The Fall Season in New York-A Mercantile Dodge-The Trotting Bull from Spain-Ladies, who is Dick ?- Irish Funerals-Two remarkable Deaths -- Death of Bishop Wainwright, and also of an editor and a physician. NEW YORK, Sept. 23d.

The fall season in New York is not only the most delightful portion of the year, but it is the gayest and most fashionable. Summer tourists and travellers from abroad, and merchants from all parts of the land, collect here then in largest numbers. The hotels are filled, theatres and places of amusement are crowded, shops and stores are better patronized, money circulates more freely, and all the rounds of city life are more complete. Broadway, too, puts on its brightest robes of glory. Pedestrians of all kinds and from every clime crowd into it, and the moving procession passes to and fro all day, and until the waning hours of night. What an endless variety, and what a perpetual movement! Everything and everybody is instinct with life and motion, and all the impetus of life seems to be concentrated in the city's great central artery.

A great city must not only be the capital of a country, but one of the capitals of the world, where representatives of every race and region meet together. New York is becoming such a city more and more every day. It is cosmopoli tan. And, notwithstanding it is the worst governed city that the world has ever known, and is tall of corruption and iniquity, yet, being a great central point, it is a charming place to visit, where every one, after having been cheatbull-baiting concern, the hippodrome. He goes every where. it like a locomotive, at the rate of twenty miles Spanish bull to be something of a humbug. and, if he is not, he is out of the fashion.

Let a name be well endorsed, and nothing more is necessary. The population swims in currents. They follow leaders like a flock of muttons. This is done to save time and money, but both are often lost by it, and merit sacrificed to notoriety. A few days ago, large bills were posted up round abouts, having these words in the centre, "Ladies, who is Dick?" Many ladies did not know or care who Dick question, and to find out that Dick was a ladies' shoe-maker of some distinction.

Cards, hand-bills and circulars circulate more freely here than in any part of the world .-They are as thick as measles and small-pox, and almost as contagious and pestiferous .-Like them, also, they make their apparance in the Spring and in the Fall, but the as a perpetual epidemic.

A month or two since, Bishop Tinron, Buffalo, issued an ordonance that no more than five carriages should attend an Irish funeral. This decree is intended for this country only, and not Ireland, where they could scarcely collect so many first-rate wheel-barrows. The order emanated, perhaps, from high quarters, as its observance is noticeable here, and, as there was a vain-glorious love of display in this particular, and an outlay which none but the rich can afford, the correction of the evil is

Two remarkable deaths occurred here recently. A son of the late Judge Barculo was killed while at school, when playing. Another boy ran into him, his head striking young Barculo on the temple, which produced a fracture, and resulted in death. The other case was that of a milkman, who quarrelled with a woman he having any milk of human kindness in his composition, struck the woman on the head with her own pitcher. The hard-headed female survived it, but the fragments of the pitcher struck a little girl who was standing by on the neck, and killed her. He was arrested.

Bishop Wainwright departed this life yesterday. He had been sick for a month; was first taken with chills and fever, which ended in a typhoid attack, which carried him off. His age

Mr. Samuel Nichols, editor of the Sunday Mercury, was killed a few nights since, by being run over by one of the 3d avenue cars, in the Bowery. Dr. Jno. A. Brett, a physician of some celebrity, died on Monday, and was interred yesterday.

REMARKABLE THINGS IN OUR COUN-

A few days since we published the account of a very remarkable cat in Virginia. Is there "sich another" in the world? But this cat is only a small specimen in our gallery of wonderments. We have had some remarkable dogs and horses; and in jackasses, we defy Europe, Asia, and Africa, combined, to approach us .-Only look, too, at some of our Shanghai chickens. They are very remarkable: and as an old woman said the other day, the "Poking Chinas are very miwaculous." The boy in St. Louis, who could calculate so marvelously, is another predigy; and the negro, who learnt Greek and Hebrew by rude lessons given on the door of his blacksmith's shop, is in the same category. Then, too, we are equally remarkable in the way of rat-traps. If these inventions continue their triumphs, we shall soon have to import rats to keep up their business. Is it any wonder that we are such a proud people? We have not named Niagara and Mammoth Cave, as these did not grow up under our institutions. But we claim credit for the cat and the rest .--These are proofs of what a free nation can do and we challenge the whole earth to equal them

OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENCE | DEMOCRATIC MEETING DENOUNCING

THE KNOW NOTHINGS, &c. WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 .- The attempt to reorganize the Democratic party upon the basis of opposition to the Know Nothings has served to relieve the monotony existing here. To-night a mass meeting was held by the Democracy at Carusi's Saloon, consisting of some five or six hundred persons. Postmaster Berrett was appointed President, with a large number of Vice Presidents and Secretaries.

The committee on business presented a preamble and series of resolutions, in substance as follows:

.That whereas the Democratic party has ever striven to maintain the guaranties of the Constitution in its purity, and whereas a certain organization has sprung up, having for its object to control the rights of adopted citizens,

Resolved, That the Democratic party will wage unceasing war upon the organization of Know Nothings, and for that purpose we will form a National Democratic association-that we will forget political antecedents and cordially invite Whigs and all others to join in our efforts-that we have confidence in the wisdom and integrity of President Pierce's administration,-that all Know Nothings be removed from office under the administration, &c.

Upon the vote being taken on the resolutions the negatives were decidedly in the ascendant, but they were, notwithstanding, declared to be passed by the President.

FANATICISM.

The two principal literary Journals of New York, published by Messra, Putnam and Harper respectively, in the plentitude of their patriotism and gratitude, have arrayed themselves in opposition to the South, and joined in the hue and cry against what they are pleased to ing received the most liberal patronage from the South, and in the face of the loudest protestations of nationality and conservatism, they have deliberately thrown themselves into the tide of excitement now setting against us, and prostituted themselves to the disreputable task of giving such a direction to its current as they hope may eventuate in the complete destruction of our peculiar institution. Surely common justice demands, that Journals, supported alike by the contributions and means, both of the North and South, and professing to represent the enlightened opinions of the whole country,should maintain the strictest neutrality in regard to those questions upon which the two great sections are at variance, and scorn the idea of becoming the servile tools of plotting factionists and raving fanatics. The solution of this whole affair is to be found in the spirit of venality which seems to have taken possession of but too many of our Northern neighbors, and which, if unrestrained, is destined, at no distant day, to bring incalculable evils upon the country. They have reduced the matter to a question of dollars and cents, and have deci ded it accordingly. They are ready to pander to the passions of our enemies, because they believe it will pay. They are willing to lend their assistance in the severance of those ties which have bound us together as a happy and prosperous people, and to sacrifice their friends and their country for a pecuniary consideration. They are prepared to prostrate the noble fabric, which our Fathers reared, with the hope of the appetite of a bloated and insatiable cupidity. In view of these facts, it is important that the South should take such steps in the premises, unprincipled treachery, but teach these Journals a lesson, which, by affecting their pockets, will work some improvement in their manners, even if it fails to change their principles. The South should not pause to ascertain, whether or not the insult is to be repeated, or explained, but, in justice to herself, she should immediately adopt such measures of retaliation and protection as her honor and her interests demand. The proper way in which to attain the desired end is for her citizens to discontinue their subscriptions to these Periodicals, and to discountenance the Agents of these works, wherever they persist in their efforts to circulate them in opposition to the wishes of the community .-The Southern Press should regard it as a positive duty to expose the treasonable course pursued by these Magazines, and to hold them up to the condemnation of those whose rights have been so ruthlessly assailed. As this is a matter in which no party questions are involved, all Southern men should unite in the furtherance

It is most earnestly to be hoped, that the proper view of this matter may be generally If we understand the signs of the times aright, there is a storm gathering at the North, pregnant with disaster to the country; and unless the story of its ravages will be found upon that page of history which tells of the destruction of our Institutions, and the downfall of the Re-

The time is up, everybody has been whipped in, and see how the bar is crammed, and how the foremost ranks press toward the centre of the House .-The Speaker orders the doors to be closed. He then puts the question. Its form is mystic, as are many things here, but there is no great danger of a mistake, whippers-in being alert, and members knowing the advantage of following their leaders. The proposal was that the Criminal's Enfranchisement bill should be read a second time. Sir F. Thesiger's amendment was, that instead of the words "a second time." there should be inserted "this day six months." The question is, whether the words proposed to be left out, namely, "a second time," shall stand. "Those who are of that opinion say

CULTURE OF THE VINE.

It is regarded as a singular fact that literally with mountains of iron and resources sufficient to supply the world with salt, the people of the United States are still dependent for an immense supply of these articles on the labor of the Old World. We mention these as the more prominent necessaries of life which enter upon Small sales at 54 cts. the great currents of trade, without any purpose to enquire into the often surmised causes which have produced the result mentioned-whether of cheaper labor, or of injudicious commercial $1 25. legislation. But there is another article scarcely less, we may say, when we look to its consumption, a necessary of life, which is not only not produced in the United States, but has scarcely received passing attention either from our agricultural reformers or political economists. We allude to the culture of the vine, and the production of our own wines. In Madeira, the Italian states, many of the departments of France and the Rhenish provinces, the vine is the staple product of agriculture. Wherever the soil has been found suited to its common to 83 for prime. production, it has superseded the cultivation of all the cereals on account of the larger profits per bushel of 56 lbs. which it returns. A failure in the vintage is the precursor of suffering and famine, while the vine clustering with generous fruitalways brings | $91 and Family $101@11. gladness and plenty. It has been found that the acre planted with the vine in Europe produces much greater profit, constant and pressing as is the demand for breadstuffs, than when planted in cereal or vegetable products. And yet the common table wines (vins ordinaries) may be bought in Paris, after paying the Octroi duties, at5 sous (about 5 cents) the bottle. And if lands in Europe so valuable for the cultivation of breadstuffs, and when wine is so cheaply purchased, may be more profitably turned into vineyards, should we infer how great would be the profit realized from a successful vine culture in the U. States, where breadstuffs are lower and wines from 200 to 500 per cent higher? The experiments made near Cincinnati show that it is a source of princely profits .-$4000 would scarcely purchase one acre of a well set vineyard in some of the departments of France, and $1000 per acre, we believe, is the lowest estimate placed on such lands in Ohio.

Then why is it that in Virginia no attention has yet been bestowed on this most profitable branch of Agriculture? Is it because we have not the climate or the soil? On the Southern slopes of the Piedmont range throughout Virginia, there is undoubtedly a climate, and we believe a soil, unsurpassed in the world for the grape. Here, as it never was in France or in Italy, the vine is indigenous. We have seen from the mountains of Bedford almost as fine grapes grown wild as can be found among our best garden varieties. Then why, again, is it that our Agricultural societies, if private enterprise public consideration as the most powerful gin. lever with which the curse of intemperance and its concomitant evils may be successfully operated upon. The most temperate people in the world are the peasantry in the vine-growing sections of Europe; whilst the most intemperate we know, the Swedes, are those furthest removed from the use of pure and unadulterated wines. We think our State Agricultural Society can do scarcely anything prospectively more advantageous to our agricultural wealth. or the sobriety of our people, than to institute such inquiries, and encourage such experiments as may show the real adaptedness of our soil and climate to the successful cultivation of the vine.- Lynchburg Virginian.

BRAIN AND THOUGHT.

Richmond mentions the case of a woman whose brain was exposed in consequence of the removal of a considerable portion of its bony covering by disease. He says he repeatedly made pressure on the brain, and each time suspended all feelings and intellect, which Mr. Jesse C.
