

THE NATURALIZATION QUESTION. JUDGE BLACK ON THE RIGHT OF EX-PATRIATION.

Attorney General Black, in compliance with the request of the President of the United States, rendered an opinion in the case of Christian Ernst, a native of Hanover, and who emigrated to this country in 1851, when he was about sixteen years of age. This subject was recently made the basis of a communication to our Minister at Berlin, who is supposed to demand the release of Mr. Ernst.

The Attorney General says that in a case which makes it necessary for the government of the United States to interfere promptly and decisively, or to abstain from any interference, it is not necessary to determine whether the individual citizen when they return to their native country under any circumstances whatever. What you will do must of course depend upon the law of our own country as a condition of the exercise of the right of citizenship of the United States and the acts of Congress.

The natural rights of every free person who owns no debt, and is not guilty of any crime, and is not a slave, and is in good faith, and for his own purposes—the privilege of throwing off his natural allegiance and substituting another allegiance in its place—the general right of emigration, and the right to acquire citizenship of any country, are not subject to any restrictions, and are not subject to any restrictions, and are not subject to any restrictions.

All these are opposed to the doctrine of perpetual allegiance, as well as to the general interests of mankind to be tolerated. Justice denied that men should be confined to their native soil or driven away from it against their will. A man may be allowed to leave his native soil, and he may be allowed to leave his native soil, and he may be allowed to leave his native soil.

England, by a recent statute, (7 and 8 Vic.) has established a permanent system of naturalization in the very best manner. It has declared in the code Napoleon (Art. 17.) that the quality of a Frenchman will be lost by naturalization in a foreign country, and that the quality of a Frenchman will be lost by naturalization in a foreign country, and that the quality of a Frenchman will be lost by naturalization in a foreign country.

Expatriation includes not only emigration out of one's natural country, but naturalization in the country adopted as the future residence. When we prove the right of expatriation, we prove the right to establish the lawful authority of the country in which he settles to naturalize him, if the government please. What then is naturalization? It is the act of adopting a foreigner and clothing him with all the privileges of a native citizen or subject.

There can be no doubt that naturalization does precisely place the native and adopted citizen in precisely the same position as a native citizen, and that the adopted citizen is treated as a native citizen, and that the adopted citizen is treated as a native citizen, and that the adopted citizen is treated as a native citizen.

ADDITIONAL NEWS FROM EUROPE.

By mail from New York we have some additional news by steamer Indian arrived at Quebec. The Times has re-appointed an own correspondent at Berlin. Until some time has elapsed his assertions must be taken somewhat on trust.

The Prussian proposal, he says, are now in the hands of Russia and England. With England and Russia have been successful, but the hopes of Russia are not so bright. It is not likely that the Prussian Army will be in full march. The Prussian Army will be in full march. The Prussian Army will be in full march.

The Berlin correspondent of the Times gives an outline of the peace proposals of France, as the main feature is advertised by the Paris correspondent of the Advertiser, who says King Leopold is desirous of proposing to the diplomatic corps that the Venetia must be separated from the Austrian Empire. The Venetia must be separated from the Austrian Empire. The Venetia must be separated from the Austrian Empire.

The Times correspondent says of the Prince of Prussia, that although he has never given any proof of his military talents, he is a man of high talents, and is a man of high talents, and is a man of high talents. The Prince of Prussia is a man of high talents, and is a man of high talents, and is a man of high talents.

THE MASSACRE AT PERUGIA—NARRATIVE OF THE ESCAPE OF AMERICANS.

A letter from Rome to the New York Post says: Mr. Stockton, the United States Minister at Rome, is taking energetic measures for obtaining satisfactory reparation in behalf of a highly respectable American citizen, who was in Perugia at the time of the conflict, by which he was a sufferer to a considerable amount. This is Mr. Edward Newton Perkins, of Boston, who had arrived at Perugia on the 25th inst., and was in the city at the time of the conflict, by which he was a sufferer to a considerable amount.

THE PEACE INSTITUTE.

We learn that the stockholders of the Peace Institute, a Presbyterian Female School proposed to be established in this City, held their first meeting on the 14th inst. The stock was represented in person or by proxy. After prayer by Rev. J. M. Atkinson, William Pease, Esq., was called to the Chair, and Mr. T. McGee appointed Secretary.

The Southern Confederacy, a Democratic paper published at Atlanta, Georgia, can stand the Administration no longer. In a late issue it pronounces against it thus: "Save and except the foreign policy and assertions in the message of President Buchanan (which have never been carried out) his administration has been a failure."

What, for instance, would the Austrian general at Mortara have given had he been able to keep over the sea and see those endless battalions of Prussians marching to the sea, or if he could have seen them passing this latter river in thousands, while the light at Palestro was going on. He might have brought up his whole army, and he might have brought up his whole army, and he might have brought up his whole army.

THE importance of a reliable article of the kind is inestimable. In warm weather all nature seems to be languishing. This powder is the only article ever discovered which will exterminate them. It is a compound of botanical, from the Horticultural Society of Paris, which has been used for many years.
