MR. MCRAE. Although this gentleman has been defeated by disgrace ul spathy on the one hand, and still more disgraceful lying and mi-representari ps on the other, his friends have the gratification of knowing that he has won for himself a rerutation for talen s, information, fairdealing and or urtesy, unsurpassed by that of any pevi us candi late for offi e in the d ate. Up n every mee ing wi h his opponent he fairly drove him to the well by his superiori y in intellect information, and capacity of ; lacing his views clearly before his bearers -About this, there can be no doubt entertained by his hi terest part zan opponent.

In the West, his campaign was a brilliant one indeed. He went there under the cloud of oft-repeated predictions that he would be s'aughrered at every ballot-box West of Iredell. When he got beyond the mountains, he might we'l have supposed himself to be triendless. But with ut quailing nerve h. looked his situation in the fice, and soon made tosts of friends in a region in which, on his arrival, he was greeted ei her by violent joli ical fees, or by men who looked coldly and doubtfully up on him.

Whatever may be the result of the n Distribution, and had the old I ne Whigs the men who fought for Distribution under Henry Clay, sustaiged Mr. McRae for a like reason, he great principle of Distribution would have been in the ascendant in North Carolina to-day, and the de true i e, caucusworking, and tyrannical Democracy flat on is back. Never was there a more favorable oppor unity to redeem a S are from misrule. and never was fells mo e complitely displayed than when this opportuity was permitted to pass unimproved.
