Thursday, May 31, 1928

THE CHATHAM RECORD

WHAT HAPPENED BEFORE Dr. Long, out fishing with Alexander Pierce, a detective, tells of his eyes wide open while there. On the way in a trai nDr. Long is attracted by a girl, who later faints. Dr. Long treats her, and looking into her bag, is astounded to find a loaded revolver.

Now read on-

Chapter II

I heard the conductor shout behind me. I turned from her, even as her eyes were upon me. It was my station; and I did not stop to realize the screaming folly of leav- dark body of the Hindu servanting the train.

Men who have thrown away the threshold of the door. wrong card in the biggest poker minutes I stood fuming, watching the vanishing end of the train. It soon swept out of sight.

"Is this Dr. Long?" spoke a voice behind me.

had neither the tone nor the rhythm of our Florida colored men. see a white servitor—one of those not yet removed the intriguing little gray-haired English butlers of an hat from the fine, brown hair. old and incomparable school. It was a low voice, with a rather pecu- light," Southley apologized during liar purring quality. And so I was the excellent meal. "We have a surprised to see the dusky face that private lighting plant, but it's seri-looked into mine. It wasn'tblack, ously out of order. We're sending "I must be ill," she said. yet quite dark enough to be that of for new parts." a mulatto. But in a glance I knew tinctly Aryan. He had a straight, earth." finely chiseled nose that was almost classical, thin lips and rather high in his place. black, and astoundingly deep. They after I came. Spite work, I think." it. Southley's servants and a native of such remarks were quite to be ex- tell me about the ghost. Hindustan.

"Yes, I'm Long," I told him.

sahib-and the car is waiting," he seemingly just below the veranda. added zest to my visitwent on in his strange, purring It was a plaintive, haunting cry, voice. The great, black eyes fas- but except to a naturalist not worth cinated me.

er Hayward. He was a man possibly my own age. He also was in the newest of his projected trip to Southley dinner garb. He had a rather large, Downs. Pierce advises him to keep dark face-perhaps a trifle severe and forbidding. There was a dull I certainly expected nothing as followed his horse. light that might have been ambition commonplace as I saw. Her eyes and might have been a thousand were fixed on the form of Ahmad point. The beast was always seen other things in his eyes.

"I've heard Southley speak of you," the younger man told me. am Vilas Hayward. It may help you to keep us straight to know my given name.'

"I think that is Joe now." Then we all tsood up. The whole the watchful eyes of the men, the and left only the slender form at the yond all words.

The voice was deferential; yet it ley." The voice was deferential; yet it ley." The girl at the doorway was the to be seen in the eyes of certain else." think I had expected to turn and arms that afternoon; and she had depths.

" I hope you don't mind candle-

"I prefer candles, and I'd have

The shape of his features was dis- "It's the most restful light on pected from the older Hayward. A long, tremulous call suddenly "I've decided I hadn't better." "I come from Southley Downs, shivered out of the darkness-too. And a no less perceptible [And one night a traveler stopped at change came in the set of her lips. the house, simply speechless with Very slowly I turned. I don't fright. He said that a tiger, clear stitute, are now at home for the sumknow what I expected to see. But and tawny in the moonlight, had mer.

Das, the servant, who was doing either on or about this hill on which some household task at the end of the house is built. And then one "I the long room.

motions, with a senseless fascina- the room we are now in. He told on the rug, evidently cleaning a He couldn't see at first. He just soiled place on the carpet. And heard something bounding about in world faded-the glittering table, even in that awkward position he the shadows-playing with the curseemed to move with a strange, tains. His candle-light showed him feline grace, a lithe sinuousness be- something big as an enormous

F did not forget that this was color. "She's been on a visit to the natural in the man. But by some "That is substantially the legend, wrong card in the biggest poker she's been on a visit to the hathar in the half. But by some standard in the legend, hand of their lives might have some shore, and she was carried past her station—like the little stupid that custance, his candle light had you to think twice about it—if you found a reflection in his eyes. I do you would take your bag and go. from far away. "I had to send for am a cold-blanded, self-disciplined For years and years the story as her in the car. Josephine-come up man, and it was not just imagina- just told at intervals, and not even and meet my friend, Doctor Long, tion, not just illusion or moon-mad- the negroes were afraid. But two > same girl that I had carried in my great beasts of prey in the black Ahmad Das left the room, and I spoke in the deadly quiet that followed his departure.

"What is it, Miss Southey?" asked her as gently as I could, but that the story was hard for her "I must be ill," she said. "It was some natural explanation for the just Ahmad Das."

"I know-and that wild light in that the ma nhad no African blood 'em if I had enough servants to his eves was natural. It was just whatever. I replied, the glare from his candle."

She smiled at me, took me through some of the great, down-Then the elder Hayward grunted stairs rooms of the manor house. The place was almost Georgian. cheek bones. He wore the snow-white turban of a Musulman. But 'em,' he said. "I like bright lights, most of all I noticed his eyes. They and lots of 'em. And the worst of were the eyes of a mystic, very it is the plant broke three days while undirected was almost deorgian. There was almost deorgian. There were many little alcoves— the best of hiding places—and long corridors and indefinite flights of stairs. I was amazed at the size of gave no key to his thoughts, but I looked at him, expecting to find "And what traditions it must suggested the somber mysticism of him in jest. There are men that have!" I exclaimed. "You forgot, the East. Of course he was one of joke like that sometimes. But his Miss Southley. You were going to She paused and looked at me.

"I'm so sorry. It would give an

"But you wouldn't believe it-" "And you wouldn't want me to! ville, Ga., is visiting her daughter, a moment's thought. I had been Ghost stories aren't meant to be be-lenough in the wilderness to recog-lieved."

"The stories all agreed on one midnight a negro came with a can-For an instant I also followed his dle on some errand into the library, tion. He was on his hands and feet rather a straight story afterward. hound-and yellow and black in Long-my daughter, Miss South-ley." Miss South-greenish glare, not unlike the light enough. Let's talk of something

"If I'm to cure this house of its troubles, you'd better tell me all.' told her.

She braced herself and continued. American girl; and I had no doubt to tell. Already I was groping for "Iwo years ago Sam, one of our colored men, came wild-eved into the house and said that he had seen the thing just below our verandaand all of us laughed at him. Perhaps a month later one of the housemaids came with almost an identical story-she and one of the young colored men had been walking about the hillside, and it had suddenly emerged from the shrubbery. It makes such a story particularly disquieting, doctor, to have two people verify it.

(Continued next week)

Wildwood

the Methodist church, will preach revolutionized and prosperity beyond here next Sunday evening at eight expectation enjoyed. The new prod o'clock. He will also preach Monday morning at eleven o'clock. After preaching, an hour will be given duct in comparison. for dinner. In the afternon, there will be a business session. All superintendents, stewards, Sunday school teachers and all members of the Sunday schools of the Pittsboro quarterly meeting of this year. Miss Jeanette Ernst, who was a member of the graduating class of Peace Institute, Raleigh, received her diploma last Friday and is now at home for a vacation.

eveningLm,D(-F slfrdluetaoincmmm As for real estate news, Mr. Stedman states that he has sold seven farms since Christmas, involving a total of fifteen thousand dollars. He also states that he hopes to sell quite a number of farms this fall. He still has a score or more of farms which his clients have instructed him to sell at sacrifice prices.

RAYON ONLY HOPE FOR COTTON

Boston, Mass .- Hope for the cotton industry in the future lies in the increased manufacture of artificial silk from cotton and in that alone, in the opinion of German textile manufacturers, 27 of whom have arrived in this city from Germany for a thorough tour of the South where conditions of the industry will be studied.

This group of distinguished German manufacturers in addition to making a detailed study of the cotton textile situation in the South will offer, explain, and demonstrate the new process for the manufacture of a new and perfected artificial silk from cotton which has been de-She was a sensible, cool-headed veloped to a great extent in Germany, and with this product it is believed that manufacturers will be able to compete for all lost trade.

In the opinion of the German leaders of the textile field there is hardly any hope or likelihood that women will ever again resort to cotton underwear or hosiery. And they do not look for a return of longer skirts to add to the consumption of cotton goods.

It is only through the increased use of artificial silk that any cotton manufacturer may hope to get back lost business.

With the perfected artificial silk the German textile leaders declare the entire cotton industry will be uct, it is declared, will likewise goods, so perfect is the artificial pro-

Among the group of 27 German textile leaders preparing for the ex. tensive tour of the South are such leaders as Otto Sgler, Ernest Fiesscher, Alfred Hilderbrandt, Dr. Hanz circuit are invited to attend these Schaeffer, Wilhelm Kohlstedt, Mar-services. This will be the third tin Marx, Eugene Negler, Albert As-Schaeffer, Wilhelm Kohlstedt, Marterman, Rudolf Pfitzner, Walter Richete, Ulrich Rudert, Otto Schens, Hugo Stompe, and Wilhelm Vogt.

Several of the German leaders are accompanied by their wives, and the Southern trip, which it is stated Miss Alma Walden and Margaret reaches every "nook and corner" Dickens, also students at Peace In- of the textile field of the South, will also be blended with extensive sight.

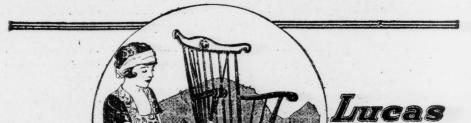

seeing.

THERE is nothing quite like Bayer Aspirin for all sorts of aches and pains, but be sure it is genuine Bayer; that name must be on the package, and on every tablet. Bayer is genuine, and the word genuine-in red-is on every box. You can't go wrong if you will just look at the box when you buy it:

of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

He took my bag and led the way enough in the wilderness to recog- lieved.

the somewhat stealthy way with smothered gasp of dismay. which he placed his feet, a sinuousnes sand a grace that one might with the verves of these occupants Downs needs a doctor-even more expect i na dancer. I couldn't hear of Southley Downs. Evidently the than I do.' his footfall in the gravel; and I fell swamp air had got into them and to conjecturing what a successful left its poison. The elderly South-hunter he would be in the Western ley had evidently not heard the "Our ghost isn't the ghost of a seemed to know how intuitively. Th man walked just like a cat. He placed his feet in the same way.

"The other must have misesd the with a nervous jerk, and the elder being so uneasy that they would train," he told me in his correct said something that sounded like an walk." but hesitant English, as he helped me into Southley's great touring car.

Southleyhimselw met me on the great veranda. The shadows were in her dark eyes. heavy there, and his face just a white blur. But whe nwe went into the lighted hall, I saw that the in spite of her embarassment. months had changed him. The sight of his fine, old face in the soft candle-light was, I think, the first real shock of my stay at Southley Downs.

He greeted me with the finest Southern manor house and do any my life." other thing. It's in the air and the atmosphere, as all men know who have visited the South. It is a tradition, too. The voice itself was rather wavering and shrill, rather more aged than I remembered it. Then he turned to the impassive Oriental behind him. "Ahmad Das," he asked, "didn't Joe come?"

I didn't hear the answer, for I turned to shake hands with a tall, straight youth that was Southley's son. He was about twenty-one, evi-"My son Ernest," the old man told me. He tried to straighten up.

"Already taller than his father." We walked into the great drawing-room; and there two other men arose to greet us.

"Mr. Hayward," my host extook one myself. plained. "And another Mr. Hayward, his son.'

It was wholly possible that his voice changed slightly when he introduced these two. But, of course, you had forgotten." it was to be expected. An instant before he had just introduced his not readily explained. I bowed and all things else were forgotten. died. over the older man's hand.

tall and more than a little obese, and perhaps sixty-five years of age. white hair was clipped close. He that men call life was sparkling in saw thereafter." had rather peculiar, piercing gray her eyes and dancing in her smile. She paused, and in the little si-eyes, a firm mouth, and he had the Her color was at its height, and I lence we heard some night bird give look of overflowing opulence. As I was drinking it like wine. In the its sleepy call from the marsh. shook his hand, a bell jingled in the next it was wholly gone. Probably "At first the stories were rather hall. For an instant the Hindu's my first impression was that her vague. Now and again they would face showed in the dorway, and color was fading. Southley went to meet him. They She was watchi ticularly observant of casual ac- species of owl-a night-hunter that ent, Dr. Long. It has one or two H. Hilliard. quaintances; but I found myself is often found in our Florida strange facts, and the situation studying the dark, straight form in marshes. Those on the veranda isn't to be laughed at, even if it front of me. There was a quality with me must have heard the same isn't to be believed. I hope you'll in his carriage that was particularly sound dozens of times. But four be able to laugh-but I'm afraid absorbing. I couldn't quite grasp of them started in their chairs, and you won't. It's been a tradition in what it was. I rather think it was one of the four uttered a half- this house since my father came, smothered gasp of dismay. Something was radically wrong -at all. It's just that Southley

"It's here already."

the house, anyway."

the world!"

his chair.

Joe,"

at once.

"You don't mean it!"

mountains. It usually takes years sound. At least, he gave no sign. man," she said. "It isn't the ghost of practice to learn to stalk. He His son, the nerves of whose hand- of a lovely girl who died for a some body should have been of sweetheart-or even a little child." "I'm glad it isn't a little child. I steel, gave a scarcely pereptible start. Both of the Haywards turned can't bear to think of their sleep

> "Our ghost-isn't a human being oath under his breath. Josephine > had been the most affected of all; at all." I couldn't laugh into her earnest and when I looked at her again I saw that lingering, haunting sorrow face. I didn't feel like laughing. "It isn't very cheerful, is it, doc-

> She uttered a little, nervous laugh tor?" she went on. "And it is rather -a sound that was joyously musical embarrassing to sit her and tell you things I know you can't possibly "Did you ever encounter just this believe. My father came from atmosphere before?" she asked me. India forty years ago; and he "It's these marshes, I think-the brought a tiger cub with him. It was a pet-a tawny little creature "All it needs is a ghost," I told that played and romped and pulled her. "If you can present a ghost, at the curtains. He brought two hospitality. He couldn't live in a it's going to be the biggest week of servants, too-a Hindu man and my mother's ayah. Both these two servants are dead. Although you would hardly gues sit, Ahmad Das "The newest, most novel ghost in was born after they came to this plantation. She said it lightly; and I kept "The cub grew into a beautiful, my eyes upon her. Then we heard tawny, full-grown tiger, seemingly the elder Hayward grunting from as gentle as a collie. But one night when the wind blew it seemed to "Oh, don't tell that silly story again, Josephine," he muttered. woman, and she was badly torn be-"I've heard it till I'm tired." "Then take him into the library, off. In the condition that she was, her father suggested. "I do her wounds were even more dangerwant him to hear it-and since it ous than they otherwise would have dently an undergraduate at college. bores Mr. Hayward you'd better been. It was unquestionably the not tell it here. I want him to see brute's intention to carry her offand maybe you know something Josephine and I went through the about tigers.

long hall, and into the library. "They say that they will play for There were other candles here, and literally hours with their human "They say that they will play for the shadows were long and unwa- prey-just as a cat plays with a vering. I held a chair for her, and mouse, with the most terrible cruelty that can be imagined. The beast "Of course I know you," she said attacked my father then, and leaped through the window and escaped "I'm glad of that. I was sure into the marshes.

"When morning came all the I was watching with immeasur- negroes and my father and the able delight every change of expres- Hindu tracked the tiger down-and son, evidently the joy and pride of sion in her face, every shadow in finally killed him in the thickets. his life. But now it seemed to me her eyes, the delicious rising and And when they got back Ahmad that the voice had an alien tone-a falling of the color in her cheeks. Das was born. On the very day, strain and a nervousness that was She was in the middle of a sentence, and the same hour, that the tiger

Then, slowly as water freezes, the "Of course that's just a detail. He was a huge creature—six feet life utterly died in her face. There is no other word. In a with the stories that the colored The legend that has grown up deals moment, the witchery and mystery people told-about something they get a glimpse of something tawny Southley went to meet him. They talked together an instant, and the old man was beside me again by the time I had turned to the young- out of her eyes, and they widened, Too many people told the same story.

T. Hilliard, to the car. I am not usually par- nize it as the cry of a certain large "But this story is a little differ- Fla., is visiting his brother, Mr. V.

> Mr. L. H. Fitchett, of Greensboro, is visiting his brother, Mr. R. H. Fitchett.

Miss Virginia Cathell, of the Methodist Orphanage, spent last week end at home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Cathell.

Miss Annie Lambeth, a student of Louisburg College, returned to her home here last Wednesday.

Miss Lucile Brady, also a student of Louisburg College, returned to her home here last Wednesday.

Messrs. Mills, of Waynesville, spent several days in town to see Mr. W. W. Stedman in regard to buying some farm land.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Womble and Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Crutchfield will attend the graduating exercises at Elon College tomorrow, Tuesday. Their sons, Jennings Womble, and Sam and Clarence Crutchfield, will receive diplomas. Also Jim Utley, the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Utley. will graduate.

The Epworth League met as usual last Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Miss Ruth Womble was leader of the evening. Rev. J. D. Bundy, the presiding elder of the Fayetteville district of

