RALEIGH. N. C.

SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 7, 1859.

COL. EDWARDS.

Since our last issue, we have met with a good m ny members of the Whig party, and to a man they expressed the earnest hope that Col. L. C. Edwards, of Oxford, would come out as a candidate for Congress in this District. We repeat to-day what we said on Wednesday, that there never has been a better opportunity than now exists, to make an inroad upon the power of the Democracy in this District. Mr. Branch, we have proved, by the evasive and shuffling resolutions of the Franklinton Convention, has not been endorsed by those who put him in nomination. They dared not endorse him, nor will the people, if his outrageous Thirty Million Bill is set before them in the true light of all its enormity. A proposition to give to the President of the United States Thirty Million of of the "Press" for referring to the curses he Dollars is so monstrous and outrageous that let off against the Democratic party in 1848. the maker of it cannot be sustained by a peo- We ought not to have done it, for he tells us ple who value their liberties.

THE CANVASS IN VIRGINIA --- WHIG was imprudent in those having him in charge CANDIDATE FOR PETERSBURG.

We are sincerely glad to see that Alex. Donnan, Esq., has consented to represent the City of Petersburg in the next House of Delegates of Virginia. He yielded his own private interests and predilections to the call of a large number of the most respectable-

THE PETERSBURG PRESS.

"Then did Sir Knight abandon dwelling, And out he rode a Colonel'ing ; A Knight he was whose very sight would Entitle him mirror of Knightho xd." We feel that we owe sundry apologies to the editor of the Petersburg "Press," and shall therefore proceed to render to him what we think are his dues. First, then, we owe him an apology for not replying to him in our last issue, and assign as a reason for not doing so, that we did not have the space to spare to him. The validi y of this excuse, the editor of the "Press" must admit, for a glance at Wednesday's Register will show him as plainly as the nose in his face, on which an admiring world gazes, that we had no room in which to do justice to so vast and important a subject as himself." Secondly, we owe him an apology for setting him to work, "tongs" in hand, late Saturday evening to pull out the "Register" from his immense pile of exchanges, and then making him sit down and write a column and more, (you grazed Sunday closely, Colonel,) to show what a very insignificant paper the said Register, thus handled with a pair of tongs, is. We think we can see you, Colonel, tongs in hand, and with your nose turned up in a manner so peculiarly your own.

Thirdly, we owe an apology to the editor he was young and very green. He had just emerged from diapers and pipafores, and it to let him go out without a nurse. It is true that three Judges had been good natured enough to give him a license to practice law, and it is no less strange than true that he held on to his opinions of the Democracy, expressed in 1848, for at least five years thereafter, inasmuch as he co-operated with their opponents, as well as he knew how to co-operate with anybody. Does he not remember introducing Mr. Botts to a meeting in Petersburg long after 1848, when he was a green-horn and irresponsible ? If his memory is at fault on this point, perhaps Mr. Hugh Nelson will refresh it for him. But the editor of the "Press" thinks it hard that we should bring up his pulpit oratory against the Democracy in 1848, when at the time we gave him no "reproach" for his irreverence. Now, what right had we to reproach Mr. Paul, who was setting up as an instructor of the people, for his mode of expressing his honest opinions of the Democratic party ? Were there any such relations between us as would justify us in assuming the part of a monitor to him ? He knows that there were no such relations between us as would have relieved a "reproach" from us to him of the imputation of gross impertinance, and he knows moreover that we refer to his language now to show that such was his scorn and detestation of the party to which he is now a devoted and humble servant that no spot, however sacred, could deter him from pronouncing his maledictions upon them in the very plainest language at his command. But he pleads infancy, and we can say no more.

| REPORTED FOR THE REGISTER.] SABBATH SCHOOL CELEBRATION-EX-CURSION TO FRANKLINTON-PICNIC, &c., &c.

On Wednesday last the Methodist, Baptist and Methodist Chapel Sabbath Schools of Raleigh celebrated their annual anniversary by an excursion to Franklinton. The citizens of that hospitable village having been apprised of the intended visit of our Sabbath Schools, had made every necessary preparation for their reception and enterteinment At 8 o'clock on Wednesday morning, the several schools assembled on the Capital Square, and after forming into line, under the charge of their respective Marshals, proceeded through Fayetteville and Davie streets to the Railroad Depot. Here was found the splendid and beautiful locomotive, the "George W. Mordecai," with a train of six coaches attached, already fired up and in readiness for the transportation of the Sabbath Schools to Franklinton. The locomotive was burnished up in a handsome manner, and was decked with numerous bouquets and wreaths of flowers, which gave it a gay and beauti ul appearance. The credit of thus arraying the "Mordecai" is due, we understand, to Mrs. Albert Johnson and her daughters, who very kindly furnished the wreaths and bouquets, and to Mr. Mortimer Fleming, the engineer in charge of the train, (and who, we learn, is regarded as one of the best and most careful engineers on the road,) to whose excellent taste was left the admirable manner in which the wreaths, &c., were arranged.

About half past 9, the teachers, children and invited guests having been safely stowed away in the coaches, and the doors of all the coaches locked by that popular and excellent conductor. Capt. Timberlake, who took this precaution to prevent the possibility of the occurrence of an accident, the train, with its precious load of upwards of five hundred souls, slowly moved off in the direction of Franklinton. In one of the coaches were several gentlemen o

Raleigh who had very kindly organized themselves into an amateur band of music for the occasion, the sweet strains of whose delightful music contributed no little to the enjoyments of the day. Indeed, the performance of these gentlemen added so largely to the pleasures of the day that we think it is due to them that we should mention their kerchief until he had scattered pretty thoroughly its entire contents. The person who concealed the contectionaries was ashamed to claim the handkerchief, so it was suffered to remain undisturbed where the hog had dropped it. This little incident afforded to those who witnessed it a great deal of amusement.

RALEIGH, WEDNESDAY MORNING, MAY 11, 1859.

About four o'clock, the bell of the "George W. Mordecai" announced to the visitors that it was time for them to return home. In a little while all of the cars were crowded with the excursionists, all of whom were reluctant to leave the scene of so much pleasure as they had that day enjoyed. Mr. A. M. Gorman then delivered a most beautiful and elegant fare well speech to the citizons of Franklinton, thanking them for the generous and hospitable manner in which they had entertained our visiting Sabbath Schools, to which the Rev Mr. Hefin replied in an equally happy and appropriate manner, on behalf of the citizens of Franklinton. At the close of these speeches, our gallant and obliging conductor pronounced those ominous words, "All aboard," the iron horse gave one or two snorts, and the happy excursionists moved slowly sway, giving three hearty parting cheers to the people of Franklinton. About six o'clock the train arrived in Raleigh, when the several Sabbath Schools formed into line and march ed to the Capitol Square, where they dispersed with three cheers.

The day itself was one of the most beautiful we ever saw, and everything conspired to make the celebration, what it most emphatically was, one of the most delightful that any of the party even enjoyed.

The generous citizens of Franklinton did eye rything in their power to contribute to the gene ral enjoyment, and will never be forgotton by the excursionists for their kindness and hospitality The following sentiment of the poel expresses the feelings of probably every one who participated in the celebration of Wednesday last-

To the Marshals, viz: Mesars. A. M. Gorman Chief Marshal, and P. F. Pescud, Superintendent of the Baptist Sabbath School, T. H. Brame, Su perintendent of the Methodist Sabbath School, S L. Riddle, Superintendent of the Methodist Chapel School, W. B. Reid, W. J. Young, W. Henry Harrison and Wm. T. Womble, assistants, much credit is due for the excellent and orderly manner in which everything was conducted, as it was no doubt owing to their efficient supervision of everything that we can have the satisfaction of saying that the day passed off with not the slightest accident to mar its pleasures. And while awarding credit to those who aided in contributing to the general enjoyments, we must not overlook the excellent Superintendent of the Raleigh & Gaston Railroad, Mr. P. A. Dunn, who took much interest in the success of the celebration, and materially contributed thereto, by furnishing a sufficient number of coaches for the accommodation of the STILL LATER FROM EUROPE. QUEBEC, May 2 .- The steamship North Briton, from Liverpool on the 20th ultimo, arrived here this morning.

Continental affairs have assumed a more pacific phase. Sardinia accepts the principle of disarmament, and thereupon the Moniteur publishes another pacific article. The British Parliament was prorogued on the 19th, and would dissolve on the 23d. The Queen's speech says that a dissolution of Parliament had een agreed upon to give the country an opportunity of expressing its opinion on the public affairs, and to give the Government confidence in the House of Commons.

The English funds on the 19th fell 1d. under the Ministerial statement of the foreign policy, but the decline was subsequently fully recovered, owing to the pacific article in the Moniteur. price for him.

Final propositions from England to Austria were sent to Vienna on the 16th.

The Moniteur of the 19th officially explains the basis of the proposed Congress and the present position of negotiations. It says that France will willingly prove her concilatory" position, and has promised to request Piedmont to disarm on condition that she and the other Italian States be allowed to take part in the Congress. Every thing justifies the belief that no further obstacles will oppose the assembling of the Congress.

The King of Naples had parted with his family, and received the sacrament.

Sedition and riots have occurred among the students at Bologna. The troops were obliged to fire upon them, and several were wounded.

GOING TO THE DOGS .- The New York Herald takes a very dismal view of the prospects of the party for which it professes so great a sympathy. Here is its latest wail:

The existing demoralizations and divisions of the Democratic party are exceedingly deplorable. The split in Pennsylvania, the rele lion in Louisiana, the party rivalries and jealousies and dissensions in Virginia; the despair of the faithful regulars of the North, the impracticable demands of the pro-slavery fire-eaters of the South, and the general disorganization of the whole Democratic camp, would seem to justify the belief that in 1860 we shall have the last struggle, the final overthrow

The editors apologise in their first number for not publishing their paper on new type, staring that they had ordered new material, but it had failed to come to hand before their first issue. We commend "The State" to the Whigs of the First District, and trust that it will receive a liberal support. "The State" takes the place of the "Sentinel," which was formerly published by Mr. Wm. E. After alighting, the visitors were escorted to the front of the Hotel, where they were welcomed to the village by Mr. G. W. Both orations were felicitous and appropriate, and the orators have just cause to feel

The Chief Marshal then announced that the Comnittee of Arrangements would proceed to arrange the tables, and the audience might disperse until they were informed by the ringing of the bell that dinner was ready. It was not long before the bell summoned the dispersed crowd to the grove in the rear of the Male Academy, where were found spread out on tables of great length, a superabundance of meats. cakes, confectionaries, &c., sufficient for a considerable army. A charge was promptly made upon the tables at every accessible point, and the large quantity of edibles under the weight of which they at first seemed to groan were made speedily to disappear. When the ap-petites of all were satisted, there were enough of the fragments left to have filled "twelve bay kets" (if they had not been very large ones,) and we understand that several boxes of provisions prepared for the occasion were not even opened. These were brought back, and very appropriately distributed among the poor of the several churches. After dinner, the crowd dispersed in various directions, each one enjoying himself as he felt disposed. Quite a large number assembled in the cool and pleasant church, where they were entertained by the šinging and playing on the guitar by two beautiful young ladies of this city, of that

Democratic party."
