NORTH CAROLINA ELECTION.

An Election took place in this State, on Thursday last, for nine Members of Congress, but owing to the mail's pace with which the mails travel in North Carolina, the only intelligence we have received is that which we subjoin. In Massachusetts or New York, every Election precinct would have been heard from before now, whereas from some of our Districts even, we have not received a word.

We are rejoiced to be able to announce as certain, the re-election of that faithful public servant Col. D. M. BARNES, by a majority of some three hundred votes over Mr. CHARLES FISHER, one of the most formidable antagonists that could have been selected.

We have not the vote in the several Counties, but we know the result to be as we state. In no District of the State, was greater exertion made to defeat the Whigs, than at this point, and the success of Col. B. is a proud triumph for them.

From the District recently represented by Mr. RAYNER, we have but little news, but that little is decidedly discouraging. We fear that Col. OUTLAW, the Whig candidate, is defeated by a small majority.

We have reason to hope, from rumors which have reached us, that the Whigs have elected their glorious young champion in the Tarborough (STANLEY'S) District. But we will not shout until we are out of the woods.

In the Halifax District, Mr. DANIEL is re-elected a large majority. For the purpose of rallying the Whig vote, Dr. BOWD became a candidate, but as he did not canvass the District, his vote has fallen, as might have been expected, somewhat behind the Whig strength.

In the Wilmington District, the gallant MEARES is the consolation of feeling that he has done his duty like a true Whig, as he is, and though his opponent, Gen. McKAY, will again take his seat in Congress, he [Mr. M.] has distinguished himself by his courage, and gained reputation enough to satisfy both himself and friends.

In the Guilford District, we learn verbally through Passenger, that Gen. DOCKERY (Whig) has beaten VINT (Whig).

From the Surry District, we have the vote of but one County, and that not so favorable to McMILLAN, as we hoped to see.

From CLINTON'S District, we have not a word, but we take it for granted that he will be re-elected.

In our own District, we have been shamefully beaten, owing to the sparsity of the Whigs. In Chatham, here we looked for 500 majority for their Countyman, HARTON'S majority was only 160. And what worse still, we learn that in Cumberland, many Whigs voted for DOBBS.

On the whole, our Delegation in Congress will hardly stand as before: four Whigs to five Locos. Should McMILLAN be elected, we shall have five Whigs, that is, if the rumors of DOBBS'S success are confirmed. By Friday, we shall probably be full returned.

ELECTION OF CLERKS.

On Thursday last, an Election took place in this County for Clerks of the County and Superior Courts. T. MARRIOTT (Incumbent) was re-elected Clerk of the County Court, and RICHARD P. FINCH (Incumbent) was also re-elected Clerk of the Superior Court. The vote stood—

For County Court Clerk: Marriott 1392; Adams 404; J. A. Wicker 279; William Stringer, 3.

THE NAME OF HENRY CLAY.

The Philadelphia United States Gazette, speaking of the celebration of the 4th of July in that City, says: "When the seventh toast was brought forward, and a name of Henry Clay was announced, one burst of enthusiasm from the assembled host, checked the utterance of the sentiment that followed. The name that man, the name of Henry Clay, had in it a sentiment, an inspiration, a conjuring power, that stirred unnecessary any addition; and it was long before the President was able to bring forward the toast connected with the name. Nay, we do not say that we should say that, instead of attempting to moderate the expression to the true solemnity of a dinner table, we thought that he rather sought to aggravate the enthusiasm. He certainly was as apt in the tumult as any one present. He could help it, we dare say."

The Cincinnati Gazette in speaking of the above proceedings, well remarks: "The man who is loved by his fellows, has the richest possession earth can give. Nothing can compare, indeed, with that unguessed enthusiasm which arises from, and grows of numerous bearing, devotedness to country, and devotion of character. And this is the possession Henry Clay has. He has won no battles—there is no name so noble which follows the warrior as that he has—all that he is—he has made by most service to the country, and a loyal devotion to the best interests of man; and hence whenever his name is mentioned on festive occasions or at his gatherings, it awakes the warmest, heartiest feelings."

seen that the building could not be saved, and in two hours the whole pile was a smoking ruin.

The Ocean House was built by the 'Ocean Company' winter before last, and finished last winter. It was valued at $36,000, and insured in Providence and Boston for $18,000. It was rented by John G. Weaver of Newport, who paid 8 per cent on the value. The building was in the form of an L, running north and east—the northern wing being 220 feet long, and the eastern wing 125 by 30—four stories high. It contained 208 rooms. Its situation was beautiful and commanding, and its loss is a heavy blow to Newport as well as an indescribable inconvenience to the boarders, a great many of whom were from New-York.

But the saddest portion of this calamity is the death of Samuel Fowler Gardner, Esq., one of the oldest, and most estimable citizens of Newport. He owned a large amount of property here, and was the agent and part proprietor of the extensive Newport Steam Mills, and another of which he was exclusive owner. He leaves a wife and ten children.

The body of Mr. Gardner was found in the ruins more than half consumed—a key and pencil lying on his chest. I also fear that Thomas R. Hazard, Esq., residing in the beautiful country seat of Vardulose, has perished. You will remember him as the author of some political tracts published in 1841.

George Burrows and Robert Coxall were on the ladder with Mr. Gardner when the eastern wing came down, and they fell outward, while he fell inside the burning walls. The two former are seriously injured, and it is doubtful whether Mr. Coxall will survive.

The furniture of the house $25,000—two thirds saved $9,000 insured. Mr. Weaver, the lessee of the Ocean House, has already taken a house which will accommodate fifty, and which he will open to-morrow. There's enterprise for you!

It was said there was a gentleman in the second story of the east wing, who was lost, but of this nothing is certainly known. Rumor also gives three or four other victims to the flames.

An express was sent to Providence for the Massachusetts to come here and take off the passengers to night. We are now waiting for her. Meantime I deposit an express to you, who will come through if he is alive.

P. S.—So'clock.—The steamer Massachusetts has just arrived at the pier, and will furnish about 500 homeless sufferers with lodgings for night, and also food. Yours, in haste, G. G. F.

Puttboro' August 10, 1845.

DEAR SIR: I send you subjoined, a statement of the vote in this County (Chatham) Haughton's majority is 200 less than I expected, but the Democrats fought as hard, as if Dobbin's election depended on this County.

Congress: Haughton 928; Dobbin 768—160 majority.

County Court Clerk: N. A. Stedman 1179; Nath'l. Clegg 476.

Superior do do J. Thompson; no opposition.

August 9, 1845.

DEAR SIR: I have discouraging news from the Edenton District. Northampton, which two years ago gave RAYNER a majority of 145 votes, now gives BOWEN a majority of 21. Three precincts in Bertie, heard from, give OUTLAW a majority of 94, at which, two years since, Rayner's majority was 146. Hertford has done well. Outlaw's majority is some 40, where two years since, Rayner's majority was 30.

Murfreesboro', August 9, 1845.

DEAR SIR: As you will be anxious to hear from this District, in which our friend Col. OUTLAW is our candidate, I have obtained from our Clerk a statement of the Polls, as officially returned at Winton yesterday, for this (Hertford) County:

For Congress: D. Outlaw (Whig) 277; Asa Biggs (L. F.) 239—38 maj.

For L. M. Cowper, C. C. C. no opposition, 484; For W. D. Valentine, S. C. C. do 372.

I learn, verbally, that BOWEN's majority in Gates, is about 100, and in Northampton some 20.

Trenton, Aug. 8th, 1845.

DEAR SIR: Below, I send you a statement of the Poll in this County for Congress:

Jones County: Meares 181, McKay 128. The vote is a very small one. There could not be less than fifty voters of the Whig party who were absent, which accounts for the majority being so much smaller than was expected. It is eleven more than Graham obtained, and eight less than Clay's majority.

Jno. H. Hammond, former Clerk of the County Court, is re-elected. So is James C. Bryan re-elected Superior Court Clerk.

COMMUNICATIONS.

FOR THE REGISTER.

MR. GALES: At the last Commencement at Chapel Hill, the seat of the University of North Carolina, the Degree of LL. D. was unanimously conferred upon His Excellency, JAMES K. POLK, President of the United States; the Hon. WILLIAM P. MANSIEU, late Vice President pro tem. of the United States, and upon the Hon. JOHN Y. MASON, Attorney General of the United States. This testimonial is the highest Honor conferred by that Institution, and was bestowed by the largest number of Trustees who have assembled at the College for many years. These three gentlemen are all Alumni of the College. Judge MANSIEU graduated in 1815, Judge MASON, in 1816, and THE PRESIDENT in 1818. Recently, one of the Trustees present at the conferring of these honors, was in company with the PRESIDENT and Judge MASON, at the same time, to whom, they expressed their high sense of the honors thus conferred upon them, acknowledging at the same time their highest regard for their Alma Mater. The President was born in Mecklenburg County in this State, and is a warm North Carolinian in feeling, and has taken the only son of his late brother, MARSHALL POLK, who lived and died in Charlotte, the County Town of the County in which the President was born, to raise and educate, and is preparing him for our University, whether he will send him so soon as he may be able to enter that Institution in regular standing. He prefers our University to all other Institutions. THE PRESIDENT and Judge MASON both expressed a full determination to visit Chapel Hill at our next Commencement, provided Congress adjourns before that time. And if it does not, that they will do so, if alive and well, at the Commencement thereafter.

To have the PRESIDENT of the United States, the late Vice President, pro tem. of the United States, and the ATTORNEY GENERAL of the United States, all Alumni of the University, at one time, as visitors, will shed a halo of splendor, unprecedented in the history of any College in the United States, over that renowned Institution, and will serve to sustain the high reputation the University has long had and richly deserves, of being one of the best Literary Institutions in the United States. Being richly endowed with money, and the very best plan of studies, and a most able and attentive Faculty, we are led to hope, that future time may again witness (what is now promised) at the College Exercises, men of similar distinction, the offspring of the University. No greater example, and no more worthy incentive, could certainly be given to the young gentlemen of the University, to go and do likewise.

FOR THE REGISTER.

MR. GALES: After an absence of many years, I had an opportunity of visiting a few days ago, once more, the old pleasure grounds and shady groves, the constant resorts of my school-boy days, "long time ago," in this self-same beautiful City of Oaks. Oh! how the recollection of the happy scenes and reminiscences of life's young boyhood days would rush upon my mind as I would recognize each spreading oak, and dark green hickory, as the face of some old familiar friend, and recall to mind the light and delightful hours passed here fifteen years ago.

Fifteen years ago! How rapidly and unnoticed have they passed. It seems but as yesterday almost, that I was standing at the rostrum of the beloved but now lamented Dr. McP., reciting for the first time the lesson—"Deus creavit calum et terram," and began to drink of the fountains of knowledge and of learning. I stood and gazed upon the old Academy, the surrounding groves, the particular tree known in boyhood, playful sportiveness, as "home," in "Prisoner's base." Yes, here stands the same old building, though I am glad to see it is newly painted up and repaired handsomely; well do I remember the striking lessons I have received here, and a half-suppressed, melancholy sigh found utterance, as I called to mind the many mispent and wasted hours I squandered away in that precious time of life.—But as Ovid hath it—

Securiprecipit telus, ubi fume soluto
Currit in immensum pandit carina salum.

Or, in more modern parlance, it is too late to cry over spilt milk. I could fancy myself the same gay and nimble youth, fearfully dashing up the tall hickory after the nut and bird's nest. I went and sat under the deep shades, in the same spot where I formerly exulted over Euclid, and pulled my hair in very rage over the deep, and to me then incomprehensible mysteries of Algebra and Mathematics; and how delightful and refreshing were the recollections of those joyful and happy days, when life was light as a fairy, and no mark of corroding care had been made upon my innocent heart. Blissful, joyous days—glorious even in their recollection.

While wrapped in this fond reverie of brighter days, I instinctively turned quickly around as tho' I heard the fond, familiar voices of those who joined me in my school-day sports—but all was silence. One by one, would the well-remembered voice of Ham and Rufus and George and Frank and Dal. Bob, Hal, Tom, Watkins, Julius, Marcellus, and Sam Brown, and a host of others, rise to my view, and though I called for them, yet, like the spirits of the vasty deep, they fled. But how should they? Fifteen years had fled since last we gambolled so nimbly and gaily through the Academic grove together, and during that time how many may have fallen victims to the insatiate and unerring Archer! "Fifteen years!" yes that long space had passed over my head, and despite the effort to restrain them, the melancholy tears trickled down my cheeks, and I almost feared myself alone and desolate—an old man. A plain and ample marble slab in your own grave yard, told the date of the first named, out down in the bloom of life and on the very verge of manhood—yes, that stout, sturdy, athletic frame had been marked by insidious and stealthy Consumption and carried him for its own. Others, mayhap, among strangers and without friends, far from the home of their fathers, and denied the soothing and comforting attentions of Mother and Sisters, even in death, have found a grave in some far distant land, or, by their high and manly bearing, have been "by strangers buried and by strangers mourned." Others may be now ploughing the billowy main—engaged in the service of their country; fearless and daring as the racing element on which they ride, unawed by the foe, and cheerily whistling a duet to the shrill music of the wild and boisterous winds. Some may be engaged in battle strife, amid the clang of glittering arms and the tramp of the mad and infuriated war-horse. The sacred desk may claim its tribute from this bright constellation, and the disciple of Esculapius may now be one of them. All classes of society may now be represented by some one of those of my school-mates—the Cabinet, the Bar, the Mechanic, the Professor, deep skilled in learning's lore, all may have their disciples from amongst them.

The very walks, the Spring branch, the "Diamond Hill," every thing, though washed and worn, were pretty much the same aspect as "days long since," and recalled some of the most delightful hours of my life. I could almost recall to mind the very smell of the sere foliage; and the sound of the gurgling stream is even now in my ear. Can I ever forget the sunny side of the wood, where I used to linger away my holidays among the falling leaves of the trees in Autumn—or the sweet-scented meadow, where in the Spring, with true gaiety of heart, I have leaped and raced and played. Happy, happy days!

It is delightful to fling a glance back to our early years, and recall our boyish actions, glittering with the light of hope, and the sanguine expectations of incipient being. The remembrance of our sensations, when we were full of elasticity, when life was new, and every sense and relish keen, when the eye saw nothing but a world of beauty and glory around, every object glittering in golden refulgency—is certainly the most agreeable of earthly enjoyment.

Fifteen years have passed since last I trod these classic grounds, since, when, through burning suns and frigid cold, I've wandered weary way, until now, by a fortuitous circumstance, I am permitted to indulge in these pleasant and delightful reminiscences.

RANDLER.

[CORRESPONDENCE OF THE REGISTER.]
NOTES OF A TRIP TO NIAGARA AND CANADA.
TRENTON FALLS, July, 1845.

The spot at the Falls, most particularly pointed out, is that where Miss WICKED was drowned many years ago. It is a wicked looking place—a pathway cut on the side of a wall of rock, always wet, and but just wide enough for one person to pass.—The rock hangs directly overhead, and the water, which falls but a few yards off, whirls round in broken waves and foam at your very feet. In 1836, a little daughter of Col. THORNTON, of Paris notoriety, was also drowned in the same place. The serving man was carrying her in his arms, when, making a false step, they were both precipitated into the vortex, while the parents of the child were but a few steps behind, and had to see her carried down, hear her utter those piercing cries, and die where no human aid could help her. The man clung to a jagged rock, and was saved as if by a miracle. It makes the blood creep to pass that awful tomb.

Our road in returning, was along the brow of the precipice, through a grove of trees, and many a beautiful view of the raging river, as it hurried on its way in so many fantastic shapes, was obtained at different points; but,

Though "Hydrophobia" may cure a turtle-supper, And a lady who's pimpled back to loveliness win her— Washing out every root of disease that is in her, The "water" couldn't "cure" our want of a dinner—

So we hastened from the sublime of the Falls, to the ridiculous of an American Table d'hôte, with two hundred people at work, as if they were chewing against time, or their lives depended on their speed.

Did you ever travel on a Canal, dear reader? If not, do so for a short distance the first opportunity; the difference between it, and all other travelling, is worth knowing—yes, and worth enjoying too, when you are not in haste nor in a hasty mood, (as mood, by the way, of which the dwellers in this "area of freedom" are seldom guilty; even if there is a Railroad near, with engines of thirty miles speed per hour. The motion is so calm, no jolt, no jar, and you can read, write, lie down, or walk at pleasure; but avoid it at night, and with a crowd, as you would Purgatory. By the help of sundry boats and stages, I reached Oswego the following evening.

This village is at the mouth of Oswego river, and on each side of it is a Port of entry, a place of considerable manufacturing importance, and much of the Western supplies from New York pass through it. The harbor is a good one, and defended from the Lake storms, by a long and costly stone pier, built by the U. S. Government.

I had longed for a storm on Lake Ontario, but everything was provokingly calm. The Moon rose without a cloud, and not even a ripple disturbed her shadow in the water. Having paced the deck until midnight, I retired to the arms of "Murphy," as a certain son of Erin called the gentleman who presided over sleep amongst the Ancients. The steamer and the hours moved on, and, awakening, I found that we were at Lewistown, at the mouth of Niagara river, and in a few minutes we were in the Rail cars en route for the Falls. F. C.

CORPORATION PROCEEDINGS.

RALEIGH, Aug. 5th, 1845.
At a regular meeting of the Board of Commissioners, held this day—Present, Weston R. Gales, Esq., Intendant of Police; James Litchford, D. W. Stone, John Hutchins, and Wm. D. Haywood, Commissioners.

The Petition of Joseph McAdams, for recommendation to the County Court, as a suitable person to retail Spirituous Liquors, was read and petition granted. Mr. John Hutchins introduced a Resolution constituting the Medical Faculty of the City a Board of Health, and respectfully requesting them, severally, to make to the Intendant of Police regular monthly reports of all deaths that occur in their practice, within the City, and the disease of which they died; and that the Intendant cause the same to be published in a condensed form in the several papers of the City. Which Resolution was adopted unanimously.

An account of Sixteen Dollars and Fifty Cents, in favor of John H. West, for winding up Town Clock, and furnishing Dusting Brush, Oil, &c., was presented and allowed.

A letter was laid before the Board from a citizen, complaining of the Cress which has been gotten up by the boys of the City on one of the Public Squares, as denormalizing in its effects, and requesting the Commissioners to have a stop put to it. The subject was laid on the table until the next meeting of the Board.

No other business arising, the Board adjourned. W. WHITE, Clerk.

THE SUBSCRIBER intending to remove to his plantation in the country, offers a great bargain in the sale of his Merchville Tract of land immediately adjoining the town of Oxford. The tract contains 215 acres, with an ample supply of timber and fire-wood, and an unusual quantity of well improved land. The dwelling, (of the largest dimensions) is just completed in the most fashionable and neat style of architecture, and is situated on a beautiful eminence, within a mile of the court house. The town of Oxford is distinguished for the healthfulness of its location, and the refined and moral character of its inhabitants. The subscriber is in a flourishing condition. Should the above premises not be disposed of by the month of December, they will be offered for rent the ensuing year. JNO. C. TAYLOR, August 12, 1845.

FROM the Subscriber about the first of May last his Negro Man, GIDEON, was purchased by me from Mrs. Mary Taylor, of this County, some time in the month of February last, while in the Jail in Waynesboro'. Gideon is about 38 years of age, yellow complexion, stout built and looks considerably in walking. He has been looking about in this County since he was taken from my service, until about three weeks ago. His wife was taken from him in Wake County last Fall and belongs to Mr. James Ferrell. He also has a brother who belongs to Mr. John E. Benton of Wayne County. I have some reasons to believe that he is at this time either in Wayne or Wake County. I will give a reward of Ten Dollars to any person who will apprehend the said Negro and confine him in any Jail so that I get him again. JAMES E. NETT'S, Kinston, Aug. 5, 1845.
