TOO GOOD TO KEEP.

The editor found the following note on his typewriter Tuesday afternoon: "Dear Mr. Peterson: Please insert in your report of the Parent-Teacher meeting written by your wife that the talk received most cordially was made by herself on the subject of the 'Parent's attitude toward the school.' 'Mrs. W. P. Horton, secretary P.-T. A.' Even the bestest woman is not displeased by praise but there may be a rucus b-cause her own husband was the instrumentality employed in publishing it."

That Muttony Chop

MAN is undoubtedly a carnivorous animal. Ask any housewife who has offered her lord and master, or the son and heir, a pick-up supper, or a dainty little luncheon consisting of a soufflé or some other airy trifle. She was probably the recipient of many black looks and loud protests.

By the same token, to the masculine mind a sandwich is not a sandwich unless it contains something as heavy as ham, tongue, or at least chicken. Offer a man one of the feminine favorites, such as lettuce, egg or olives chopped with mayonnaise, and he will look upon them as mere piffle and eat a dozen at a sitting without feeling that he has really tasted food.

Can you not imagine how much more ingrained this taste for meat would be in the confirmed bachelor who has never felt the deterring feminine influence where food is concerned? There are no meatless days on the calendar in bachelordom, nor in clubs where it assembles. It is of one mind on that point.

Even when life with its domestic bliss and the felicities of the home has passed him by, when the joys of single blessedness have begun to pall a bit and the erstwhile rapture of "wine, women and song" seems a little

North American Map Must Be Changed For Farm Buildings

Huge Snow Fields Within Fifty Miles Of Equator; Also Ancient Houses Found

New York, Sept. 30.—From scientific expedition that have passed the summer exploring odd places on the globe comes information that the map of North America must be revised, and that huge snow fields exist within 50 miles of the equator.

"The entire map of North America has been changed and a new range of mountains discovered," said a radio message to the Associated Press from Donald A. Cadzow, ethnologist, with the Putnam Baffin Island expedition, now off the coast of Labrador. The message came via Station DW at Auburn, N. Y.

The message also told of the finding of ancient houses on Baffin Island of a hitherto unknown people who apparently antedated the present Eskimos there. And of the discovery of indications that the Island was once a part of the Coast of Labrador.

The news of equatorial snow came from Dr. James P. Chapin, Associated Curator of Birds of the American Museum of Natural History, who with Dewitt L. Sage, returned from Central America.

They brought 2,500 specimens of birds and small animals, and told of fields at an altitude of 15,400 feet on the Ruwenzori mountain range, which the native bearers refused to approach because of the fear that snow would kill them.

FOREST FIRES RAGING ON HARKER'S ISLAND

Morehead City, Oct. 2.—A call for aid came to the local fire department at 5 o'clock this afternoon from Harkers Island where forest fires are seriously threatening the village of Harkers. Increasing high winds are making the situation more dangerous. Harkers has no fire fighting equipment and few men. Local fire fighting units are awaiting orders from the mayor to send a pumper to the scene of the fire.

One of Every Nine Wrecks Of Automobiles are Fatal

Raleigh, Oct. 4.—Approximately one out of every nine automobile accidents taking place on the state highway system during the month of August resulted fatally, according to a compilation made today by the automobile bureau of the state department of revenue.

Four hundred accidents were listed as occurring and 42 of these were fatal.

Use Local Stone For Farm Buildings

Raleigh—Waste stone on the average farm in North Carolina is gathered in unsightly heaps with no attempt to make it beautiful or useful, while in some other sections of the United States, this stone is made to serve in a wide range.

"I have been much impressed by the wide range of uses made of local stone in New England," says Dr. Jasper L. Stuckey, geologist at State College. "Stone fences, stone pillars, stone chimneys, foundations for houses and cellars lined with stone are everywhere abundant. On the other hand in our state the waste stone about the farm is gathered in unsightly heaps in the center or around the edges of fields with little or no attempt to make it either useful or beautiful."

Dr. Stuckey states that there was a time when local stone was more widely used. In a drive over parts of Wake, Johnston and Franklin counties he observed a number of farms of pre-Civil War days where stone was used extensively. The abundance of slave labor was one reason for this, he believes.

But stone is cheap building material, thinks Dr. Stuckey. Ernest Flagg, an architect of New York, has shown that stone may be used by farmers for practical construction. Mr. Flagg finds that this material is about as cheap as others and is made possible by erecting wooden forms such as is used for pouring concrete. Ordinary labor may be used to set the stones in the form. They are then held together by a mortar made of cement and sand. When the wall has set, the form is removed and a solid wall remains.

By adopting this method, states Dr. Stuckey, the waste stone on practically all farms west of the fall line may be used to advantage. Such local stone may be used for foundations or barns and in walls for tobacco barns.

Who is to Stop Feeble-Minded Persons From Wearing a Mask?

Someone has said that this television will put a stop to some feeble-minded person's calling on the phone and saying: "Guess who this is!" But what is to stop the feeble-minded persons from wearing a mask?—Chicago Post.

Some people do things from force of habit—some don't have either forced or habits either when it comes to doing anything.

How the women must laugh at the men.

Unnecessary solemnity is funny to anyone who is gifted with a sense of humor.

The beauty doctors can help the women dispense almost anything except thick ankles.

Many Get Back Young Appetite

Quick lunches, usually cold, gulped down so the "dinner hour" will not be over before you can do a little playing, is the best way to ruin your stomach, and you suffer from indigestion, heartburn, bloating, nervousness, headaches; and, worst of all, you get thin, pale and weak.

If you must eat that way, always keep a package of Pape's Diapepsin handy so you can chew one of the pleasant-tasting tablets after your meals. It keeps the food sweet so your stomach can digest it.

Follow the experience of thousands who again have a young appetite. All druggists recommend and guarantee Pape's Diapepsin to relieve indigestion and sweeten the stomach in 5 minutes.
