LECTURE SEASON, &c.

It will be seen by an advertisement in another column that the Lecture Season is about to begin with us, and that Wm. J. on the "Life and Character of THOMAS JEF-

Mr. Saunders will have a fruitful theme, and will no doubt do it as much justice as at this day can be meted out to Mr. Jefferson. The character of Mr. Jefferson has afforded a subject for more heated discussion than that of any public man of the United States. By some, he has been held up as an angel of light, and his political acts and opinions regarded as well nigh the offspring of inspiration, while by others, he has been represented as an angel of darkness, who, being "moved by the instigation of the Devil." announced dogmas and performed ac's calculated to subvert the theory of our Government, and make it in practice rather a Democracy, with all the disorganizing and agrarian tendencies of such a government, than a Republic, with all its conservative checks and balances. At a more remote peried, more exact justice will be done to the character of Mr. Jefferson than can be now given to it, for although most of his contemporaries have passed from the stage of life, the feelings and passions which characterized a violently excited period of our political existence have been, in a modified extent, transmitted to the present generation, made up as it is on the one hand of the sons of old Federalists and the British," and on the other, of the sons of sturdy old Federalists, who never tired of cursing "Jefferson and his Red Breeches, the Democracy and the French." Fifty years hence, when these passions and prejudices have been purified and medified by passing through the great filter of time, it will be found, we apprehend, that Mr. Jefferson was neither saint nor devil, but man endowed with splendid abilities which enabled him to do for his country much that was good, to offset a great many mischievous things of which he undoub edly was the author. But we beg Mr. Saunders' pardon. We have no right to trench on his

In connection, too, with the Lecture Season, we express the hope that the Legislature will, at its coming session, repeal the tax upon Lectures of a purely literary and scientifie character. This tax is a levy upon information. The literary and scientific men of the United States are, in the general, persons of moderate means, who cannot afford to devote their time gratuitously to popular instruction, and so far from taxing the small compersation carned by the gentlemen who give these lectures, at the request of the literary and scientific associations of the country, they should be welcomed into our midst and afforded every facility to execute | glish letter ? their honorable and useful missions.

Why, siz, you could have no conception of the wickedness of these anxious patriots until they turned loose a telling on each other! Nor had it ever come to light, the tremendous amount of ervice that has been done "the party," until since Saunders, Esq., will lead off with a lecture the moving about of these papers for signatures. The manner of approach adopted is indeed amusing to those "outside barbarians," who have heretofore been so freely denounced and misrepresented -we mean the Whigs. Here, as in Raleigh. "they are in a majority, and are generally a readng people." Yet, as their choice is not consulted regarded by the "powers that be," in view of erything within the knowledge of this community, we confess to some surprise at seeing the signatures of Whigs or Americans attached to either of these papers. They may excuse themselves on the ground of a choice of evils. Our opinion is,

FORNEY'S MEDICINE SICKENS 'EM. We have never seen a set of unfortunate wights more sickened at the stomach than the friends of the Administration have been by Forney's revelations about his old friend and ardent admirer, Mr. Buchanan, The ascades of cholera morbus and sea sickness are pleasant showers, when compared to the intolerable retchings and outpourings of these poor devils. They are sick unto blindness, and knock away upon Forney's head as furiously as if every lick struck upon it did not knock it "bim" up against old Buck's "knowledge box." Why, old Buck raised Forney-took him up when a "twig," and so "bent" bim as to make him the "tree" be now is. If Forney is an intriguer, old Buck made him one. If Forney wanted to adduce false testimony against an innocent person, he had the example set by his Gamaliel in his "bargain and corruption" charge against Jeffersonian Democrats, who damned the Mr. Clay In a word, if Forney needed a precedent for any trick that would serve his purpose, he had only to overhaul his master's history to be accommodated. Congenial spirits, then, are master and pupil, and you cannot hit one without striking the other. To show what confidence Mr. Buchanan had in the effects of the education he gave Forney, he wished, when elected President, to put him in the Senate of the United States, in order that as a "Pennsylvania President," be might have "confidential relations" with him as "a Pennsylvania Senator."

> Hear what he says in the following letter to Henry S. Mott, Esq. :

GOV. WALKER-THE PRESIDENT AND CABINET

We extract the following from Forney's late speech in regard to what passed between Walker and the President and his Cabinet, touching the appointment of the former as Governor of Kansas. Let no one full to read this extract. And if any Cabinet or to the President himself, and appeal effect of Forney's misrepresentations. These statements bear upon their face unmistakeable indications of entire truthfulness. Read, then, the following extract from Forney's speech "Gentlemen, he was elected. He formed his adence created by his nomination in the Democratic party, and the apprehension of his election aspired in the Republican ranks, that public confidence was renewed and revived by the publication of his inaugural address. The Republicans, many of them who had voted for John C. Fremont, said: 'We believe in Mr. Buchanan, and if he stands by the doctrines of this inaugural address we will stand by him.' Now, had he done so, the Republican and the American parties, in my opinion, would have been extinguished; we would have been one great, happy, national famiy. After all, what the great mass of the people this country desire is a good government. Every man in this country is not an office-seeker. Nine out of ten are disinterested in their relations to this government, and they are ready to vote for John B. Haskin, or for John Smith, if they have confidence in the man; and Mr. Buchanan would have suited the country as well as any other man, if he had but fulfilled his pledges; and therefore it was that when his inaugural address was published, they said one to the other: 'We believe in Buchanan---we are sorry that we have not voted for him; but we are willing to trust him and stand by him to the end.' Mr. Buchanan had before him a future which Washington, if he had been living, might have envied---a fu-ture which, if he had walked resolutely in the path he had marked out—the path illuminated y his declarations and pledges-would have allowed him to go down to the grave followed by the blessings of a grateful people. Posterity would have pointed to his administration as a model and example to all generations; Pennsylvania would have had no cause to be ashamed of her favorite son. No, my fellow countrymen. But he did not stop here. As if for the purpose of accumulating pledge upon pledge—as if for the purpose of piling up a pyramid of promises upon this quesion, what did he do next? He looked around to see whom he should get to go to Kansas, for the purpose of settling the vexed question which had rendered Kansas what it had been graphically termed 'the graveyard of Governors.' He sought no inferior man; he would not be tempted to take statesman, who had been presented by a large Mrs. Bodine, No. 329 Tenth-avenue, with whom portion of the leading and prominent men of the | he formerly boarded. He stated that he had just South for a seat in his Cabinet; who had for 12 arrived in that City from Boston, and having been years represented his State in the Congressional Senate, and had set with Mr. Buchanan in the Cabinet of Col. Polk. He selected Robt. J. Walker. And when he called upon Mr. Walker, and asked him to proceed to the territory, Mr. Walker said to him, 'Why, Mr. Buchanan, that would finish me forever; it has ruined every man that has gone there; it will ruin me. I have reached that time of life when I cannot afford to risk all my prospects, and probably the peace and happi-ness of my family.' And he intimated, as if gifted with a knowledge of the future, 'I cannot run er lying across the bed, the bed clothes being the risk of being most probably betrayed and destructed by the Administration that appoints me.' Mr. Buchanan said to him-Mr. Walker, if you will go there, you will settle this question in a few

THE OREGON WAR DEBT.

Our readers may recollect that, some time last summer, we exposed the swindle that would be attempted upon the Treasury in the way of claims for volunteer services in fighting the Indians in Oregon and Washington Territories. These claims smounted to the extraordinary sum of six millions one doubts the truth of this statement, let him of dollars. We showed, in several different artiapply to either one of the seven members of the cles, that this enormous claim was necessarily fradulent. The limits of an advertisement forbid a detailed description of an estate so large, varied and valuable, nor would the attempt be satisfactory either to the adverrough investigation of the whole property, accompani-ed by surveys and plats thereof, and of the city, with oral descriptions of boundaries, &c., &c., of each lot, square, and improvement is specially recommended and invited as indispensable to an intelligent and full acquaintance with and appreciation of, its position, intrinsic value, present productiveness, rapidly increasing character, and future earabilities.

It will therefore be sufficient here to say, that the city lots offered all lie within the city upon almost all the principal streets and thoroughfares and upon the river-many in the central and commercial parts of the city, and all elegibly situated and valuable for commercial and business uses, or for residences of the first

Among the improved portions, are brick and wooden and new; others three, two and one stories high, of different grades and values, according to position, size, Ac., Ac. Also dwellings of brick and wood, some very

Among the dwellings will be found a very spacious, conveniently arranged and hansomely finished family residence of brick, covered with tin, portices covered with tin, and with marble floors, the whole recently remodelled and thoroughly repaired with all the modern tures, bath and dressing rooms, &c., &c., besides every appurtenant office and out building, all of brick, covered with slate or tin and new, save only, one of the camage houses which is of wood. This residence is most favorably situated upon an elevated central square of ten acres, surrounded by four of the principal streets and enclosed on its whole front by an iron railing on a new and well constructed brick wall with a stone foundation. The grounds, laid out by professional gardeners, are well supplied with shade and ornamental trees and shrubbery; and the garden and green house, with plants and flowers, indigeneus and exotic. The regetable and fruit garden is well arranged and protected, and is large and productive. Three pumps, affording excellent water, supply the house, garden and offices at convenient points, abundantly. This large let with others can be most conveniently and easily intersected bynew streets, and thus subdivided and made into many lots not surpassed by any for residences, &c., within the

THE LIVER INVIGORATOR! PREPARED BY DR. SANFORD

Compounded Entirely From GUMS, S ONE OF THE BEST PURGATIVE AND Liver Medicines now before the public, that acts as a Cathartic, easier, milder, and more effectual than any other medicine known. It is not only a Cathartic, any other medicine known. It is not only a Cashastic, but a Liver remedy, acting first on the Liver to eject its morbid matter, then on the stomach and howels to carry off that matter, thus accomplishing two purposes effectually, without any of the painful feelings expedienced in the operations of most Cathartics. It strengthens the system at the mine time that it purges it; and when taken daily in moderate dozes, will strengthen and build it up with unusual rapidity.

The Liver is one of the principal regulators f the human body; and the his performs the functions well, the powers of veloped. The stomach is proper performance of its mach is at fault, the bow-whole system suffers in gan—the Liver—having For the diseases of that eters has made it his
