MASS MEETING.

We received, just as our paper was ready for Press, a Communication, informing us of the intention of the Whigs of Burke, Caldwell and McDowell Counties, to hold a Mass Meeting at Morganton, on the 15th and 16th of October. It shall have a place in our paper of Friday next.

HARRY OF THE WEST.

Now, that a short repose has followed upon the heels of one of the most important victories ever achieved on the field of Politics, we have a word to say about the gallant leader, under whose glorious banner that triumph was obtained. It is true, that he is too well known to require eulogy from any one. For nearly forty years, he has been prominently before the American people—taking an active part in the affairs of the nation, and bearing himself like a Patriot and Statesman, in upholding, invigorating and strengthening our Institutions—in cementing and preserving the Union—and in encouraging the people to maintain their rights and interests. During all that time, malice itself, if it but speak the truth, can say nothing to detract from his proud fame. Every measure of national importance that has been for the general good, since his connection with public affairs, has borne the impress of his genius and patriotism; every measure that has brought affliction to the people, has been marked by his opposition. Magnanimous in character; frank, open and kind in demeanor; decisive, yet prudent in action; with courage undaunted, and fortitude that fails not; a mind endowed by nature with the choicest gifts of a practical intellect, improved by years of experience; a heart generous, liberal and thoroughly American, subject to no narrow, sectional prejudice, but filled with a noble patriotism; of integrity, which no vicissitudes of political fortune can shake; true to himself, to his friends, and to his country, in every contingency; bearing himself with a manly front, though difficulties in the public Councils, that brought despair upon thousands; and vindicating through life, with a devotedness could emulate, and with an eloquence beyond that of any other man, the true principles of sound policy and Constitutional freedom—with these characteristics, illustrated by the trials and services of forty years; HENRY CLAY stands before the country distinguished by every quality that should constitute a Ruler among freemen. Crowned by the honor, which his own genius has won, no man can add to his renown. It is for the good of his country, and not for his own glory, that we would place him at the head of this great nation. The crisis demands his services—the Republic calls on him once more for deliverance. We invoke then, the gallant spirits of the land; we appeal to every patriotic heart; to conjure all, who would put down the growing influence of destructive principles which threaten to our Institutions, to unite with us, that we may go up once more victorious to our National Capitol, and plant the banner of the Constitution where the hand of WASHINGTON first upheld it.

WHIGS OF NORTH CAROLINA! Remember! that you are contending with a party who are struggling for office and for existence, and who do not scruple at any means to secure their ends! Remember! that you are contending with a party who are struggling for office and for existence, and who do not scruple at any means to secure their ends!

WHIGS OF THE WEST! Remember! that you were begged to vote for COL. HOKE because he was a Western man, and were told that the Presidential question had nothing to do with the Governor's election; and that now the same hand that penned this pitiful appeal to your sectional prejudices, is engaged in making capital of your votes for COL. HOKE and proclaiming to the Democracy of other States, that you have deserted your principles, abandoned your party, and are going for POLK and TEXAS! Remember this and GO TO THE POLLS!

FOR THE REGISTER. REV. PROFESSOR MAFFITT. The intense interest and breathless silence manifested by the immense congregations which wait upon the ministrations of this accomplished Orator and Divine, are the happiest demonstrations of the power he holds and the effect he produces upon his audiences. Varied and accomplished in his style—captivating and instructive in his delivery, he wins the love, while he improves the hearts and edifies the minds of his hearers. Zealous in his appeals to the understanding, and a deep piety breathing through every sentence he utters, he certainly stands in the front rank of the many Pulpit Orators whom it has been our good fortune to hear.

The Lectures he delivers are of a highly intellectual cast, and exhibit a mind well-stored with all the flowers of rhetoric, and imbued with that elevated and patriotic sentiment, which command the respect and esteem of all. The Lecture on BOZ, the English Tourist through America, showed him to be a true American at heart, though a foreigner by birth; and such a castigation as the Dickens, the Trollope, the Marryat &c., received at his hands, was a caution to all future assailants of American character. A considerable revival of Religion has been going on in the Methodist Church, since his stay in this City.—We sincerely hope that his convenience may justify him in remaining a week or two longer with us; and thus be enabled to assist in the completion of that great and glorious work which has been commenced under the auspices of his ministrations. His fifth Lecture, we learn, will be delivered this Evening, (Tuesday) at the Methodist Church, on the subject of "WOMAN, AS SHE SHOULD BE." We expect to see a large concourse of the fair ones of our City present, not doubting that the young men will be there also, to learn how to choose a wife, as she should be.

Just as our Paper was going to Press, we received a Communication, signed "Many Citizens," eulogizing Mr. MAFFITT, and expressing an earnest desire that he could be prevailed upon to remain a while longer in our City. We have not time to insert it.—Ed.

It is a stroke of Political aplenty as ominous as a physical one! James K. Polk has just experienced an attack of the former—a second one in November will prove most fatal.

ATTENTION! THE WORLD!!

His Excellency, Capt. JOHN TYLER, has magnanimously withdrawn from the contest for the next Presidency, and woos most piteously his numerous friends to give their support to JAMES K. POLK!—Now, indeed, then, may the Whigs hang their harps upon the willows—and, instead of gaily singing those soul-enlivening strains of "Harry of the West"—the Whigs they are coming from mountain and plain; instead of shouting with triumphant gladness—

Hurra! hurra! the Country's risin', For Henry Clay and Frelinghuysen, they may chaunt the funeral dirge of their departed glory, and sigh, "Ah! wo is me!"—What! have the temerity to oppose the immense influence of JOHN TYLER, and confront the Spartan courage of JAMES K. POLK! Why, ye must be as reckless as the maniac who rushes headlong over the yawning precipice. But we cannot give up the battle without at least an effort—if they have thus plotted for our destruction, and are determined upon our extermination, why, we will give them the best fight we have on hand, and as long as we can keep off from the quagmires of Loco Focism in New Hampshire, Aquacomac and Texas, we do not fear the power of this unprincipled and unholy league.

CHANGES!

It would be a thankless task to attempt to correct all the blunders of the Democratic Presses in their anxiety to sustain a sinking cause and keep up the courage of their followers by parading pretended changes from the Whig party—but as the "Signal" repeats the statement made about Mr. FESSENDEN of Maine, and asserts positively that he was a "leading Whig" and a "Whig member of Congress in 1840," we deem it proper to state explicitly, that there never has been a member of Congress from the State of Maine by the name of SAMUEL FESSENDEN, and that WILLIAM PITT FESSENDEN who was a member of Congress from the Portland district in 1841, was and is now a thorough Whig; and is now traversing the State advocating the election of Mr. Clay. We hope this silly story may be put to rest—and if the Editor of the Signal is not satisfied with our authority, we refer him to the "American Almanac for 1844" which contains a list of all the members of Congress elected from each State since the organization of the Government.

WHIGS OF NORTH CAROLINA. Remember! that although you have just achieved a glorious victory, the great battle for the Constitution and the country against POLK and TEXAS is yet to be fought!

Remember! that you are contending with a party who are struggling for office and for existence, and who do not scruple at any means to secure their ends!

WHIGS OF THE WEST! Remember! that you were begged to vote for COL. HOKE because he was a Western man, and were told that the Presidential question had nothing to do with the Governor's election; and that now the same hand that penned this pitiful appeal to your sectional prejudices, is engaged in making capital of your votes for COL. HOKE and proclaiming to the Democracy of other States, that you have deserted your principles, abandoned your party, and are going for POLK and TEXAS! Remember this and GO TO THE POLLS!

EXCURSION TO PORTSMOUTH &c.

We were delighted with the original and humorous description under the above caption, in the last Independent. Had we space we would certainly have collected some of the morceaux and published them. A trip now and then, to a sister State, sharpens the wit wonderfully. Those who remain at home all their life, see with but one eye, and feel with but one corner of the heart. Citizens and Soldiers go abroad oftener, and let us hear from you.

EDITOR'S CORRESPONDENCE.

FRANKLINTON, Aug. 23. DEAR SIR:—The discussion came off at this place according to appointment. Mr. Venables the candidate for Democratic Elector for this district, and H. W. Miller, Esq. of your place, were the speakers. Mr. Gilliam, the candidate for Whig Elector, was not present, (as was known that he would not be some time previous to the meeting) in consequence of the delicate state of his health.

I cannot attempt to give you any thing like a full account of the discussion, I could not do justice to Mr. Miller's Speech, and Mr. Venable would not, I feel sure, thank any of his friends even for giving a sketch of his remarks, particularly in the order that he delivered them, and it would be a task that no one else would willingly attempt; for I speak within the bounds of truth when I say, that he did not devote fifteen minutes in discussing any one subject, in a connected link during his three hours speech. His remarks were composed of the usual newspaper charges of the inconsistency of the Whig leaders and Whig party, denunciations of an U. S. Bank, the Tariff &c., with a very strange argument in favor of the annexation of Texas. He contended for the annexation of Texas, because it would, he said, give a new impulse to the migration of slaves, and consequently reduce the price of lands.

He charged and vilified Mr. Clay as a duelist, gambler, &c.; he charged him even with perjury. This latter charge he attempted to sustain by saying that Mr. Clay, whilst Secretary of State, had challenged Mr. Hamilton for "words spoken in debate" in the U. S. Senate; that he, Mr. Clay, had taken an oath to support the Constitution, and that that sacred instrument said that no member of Congress should be held responsible for words spoken in debate.

He said he could not as a Christian and good citizen assist in elevating a man to the Presidency who sustained and practiced the principle of duelling. He attempted towards the close of his remarks an eulogy on Col. Polk, but he found it an up hill business I assure you—the pit of it was a complaint of the Whigs for calling him Little Jimmy—and a commendation, as I understood it, of him for his cowardice; but he found little Jimmy a dull theme and quit him by stating Gen. Jackson on the stage, and concluded his remarks by advertising for about the 6th time each to the subject of the annexation of Texas, and the Tariff. Mr. Venable spoke for three hours and five minutes.

Mr. Miller took the stand at four o'clock P. M. and spoke until about seven and a half o'clock, and notwithstanding the effort made by leaders of the democratic party to draw off at the outset of his speech, their friends, to prevent their hearing a reply, the power and eloquence with which he spoke, attracted the attention of a large number of that party, as well as the entire body of Whigs in attendance until the close of his remarks.

He took up all the questions on which Mr. Venable touched, and discussed them in regular order, with an ability that was admitted by all, never to have been equalled by any speech delivered in the county. I shall not attempt, as I have before said, to follow Mr. Miller in any of his arguments. His views on the subject of a U. S. Bank and particularly the Tariff were the ablest I ever heard. In his defence of Mr. Clay against the charges brought by Mr. Venable, and the indignation with which he repelled them, he displayed a power of oratory that took the crowd entirely by surprise, notwithstanding the high opinion they had before entertained of Mr. Miller's talents. He was interrupted by repeated and prolonged applause—applause that could not be restrained.

He reminded Mr. Venable that he was an Elector on the Jackson ticket in 1832, and asked how he could consistently denounce Mr. Clay for that which Gen. Jackson, his great Chief, (whom he had just eulogized to the skies) was also guilty. No feeling of Christianity or of good citizenship ought to have prevented him from voting for Gen. Jackson, but with Mr. Clay! Oh the thing was horrible! Mr. Miller's remarks on the annexation of Texas were very happy. He showed conclusively that it was a question, thrust upon the country at an unreasonable hour, to bluster up the administration of John Tyler. That the democrats have stolen the Captain's banner, with the hope thereby to place James K. Polk, in the Presidential Chair. He took up all Mr. Venable's arguments on this subject, and controverted them in an able and convincing manner. He showed up the late democratic Convention, their contempt of the popular will and the manner with which they had thrust aside the great men of their party and had taken up James K. Polk, in a style that highly delighted the Whigs, but was not at all interesting to the democrats. But I will not particularize, as the Whigs of this county hope to have the pleasure of laying before the public Mr. Miller's speech in a form that will place it in the reach of every man in the county. They desire this because they feel satisfied that they could lay no document before the public better calculated to promote the Whig cause than this speech.

I wish I had the power to give you a more graphic sketch of the debate and the effects of the speeches. It was to the Whigs a glorious day! They had witnessed as perfect a triumph as they could wish. Mr. Miller was ever won by any man in any debate—the democrats felt it and many of them acknowledged it, and Mr. Venable has cause to recollect the castigation he received to the last day of his life. The democrats left the field disgraced and in visible ill-humor—whilst every Whig face wore a smile. Indeed I have never seen so much enthusiasm in their ranks since 1820, and it was never exceeded that memorable campaign.

I perceive in an editorial of to-day's Standard, that that print attempts to disparage Mr. Miller's speech, and claims for the Democrats the advantage in the discussion on that day. From whom the editor gets his information, I do not know—but let it be whomsoever it may, I pity him from my heart, either for the want of discrimination, or a blind prejudice that will not permit him to do justice to an honorable opponent; and when the editor says that the democrats were satisfied with the days discussion, he was misled by his informant, who, if he knew any thing about it, knows how much it is to be feared, for every boy (democrats) were chagrined and that they did not attempt to conceal it. Some of them, as I know, complained of Mr. Venable for laying himself so vulnerably to his opponent, and acknowledged as every candid man was compelled to do, that Mr. Venable was perfectly "used up." With regard to Mr. Miller's speaking against time, that is equally false, he spoke about half an hour longer than Mr. Venable, but that the "patience" of the democrats "was worried" I shall not deny.

P. S. I forgot in speaking of Mr. Venable's remarks, to say, that he acknowledged in substance, the Toryism of Col. P. K.'s Grandfather and claimed for him the more credit on that account.

Our friends in other States may RELY upon it that Michael Hoke will be next Governor of North Carolina.

Standard, July 1844. There was only one thing that prevented Michael from being Gov. He didn't get quite votes enough.—Milton Chronicle.

It would also, that HENRY CLAY had been twice defeated for President, and that in November next he would receive a third defeat. Now, he says he may be elected. Much obliged for the privilege.

MR. RAYNER.

The Nashville Whig of the 10th inst. says:—The Hon. KENNETH RAYNER, of N. Carolina, passed through town on Thursday, on his way to Columbia, Tenn.; he remained at the Nashville Inn, during the day, and was waited upon by a number of citizens. Mr. Rayner is a good Whig and a capital speaker. He was invited to address the meeting at the Liberty pole to take place to-day and although he had partly committed himself to their invitations, he found that it would not comport with either his health or travelling arrangements. Should he recover his strength from the effects of a recent attack of fever, he will probably be with us the twenty-first.

SUPREME COURT.

The Tribunal adjourned on Saturday last, the 24th inst., having been in session since 10th June. The following Opinions have been delivered since our last report:

By RUFUS, C. J. in Love v. Cole, in Equity from Richmond, directing the Bill to be dismissed. Also, in Smith v. Downey, in Equity from Granville; directs that the defendant is not to be credited with the sum of $1,044 35, or with the costs and charges touching the same. Also, in State v. Lane, from Edgecomb, reversing the judgment below, and ordering a peremptory mandamus to issue. Also, in Gregory v. Overby, in Equity from Granville, directing the bill to be dismissed. Also, in Gregory v. Harris, in Equity from Granville, directing the bill to be dismissed. Also, in Hawkins v. Hall, in Equity from Halifax, affirming the decree. Also, in Burton's creditors v. Hoke, in Equity from Lincoln.

By DANIEL, J. in Hines v. Butler, in Equity from Wake, directing a decree for plaintiff. Also, in de la Cruz Bell v. Davis, from Carteret, directing a venire de novo.

By NASH, J. in Ramsay v. Bell, in Equity from Carteret, directing the Bill to be dismissed without prejudice. Also, in Carter v. Page, from Chowan, directing a venire de novo.
