francisco claims to have the lowest port charges of any city in the Union. These terminals have cost the taxpayers nothing.

A Business Investment.

In building public port terminals and facilities the state spends no appropriations and to tax money. It borrows at a lower rate than any of its municipalities or citizens can do and invests the money in revenue producing properties, which themselves are an ample security for the loan. The state thus owns a monopoly of a commercial necessity and it has the power to fix port charges for the services rendered. This makes a safe investment. It is therefore a business enterprise to be operated on a strictly business basis for and in the interest of the people and for the upbuilding of the state.

WILSON TO HAVE NEXT CONFEDERATE REUNION

Charlotte Reunion Reelects Gen. Smith State Commander—Tribute to Dead Worthies

(By the Associated Press.)

Charlotte, Sept. 18.—After selecting Wilson for the 1925 encampment and reelecting Major General William Smith, of Ansonville, as state commander, the North Carolina division of the United Confederate Veterans closed its annual encampment here today.

During today's session an impressive memorial service to the memory of those who had died during the past year was held. Just before closing the veterans adopted a resolution to be submitted to the next general assembly requesting higher pensions for bona-fide veterans of the war between the states.

Grizzled warriors of the sixties, men who faced musket and cannon with sublime courage and daring as followers of Lee and Jackson, broke down and wept today when eulogies were said for the late Gen. Julian S. Carr and other departed leaders and comrades of the war between the states and the several reunions since that time. Among those eulogized in addition to General Carr were the late chief Justice Walter Clark, General D. H. Hill, General James I. Metts, General H. A. London and others.

After the election in which not only General Smith but his entire staff was reelected the reunion came to a close. Tonight most of the thousand wearers of the gray who were here had left for their homes.

A man in Colorado built a cement silo 30 feet high, filled it full of ensilage, then found out that he had no way of getting the stuff out as no door was made at the bottom and the top was sealed up.

Dr. W. A. Bradsher, a prominent physician of Roxboro, is dead from indigestion.

BOUGHT TOWN FOR SCHOOL.

In order to have full control of the town in which he will establish a university, John E. Brown has bought Sulphur Springs, Ark., outright. He will make it a "jazzless" town, and banish all other evils of the modern city in order that the young folk who attend the university will have the right sort of environment. Brown is the founder of "John E. Brown College", at Siloam Springs, Ark., where young folks are admitted "without money or without price." Students work half a day and go to school half a day. Last year he had 3,000 applicants from prospective students and could accommodate only 300 at his "pay-by-work" institution. Only boys and girls whose parents are too poor to give them a college education are admitted. Brown, son of poverty stricken parents, was fired by a zeal to help poor boys and girls while listening to a Salvation Army speaker. He has been an Evangelist for a number of years.—Union Republican.

We learn that Rev. J. A. Honeycutt of South Carolina has accepted the call tendered him by the Carrboro Baptist church sometime ago and will arrive this week to take up his work as pastor of that church. It will be remembered that Mr. Honeycutt was there last fall and assisted in conducting a very good meeting in the old church. He also preached the opening sermon in the new church and all who heard him were greatly pleased with his most inspiring sermon. The Carrboro Baptists are de-
