THE CANDIDATES AT ASHEVILLE OPINIONS REDUCED TO WRITING. The annexed certified copy of a letter from Mr. N. W. Woodfin to Messre. McRue and

Ellis, and their respective answers to the same, will show our readers that Judge Ellis has, at last, agreed to the proposition made to him by Mr. McRae, weeks ago, in the outset of the canvass. Why this reduction of opinions to writing has been held back to almost the eve of the election that is to settle the issue between the candidates is best known if it should be found that the four millions alreato Judge Ellis and those under whose counsel he has asted. West ! We leave Judge Ellis and his friends to answer the question.

The course of Mr. MeRae has been in enviable contrast with that of Judge Ellis. It has been plain, consistent, republican and frank. Having matured his opinions before the canvass began, he had no new ones to form to suit localities. What he thought in every other part of the State, in which he has spoken. The great issue between the candidates was, whether recommendations of further appropriations should be made to the next Legislature, or during the official term. if the condition of the State remained as at present. On the affirmative wide of this issue Judge Ellis started, but at several places so materially modified his position as to declare that the sum already appropriated would finish the Western Extension, and he would not recommend further appropriations to the next Legislature. It was when he took this posiat Mosely Hall, that Mr. McRae proposed to define their respective positions in writinga proposition, as we know, which was declined by Judge Ellis. Mr. McRae, taking the negative side of the issue on which the canvass began, has everywhere declared that he would not recommend, or encourage by official influence, any appropriations by the next Legislature, for that, while he was in favor of finishing the works, he knew that the State in her present condition, and with her presinf means, had not the ability to do so. Thus, in the very commencement of the canvass at. Charlotte (see Raleigh Register, May 15th.) Mr. McRae said, "that for his part, if elect- corners." We have shown how the "Joured Governor, he would not recommend any other appropriations, or any farther State indebtedness for internal improvement, no matter from what quarter, or by whom he might be importaned. He distinctly announced that he was now, and always had been in favor of internal improvement-that he desired our State debt at once, so as to complete our the completion of our whole system of works system," &c., he tells Mr. Woodfin that he is already begun, and would maintain. in full faith, the legislation hitherto had on this sub- at present, beyond the amount pledged by ject, as a contract irrepealable, ' but that he previous legislation."
