

THE LONG AGONY OVER!

The Legislature adjourned, sine die, on Monday, at 8 o'clock, P. M., after the longest session that body ever held in North Carolina. It was extended through eighty-five days! While we are free to admit that such a session is not a desirable one, we are still compelled to express our regret, that so many things have been imperfectly done, and that so many other things, which had paramount claims upon the attention of the Legislature, have been left undone.

No Legislature that ever assembled in the State had so fair an opportunity of building up for itself an enviable fame as the late North Carolina Legislature. Had they passed the necessary bills for arranging the Senatorial and Congressional Districts in proper time, as they might easily have done, and elected a United States Senator, and gone home by the 1st of December, it would have been well for them and still better for the State. Even if they had done nothing to promote the interests of the people, they could at least have pleaded in extenuation, that they had but lightly taxed the Treasury!

Our readers will find, under the proper head, the most important items of legislation that have transpired since our last notice. As will be seen, the last week has been, emphatically, the working week of the session—the Senatorial and Congressional Districts, both, having been laid off, and a Judge of the Superior Court, a Council of State, &c., having been elected. Nor, among other items, should we neglect to call attention to the passage of the bill making an appropriation for a survey of the contemplated Eastern and Western extensions of the Central Railroad. True, the prospective subscription upon the part of the State, has been evaded; but, under the circumstances, it is a triumph to have accomplished even so much as has been effected, and augurs a favorable inclination towards the ultimate success of this gigantic and important enterprise.

The Senatorial Districts, as laid off for the next twenty years, stand thus:

It will further be perceived, that the electoral ballots for United States Senators have been laid since our last issue, generally, having dropped Mr. Donnell, and reported THOMAS L. CLINGMAN, there was doubtless they intended to future thorough identification of the with their party. We wish them acquisition.

The Legislature having adjourned, electing a Senator, and the Governor, the power, under the circumstances, point, there will consequently be a year's delay in the representation of the State in the Senate. The responsibility for this delay rests entirely and exclusively upon the shoulders of the late North Carolina Legislature. There has been no time, during the session, at which they could have elected a Senator, and thus avoided the delay. The people should hold them to a stringent accountability. But more anon.

FREE SUFFRAGE, AGAIN.

Last Friday evening, in the Senate, Mr. Berry, of Orange, moved to take up the Free Suffrage Bill, and make it the order of the day for Saturday, on its second reading. This motion produced a "lively" discussion. Messrs. Gilmer, Woodfin, and others opposed it upon the ground that it would be a waste of time—they had agreed to adjourn on Monday—the Constitution required the bill to be read and passed three times on separate days in each branch of the Legislature—it would be impossible then to get it through the Commons, unless they postponed the day of adjournment, and there was business enough to occupy the time of the Senate. But all this was of no avail. Messrs. Person, Berry, and others, wanted one more chance to give a parting kiss to their defeated bantling—and it must come. They desired to shew their abiding devotion to it during the expiring hours of the Session. But! there was the rub! "Why," asked Mr. Jones, of Perquimans, and other Whigs, "have the friends of the measure waited until this late hour to show their devotion to this measure? Why did they permit the bill to sleep so long on the table? Why postpone other business, which can be perfected, to take up this which can't be perfected? A strange way this of showing devotion to Free Suffrage!" "Why," asked Mr. Gilmer, "have its friends refused to let the People know what Free Suffrage has already cost? Why did they suppress that information? Were they afraid of the light? Let the business of the People be done which could be done. They were to adjourn on Monday, and it was a waste of time to be considering the bill at that late hour. Why had not its friends called it up before? The People should know the truth about this business!" The Senator from Orange and others attempted to reply, but they saw what a farce they were playing, and they could hardly help laughing right off!

FREE SUFFRAGE—MR. EDWARDS.

The Raleigh Register, speaking of the defeat of the Free Suffrage bill in the Senate, makes the following observation:

"It is well known that the Senator from Warren, (Mr. Edwards), was elected on the ground of his opposition to the measure. He and his friends, to doubt as true 'Democrats' as any in the State, made the main issue in the campaign."

Now, with all deference to the opinion of the Register, we must say that in the above assertion he is mistaken. True, the friends of the measure, who first started in the movement to solicit him to become a candidate for the Senate, did it because of his known opposition to Free Suffrage, we are ready to admit; but not because of his known opposition to the measure. Some weeks previous to the election, a letter was gotten up by anti-Free Suffrage Democrats and Whigs, soliciting Mr. Edwards to become a candidate for the Senate. This letter was circulated throughout the county, and we know that many persons signed it who are and always have been strong in favor of Free Suffrage. Why did they do this? We cannot say; but it is so. After Gen. Hawkins became a candidate, (which he did upon strong solicitation and contrary to the expectation of a great many), there were those who, agreeing with him upon the question of Free Suffrage, would have voted for him, but considered themselves pledged to the support of Mr. Edwards, after having collected him to become a candidate.

It is very certain that there was no direct and open issue made in the campaign, regarding the question of Mr. Edwards' vote out of the County during the whole time, and consequently did not discuss the question before the people, and his friends, in urging his claims, certainly did not press his opposition to Free Suffrage as a reason for his election, out of whom they are proud.

These things being so, we feel warranted in saying that Mr. Edwards was not elected "on the ground of his opposition to the measure," and hence the assertion we have made heretofore, that "a Democratic—even the Freeholders of Warren County—are in favor of Free Suffrage."

We find the foregoing article, from the "Warrenton News," copied into the last "Standard," and are authorized by Mr. Edwards, to say, that it is a fabrication throughout. True, Mr. Edwards was "out of the County," during the whole campaign, last summer, but the "direct and open" issue was made by his absence, not only by his friends, but by his competitors, Gen. Hawkins. Mr. Edwards, we repeat, and we are confirmed in what we say by Mr. E. himself, was elected, mainly, "on the ground of his opposition to Free Suffrage."

Mr. John M. Butts has written a reply to the Whigs of Massachusetts, who lately presented him with a silver Salver and Pitcher, in testimony of their acknowledgment of his services in the recent political campaign, in which he argues, that the defeat of Gen. Scott, decisive as it was, "was no test of the strength of the two parties, or the principles of the two parties; and secondly, that it has been no fair test of the personal popularity of the two candidates; there has been no such want of confidence, either in the principles or ability of Gen. Scott, as the result would seem to indicate."

He thinks "we have been beaten by the Whigs themselves." He exhorts the Whigs to hold together, and says that "his voice is still for war, under the same banner that has twice led us to victory in the last twelve years. He concludes by urging the Whigs "to bury all past dissensions; to forget and forgive all past differences and wrongs; to lay aside all heartburnings and jealousies; for the sake of our common country, to harmonize, and restore confidence and good fellowship among themselves. Let Clay Whigs, and Taylor Whigs, Scott Whigs, Fillmore Whigs, Webster Whigs, and all other sorts of Whigs, stand together united, though quiet and inactive for the present, prepared to meet any collision with our adversaries, and at least be ready to prevent mischief and evil to the country, even if we cannot accomplish a positive good."

—that it gave the Whigs a chance to be "snowed under" by being put into a Whig District, whilst other leaders were provided for. This called up Messrs. Hoke, Caldwell and others, who indignantly repelled the charge or imputation of a combination or anything like it. Explanations followed—but still it would not do—the Northampton Senator was in a Whig District, "the hands of the Philistines"—there would be no chance for his genius to grow and expand in such a lighted region—he would neither be coaxed nor driven into reconciliation! The storm was terrible, but the substitute passed, and the General had the pleasure of having the bitter pill which was to sicken and kill off his towering ambition "crammed down his throat," with nothing to remove the nausea of the dose! It was indeed a rich and racy scene. Oh! the harmonious Democracy! They have no love for the "spoils of office"—none whatever! What a pity that every aspirant amongst the "unfortunate" for Congressional honors can't have a District carved out, just to suit the length and breadth of his ambition!

In the short notice in our last, in reference to the withdrawal of Mr. Rayner's name from the contest for Senator, there was an error (as we are now authoritatively informed,) in regard to the position assumed by that gentleman in the meeting of the Whig members, at which he requested to have his name withdrawn.

Not being present ourselves, we hastily penned the article in question, on hearsay. We stated that "Mr. Rayner took occasion to acknowledge (and with regret his difference in the late campaign)" &c. We are authorized to state, by way of correction, that Mr. Rayner, instead of expressing "regret" for his "difference in the recent contest," gave reasons and explanations in justification of his not taking the stump in the late Presidential contest; declined any one to point to any act in his political life, where he had failed to do his duty to the Whig party, where principle was involved—and insisted that any misgivings he might have in regard to the constitutionality of the measure, were not a test of devotion to the great principle of constitutional liberty, on which he had ever considered the Whig party to be organized; that he considered the Whigs of the South so situated in regard to Mr. Fillmore, who had sacrificed himself at home for us, that not only gratitude, but honor itself, required, that we should never abandon him. Mr. R. stated that while he had not felt called on to "take the stump" for General Scott, he had never failed either in public or private to defend him against the slanders of his enemies, and had voted for him with pleasure. He insisted, that Mr. R. expressed his determination to again enter into political life; and if life and health permitted, to be in the next Legislature. He said that he did not intend to allow a few personal enemies to obtain so great a triumph over him, as to make him sever from the support of principles to which he had been so long devoted; that the favor and confidence exhibited towards him by the great mass of the Whigs in the Legislature had imposed on him a lasting debt of gratitude; and of which it should be the labor of his life to prove himself worthy; and those who had invited him with a personal malignity unparalled, should yet, reciprocally, if life permitted.
