RALEIGH, N. C.

SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 12, 1858,

THE STANDARD PACETIOUS, &c., &c., Our neighbor, Citizen Holden, in his last issue gives a cheering sign that he has somewhat recovered from the fit of the mullegrubs given to him by the Lawyers and Ronegades at Charlotte. We gladly hail the sign, inasmuch as we had rather meet an opponent who has some heart in his cause than one who is listless and indolent. Since his defeat at Charlotte, our friend, the Citiz b, has manifested unmistakeable symptoms that his heart was not in this gubernatorial canvass, and that he wrote because he must write, and not because he wished to write. This was so natural that no man with a heart as large as a mustard seed could censure him. He had worked for the office-he had built up the party to a height of power at which he thought he might proudly exclaim, "to nominate is to elect," and after all this, to be thrown overboard to "be drowned like a blind pappy," (we mean politically) by a combination of intriguing Renegades and Lawyers aspiring for vacant slippers, was to be treated in a manner well calculated to excite the warmest indignation of the meekest saint on the calendar.

Judging, however, from the last Standard, we are pretty sure our neighbor has been written to-has been spurred with the point of a pen, for he makes a slight "cavort," that in the course of few weeks he may treat us to some of the feats of his peculiar manege. He charges us with being idle in Mr. McRae's hehalf, and we should give the accusation a serious denial if it was not so patently ridiculous. Mr. McRae's cause-Democratas he is-is in every way worthy of the ardent support of every man who denires to see this o'd State prosper-to see such of her sous as still abide her fortunes clinging more closely and proudly to her, and see those who have been driven away by the misrule of party tricksters and charlatans returning to the bosom of their old mother, never to leave it again while life lasts. This is Mr. McRae's cause, and as its advocate he receives, and will receive our warmest support, accompanied but by a single regret, and that is, that our limited ability prevents us from bing infinitely more efficient in his be- tant question. I want each one of us to come up half than we can be. But our regret is mitigated by the fact that our deficiencies are a hundred fold supplied by his abilities. His progress in his discussions with his opponent has been an unbroken triumph of truth, reason and patriotism over selfish party sophistry. Everywhere he exposes Judge Ellis' shifts and evasions, and everywhere does he for a man for office who either is not able to bring over to his support all who are not for a an opinion, or who having formed it, is stone blind with party poison, or who for unwilling to express it in writing, and let it selfish, individual ends, turn their backs on go forth to all parts of the State as the honest the interests of the State. Far more than a match, intellectually, for his competitor, Mr. MoRae has a cause which would give strength to a much feebler man. That cause he supports everywhere by consistent arguments. His views for Currituck are his views for Cherokee. He tells the people everywhere that they cannot afford to saddle themselves with additional taxation-that to do so would drive population from the State, and impair Mr. Bushanan soundly. As Mr. McRae has been impotent-to put his party in power at her credit-that the works of improvement can never be completed by present means, and that, therefore, other means must be looked to. These means, abundant and attainable, he points out, and shows how similar resources have been made available by set Mr. McRae's position in regard to a sin- City formed a vigilance committee. > NEW-BERNE, June 7, 1858. DEAR SIR :- You will please give the following in insertion in your next paper :

Being authorized by the highly honorable genlen.en concerned, we take great pleasure in stating that the personal difficulty, which sprung up sudenly in the heat of discussion, at Beaufort, on the 7th instant, upon a mutual misunderstanding etween the Gubernatorial candidates, Hon. John W. Ellis and the Hon. Duncan K McRae, has been promptly, amicably, and satisfactorily ad-justed. These gentlemen take the stump again, with the wish-as they deeply feel the overpowering sense of the obligation-that the Canvasa may be conducted, to its close, on those principles of true Christian feeling and gentlemanly courtesy, which their respective positions before the public so imperatively demand.

"SHALL I NOT TAKE MINE EASE IN MINE INN?"

The visiter to Petersburg who wishes the above question satisfactorily answered, by asking it of Messrs. John Jarratt & Bro., will get an affirmative reply, followed by a most faithful performance of the promise .---These worthy and enterprising landlords have now open for the public an "inn" (an infinitely better word than your modern Frenchified phrase "hotel.) in which a man may truly "take his case." This establishment cannot, in a singular particular, fail to satisfy any one whose temper is not made up of verjuice and strong vinegar.

MEN, &c. The accounts published in our last paper from New Orleans brought us up to Saturday morning, en the Amecrian party determined to resist authority of theso-called "Vigilance Commite." It appears from later intelligence that Mayor Waterman, atter surrendering the government of the city into the hands of the "Committee," (or rather, mob.) took refuge in their neadquarters, doubtless to avoid the indignation of the citizens who were justly excited at his tame submission to the demands of a mob. It appears that Mayor Waterman was desirous of a omination by the American party, but Recorder Stith succeeded in obtaing a majority of the nominating Convention, and Mayor-Waterman consequently withdrew his name as a candidate under circumstances which indicated that he and his friends would not support the nominee of the Convention. The hasty surrender of the Mayor to the Vigilance Committee may thus be account

Waterman hearing of this, although he had re-signed his office, endeavored to deprae the Re-corders, but they would not acknowledge his authority in any such matter. Subsequently the Mayor, his satety being guarantied, left the headquarters of the Vigilance Committee, and occeeded to the St. Charles Hotel. The City Council was then convened, Mayor Water man impeached, removed from office, and Mr. Somners, President of the Board of Aldermen, appointed in his place.

The Chief of Police was also removed, a suc cessor appointed, and the regular police reorgan These energetic movements seem to indicate that the Vigilance Committee was not so owerful as the previous accounts represente and that out of their headquarters the control of the city was in the hands of their oppon Arrests had been made by both parties, but neith er had ventured to the extreme of executing Lynch law upon their captives.
